STRATFIELD MORTIMER is a parish, a small portion of which is in this county (see Mortimer West d), but it is principally in the county of Berks, and is given in Kelly's Directory of that county.

STRATFIELDSAYE is a pleasant village and parish partly in Berkshire, 3½ miles south-east from Mortimer station on the Great Western railway, and 8 north-east from Basingstoke, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Holdshot, Basingstoke petty sessional di on union and county court district, rural deanery of B ng stoke north-eastern division, and archdeaconry and d es of Winchester. The church of St. Mary the V gin ted near the western extremity of the park, and rebuilt 84, is an edifice of flint in the form of a Greek cross, sting of chancel, nave, transepts, and a tower with a containing 5 bells: in the south transept is a marble ument to Sir William Pitt, dated 1636, west of which is mural tablet by Flaxman, to George Pitt, first Baron s of that family, who died 7th May, 1803: an organ presented by the late Duke of Wellington K.G. in 1867: e chancel are two brasses dated 1558 and 1594 to the idgecourt family; also a mural monument of stone to John Howsman, rector of this church, 1626: in ber, 1883, a mural monument, by Mr. G. G. Adams, tor, was placed in the chancel to the Very Rev. the Gerald Wellesley, dean of Windsor: it includes a life- medallion portrait of the dean in bold relief, and th an inscription and the arms of the family: there are gs for 450 persons. The register dates from the year The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £772, net y value £821, including glebe, with residence, in the gift e Duke of Wellington, and held since 1878 by the Rev. ce George Monro M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. on church was erected at Fair Oak in 1882 as a chapel e, at the sole expense of the rector. Charities of £21 y value are distributed in bread and clothing. The Duke ellington is lord of the manor and chief landowner. field means the field of the road or way, the ancient an road from London to Silchester crossing the parishes t name, of which there are three: the terminal name is parish is derived from the family of Saye, who once it, and from whom it passed by marriage to Sir olas Dabridgecourt, high sheriff of this county in the of Richard II.: about the middle of the seventeenth ry it was purchased by Sir William Pitt, in whose y it remained till 1814, when it was purchased of Lord s by Parliament and presented to the great Duke of ngton, whose successor holds it of the Crown on a ar condition to that under which the Duke of Marl- gh holds Blenheim, viz. that of presenting to the reign on each succeeding anniversary of the battle of rloo a flag, which is placed in the armoury or guard ber at Windsor Castle. The mansion, a pleasing men of modern architecture, stands in the midst of a ous and well-wooded park of 1,500 acres, extending into arishes of Stratfield Turgis, Hartley Westpall and Heck- as well as into the parish of Swallowfield, in Berkshire, and contains within its limits the parish church and the rectory-house; the river Loddon rolls its sluggish stream through the park and forms several delightful sheets of water in front of the mansion. A monument was erected here in 1866 to the first Duke of Wellington: it consists of three courses of steps supporting a plinth of dressed granite, also formed of three courses, 12 feet square and 6 feet high, and upon this rests a moulded base, on which is a block of granite 9 feet 6 inches high and 7 feet square, and weighing 40 tons: on each of the four sides of this massive stone is a sunken panel; one of which has the word "Wellington" inscribed upon it; on the opposite panel are the words, "Erected by Arthur Richard, second Duke of Wellington, and the tenants, servants and labourers on the estates of his father, as a token of affection and respect;" one of the remaining panels bears the inscription, "He was honoured abroad, for in all the might of conquest he was ever just, considerate and humane;" the other, "He was beloved at home, for he had great power, and ever used it well. He was firm in friendship, and his hand was open towards the poor:" this stone is surmounted by a monolith column 30 feet high, having a bronze base and weighing 21 tons: supported by this column, on a pedestal, is the statue of the duke, 8 feet 9 inches high, in the uniform of a field marshal: the monument, which is altogether 82 feet high, was erected by the Messrs. Freeman, of Cornwall, in accordance with the designs of the late Baron Marochetti. The soil is various; subsoil, chiefly clay, intermixed with gravel. The area is 2,617 acres; rateable value, £3,604; the population in 1881 was 573.

TITCHFIELD is a small well-built town and extensive parish, 74½ miles by road from London, 9 south-east from Southampton, 2 west from Fareham station and 6 north-west from Gosport, in the hundred of the same name, Southern division of the county, Fareham union and petty sessional division, county court district of Portsmouth, rural deanery of Alverstoke and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester: this was originally a market town, and is situated in a beautiful valley, through which the river Meon wends its way towards the Solent, opposite Osborne House. The streets are lighted with gas. The church of St. Peter is a spacious and ancient structure of stone and rubble, the work of different ages, but dating from 1243: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles and western tower with clock: the north side was built by William of Wykeham: the south chancel contains a splendid monument, underneath which are deposited the remains of Sir Thomas Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton, chancellor to Henry VIII. buried in 1550: the principal entrance to the church is by an ancient Norman doorway: a south aisle was added in 1867: there are nine stained windows: the west wall of the nave is decorated with sgraffito work in memory of the late vicar (Rev. W. M. Cosser) and executed at the expense of the parishioners: the chancel arch has a painting of the Crucifixion, the gift of Lady Bath, in memory of the Hon. Misses Baring, of West Hill: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1589. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Winchester, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Reginald Arthur Richard White M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. A burial board was formed in 1860 for Titchfield, Crofton and Sarisbury, and is under the control of nine members: the three burial grounds are additions to the respective churchyards, and were provided at a total cost of £1,800. Here are Congregational and Brethren chapels. The charities of the parish are—1. Earl of Southampton's charity, dispensed by trustees under the Charity Commissioners, income from £70 to £80. 2. Godfrey's charity, dispensed by churchwardens, income about £25. 3. Godwin's charity, £4, for education of 12 children; trustees, the churchwardens. Near to the town are the ruins of a noble mansion, called "Titchfield House:" on this site stood an abbey, in ancient records called "Tychfelle Abbey," built in 1232: at the dissolution of the monasteries, in the reign of Henry VIII. the Chancellor Wriothesley obtained from his royal master the abbey and the land pertaining thereto: with the materials he built for himself a "righte goodlye house, embattled:" in this mansion Charles I. found shelter when pursued by Cromwell and his party, and from it he was taken as a prisoner by Colonel Hammond in 1647: it has long since been in ruins. Titchfield Common has been inclosed and extensively built on: it is chiefly cottage property occupied for the cultivation of strawberries, which forms a special industry here, a large quantity being forwarded to London and other markets. Here is a tan yard, also brewery. Fairs are held at Titchfield on the 14th of May and 25th of September. St. Margaret's is the property of Seymour Robert Delmé esq. and occupied by Major-General Edward Charles Acheson Gordon R.E. and West Hill is the seat of Lieut.-General the Hon. Percy Robert Basil Feilding C.B. and Lady Louisa Feilding. The principal landowners are Se ou Robert Delmé esq. of Fareham, who is lord of the nor and Thomas Wynn Hornby and Montague Foster esq. Thi parish contains a large number of extensive farms in hig state of cultivation. The soil is loamy; subsoil, gra an clay. The chief crops are turnips, barley, oats and eat and strawberries are grown. The civil parish is the la st i the county; its area is 15,698 acres of land and 39 ate and 995 of foreshore; rateable value, £25,590; the tir population of the civil parish in 1881 was 4,571; of the ris church district, 1,594.

LEE-ON-THE-SOLENT, a hamlet in the ecclesiastical ris of Crofton, is being developed as a new seaside watering lac a marine parade and roads being formed: it is about nile from Gosport, 4 from Fareham and 5 from Portsmout it i the property of Sir Charles J. Robinson F.S.A. of Ivto Manor, Swanage. Many villas and cottages have bee erected: an iron pier 750 feet in length has been erected her is a good hotel, "The Victoria:" a steam launch pl fou times daily during the summer months to Southsea, oke Bay and Portsmouth, meeting the London trains, l a omnibus runs to Fareham daily throughout the year ppl cation is about to be made for power to construct a wa from near the Brockhurst station on Stokes Bay bran lin of the London and South Western Railway line to t pie here. The number of acres is 2,556; rateable value, £2,303; the population in 1881 was 383.

Parish Clerk, James Goff.

EAST and WEST BUCKHOLT, adjoining East Tytherley, was formerly extra-parochial, so that it contains no church. Except a cottage or two there are only two residences, viz. the homestead of Buckholt Farm and Queenwood College. Buckholt Farm, in the western portion of the parish, belongs to William Baring esq. of Norman Court; Queenwood College, standing in the middle of extensive grounds and partly in East Tytherley parish, is in the eastern portion. Queenwood is a place of considerable interest: the name, belonging originally to the adjacent farm, is said to be derived from the circumstance that Queen Elizabeth tem visited the spot from Winchester: in 1841 the Socialists under Robert Owen, took a long lease of the Queenwood Farm, and built the present structure, which they called "Harmony Hall," for the home of a community: the scheme failed in a very few years and the place was left unoccupied till, in 1847, the building and farm of 600 acres (part of which land is in East Tytherley parish) passed into other hands and agricultural college, combined with a boarding-school for boys was then established, but before long the agricultural department was abandoned, the farm land let off, and the place is now conducted solely as a high-class boarding-school and has had on its staff men who have become the most scientists of the day; the late Professor Fawcett M.P. was a pupil when Tyndall and Franklin held appointments at Queenwood: the situation of the college is perfectly rural and unsurpassed for healthiness, on one side is the open down country, on the other the wooded district towards the New Forest: the school, which is available for about 70 boarders, has no sectarian teaching, and the fees amount to about 100 guineas yearly: the present proprietor is Mr. Chas. Willmore; postal address, "near Stockbridge, Hants" (Stockbridge is 5 miles distant); telegraphic address "Broughton, Hants" (Broughton is about a mile distant) nearest station, Dunbridge, 4 miles distant, on the Southampton and Salisbury branch of the L. & S. W. R. Conveyances to be had at the "Mill Arms," Dunbridge near Romsey. William Baring esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay and light loam and subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are barley, wheat, oats and turnips. The area is 1,027 acres; rateable value, £58 the population in 1881 was 47.

WALL BOX, Elm Tree avenue.—Letters arrive from Dunbridge Sub-Office at 8.40 a.m.; box cleared at 5.40 p.m. sundays, 9 a.m. The nearest money order & telegraph offices are Lockerley & Broughton; Dunbridge station also a telegraph station also the fee farm rent on Winchester tithings, £2,610: the school was endowed for 12 children, 6 belonging to East Tytherley & 6 to Lockerley, & as many more as the trustees may think fit; the school will hold 90 children; average attendance, 70. About 1871 a school was built at Lockerley, partly out of the funds of the East Tytherley school, & the trustees, with the consent of the Charity Commissioners, have endowed that school with £60 yearly out of the funds of the East Tytherley school: the trustees are Frederick G. Dalgety esq. J.P. Rev. James Rathborne, Rev. John Haworth Milne, Rev. Stafford Faulkner & the Rev. Frederick Henry Slocock: Frederick Henshaw, master; Mrs. Jane Eliza Henshaw, mistress; Miss Avery, infants' mistress

Here is a school, endowed with the interest on £2,[illegible] Consols, the rent of a farm (present annual value, £30)

WARBLINGTON is a parish, three-quarters of a mile south-east-by-east from Havant station, 8 miles north-east from Portsmouth and 66 from London, on the shore of Chichester Haven, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Rosmere, Havant union, Fareham petty sessional division, Portsmouth county court district, Havant rural deanery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church is an ancient structure, supposed to be 550 years old, of flint with stone dressings, consisting of Decorated chancel with later insertions and Early English nave and north porch; the tower, which stands between the chancel and nave, has traces of Saxon and Norman work: there are 200 sittings. The earliest regular registers date from about 1660, the period of the Restoration; a few entries are made previous to that date, as if from recollection, beginning in 1631. The living is a rectory, yearly value about £585, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. William Norris M.A. and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Burrell Norris M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. Close to the church is a tower, the only remains of Warblington Castle, which originally formed a quadrangle, and was in a complete state in 1633, but is supposed to have been demolished in the time of Oliver Cromwell. The trustees of John Fenwick esq. are lords of the manor, and the principal landowner is J. E. Cox esq. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,652 acres of land and 600 water; rateable value (including Emsworth), £12,369; the population in 1881, including Emsworth, was 2,374.

WHERWELL is a parish, giving name to the hundred, d has a station on the South Western railway, 68 miles om London, 4 miles south-east from Andover, 5 north-st from Stockbridge, in the Western division of the county, ndover petty sessional division, union and county court strict, rural deanery of Andover south division and archaconry and diocese of Winchester. The river Test, noted its trout, flows through the village in three streams. rt of Harewood Forest is in this parish. The church of Peter and Holy Cross was built on the site of an older urch, and was consecrated in 1858: it is a handsome ilding of flint and Bath stone, in the Early English style, nsisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, the Iremonger chapel, vestry, south-west porch and a tower, surounted by a spire, which is covered with shingles and ntains a peal of 5 bells: there are five stained windows memory of Col. Iremonger, Pennant Iremonger, K. E. emonger, Sir William Chatterton bart. and William Iremonger, and one erected by the parishioners. In digging e foundation for the present church a curious stone figure, presenting an abbess, also several stone carvings, one of hich represents the Expulsion from Paradise, were found: ey are now placed in the churchyard: there is also an cient stone tomb to Charles West and his wife, date 1551, hich was removed from the old church and placed in the ll of the churchyard: there is also a large and handsome ausoleum, built out of the materials of the old church, beging to the Iremonger family in the churchyard: there 260 sittings. The register dates from the year 1624. e living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with 6 res of glebe and residence, in the gift of William H. Iremonger esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. William arison B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans ve a chapel, erected 1846. In 1691 John Lord De La arr left by will the sum of twelve shillings, to be given yearly at Christmas to twelve old men and women for ever. A large sheep fair is held here on the 24th of September. The Priory, now the residence of Capt. the Hon. Victor Montagu R.N. occupies the site of a priory founded by Queen Ethelred; and in the churchyard wall facing the Priory, there is a very curious stone, bearing date 1649, stating that the Priory of Whorwell formerly stood on that spot: in the Priory there are two paintings by Sir Joshua Reynolds of members of the Iremonger family. The principal landowners are Sir William Perceval Heathcote bart. J.P. T. Best esq. and William H. Iremonger esq. who is lord of the manor. The soil is part light gravel, part heavy gravel and part white loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and grass. The area is 3,612 acres of land and 33 of water; rateable value, £4,033; the population in 1881 was 541.

FULLERTON, 1½ miles south-west, is a tithing and station on the Andover and Redbridge branch of the South Western railway. WESTOVER is a tithing, 2 miles west. Mount Pleasant is half a mile north; Dublin is half a mile east.

WHITCHURCH is a parish, town, head of a union and polling place for the Western division of the county; the tion on the Andover and Basingstoke branch of the South stern railway is half a mile north; a new station was ened May 1st, 1885, on the Didcot, Newbury and Winster direct line of the Great Western railway. The town 12 miles north from Winchester, 7 east-by-north from Andover, 12 west-by-south from Basingstoke and 59 from London, in Evingar hundred, Kingsclere petty sessional division, Andover county court district, rural deanery of Basingstoke south-western division, and Winchester archdeaconry and diocese. Whitchurch, which consists of five streets, all diverging from the Market place, although built on rather low ground, is considered extremely healthy, being near the head of the Test valley and sheltered on all sides but the south by neighbouring hills; the land here is of an undulating character. Over the Test is a brick bridge of five arches. There are three corn mills on the river. Whiting is made here. The town has a charter for a market, which was formerly held on Friday; it has long been obsolete. Gas works were erected in 1856 by Whitchurch and District (Hants) Gas Co. Limited. Though a borough by prescription, Whitchurch was never incorporated; it is governed by a titular mayor and bailiff, chosen annually at the Town Hall, at the court leet of the Dean and Chapter of Winchester: this constitutes the municipal corporation, which for some time has possessed no authority. The borough returned two members to Parliament from the 27th of Queen Elizabeth until 1832, when it was disfranchised by the Reform Act. The church of All Saints is an edifice of flint and stone, in the Transitional, Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south aisles, south porch and a massive western tower, with an octagonal spire 120 feet high, containing 6 bells: the stained east window, erected in 1883, by the late Charles Edney esq. is a memorial to his late wife: there is another in memory of the Rev. William Mason Dudley M.A. vicar, who died Jan. 24th, 1886; also one to Emma, wife of George Edney, of the Manor, Whitchurch, who died Feb. 2, 1886, and one of St. Patrick, in memory of Harriet Jane Hoare, d. Jan. 18th, 1887: a tomb with a fine brass to the Brooks family, who formerly held property here, namely, one with effigies, to Richard Brooks, 1603, and Elizabeth his wife, with six children; some members of this family entertained Charles I. here in 1643, previous to the battle of Newbury, Sept. 20th: an effigy of a female reclining on a cross, with the incription "HIC CORPVS FRITHBVRGAE REQVIESCIT IN PACEM SEPVLTVM," was some time since found embedded in one of the walls: the church was restored in 1868, at a cost of about £4,000, and in 1887 warming apparatus was introduced at a cost of £120 and a new organ erected in 1886 at a cost of £370: there are 500 sittings, 200 of which are appropriated, but free from the commencement of each service. The register dates from the year 1607; marriages, 1605. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £19, net yearly value £290, including 21 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Henry Edmund Sharpe M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, who is surrogate and chaplain to the Whitchurch union. There is a Bray library in the vestry of the church, consisting chiefly of theological works, augmented in the year 1731 by the Rev. William Wood, a former vicar: access to this library is obtained on an order given by the vicar. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, in Winchester street, built 1812, to seat 200; a Baptist chapel, in Newbury street, with 50 sittings; a Primitive Methodist chapel, in London street, built in 1849, seating 130; a Congregational chapel, in Church street, with 250 seats; and Particular Baptists chapel in Winchester street, seating 100; also Salvation Army barracks in The Lynch. There are charities of the annual value of £60, derived from land in Essex, and called "The Wollaston charity," which is distributed in food and clothing; bread, called "Valentine Bread," the bequest of the late Mr. Twynam, value about £8, is distributed on St. Valentine's day. The Town Hall, in which the courts leet are held, is a small but ancient structure, situated near the centre of the town. The Mechanics' Institution, established in 1855, occupies part of the Town Hall, and has a good library and reading rooms; there are now (1889) 38 members: the books are circulated through the Hampshire Union of Working Men's Clubs. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the Earl of Portsmouth, Melville Portal esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Laverstoke House, Micheldever, Edward Edwards esq. and Messrs. T. A. Edney Hayter and J. L. Bailey. The Master and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Cross, Winchester, are the lay rectors, and the rectorial tithes amount to £1,200 yearly. The soil is clayey loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The parish comprises the borough and the four small tithings of WHITCHURCH PARSONAGE, FREEFOLK PRIORS, CHARLCOTT and COLE HENLEIGH. The area is 6,348 acres of land and 19 of water; rateable value, £12,229; the population in 1881 was 1,866.

The PARSONAGE tithing is merely the rectorial house and 183 acres of land, belonging to St. Cross Hospital, at Winchester.

CHARLCOTT is half a mile south, and contains only three houses and 543 acres of land.

COLE HENLEIGH is from 2 to 3 miles north-east and comprises only one farm and four cottages.

FREEFOLK PRIORS is about 1½ miles east, and is ecclesiastically attached to Laverstoke.

HITSBURY is a parish, a small portion of which is in this county, but without houses or inhabitants; the remainder is in Wiltshire and is given in Kelly's Directory of that county.

ICKHAM (or WYKEHAM) is a pleasant village and ish, 4 miles north from Fareham station, 12 north-west n Portsmouth, and 69½ from London, in the Southern ision of the county, hundred of Titchfield, union and petty sional division of Fareham, Portsmouth county court dist, rural deanery of Bishop's Waltham and archdeaconry diocese of Winchester. The river Meon passes through village. The church of St. Nicholas is a Gothic cruciform structure of stone, having chancel, nave, transept, h a small square tower at the west end terminating in a oden belfry stage and broach spire, covered with shingles, taining 5 bells and clock: in 1862, the church was red, at a cost of nearly £1,600: the north transept being uilt, the tower added, a new open timber boarded roof to ncel and nave, new stone mullions corresponding with old throughout, and about 410 open seats being introed: new internal arches of Bath stone were inserted to north and south transepts and a chancel arch added: pulpit is of Bath stone, with serpentine marble shafts l glazed encaustic tiles: there are several stained windows the memory of the Garnier family, one being the offers of the rich and poor as a memorial of the Misses Garnier, ers to the Dean of Winchester; and in 1874 the Uvedale-rnier chapel was rebuilt and adapted to the double pure of a vestry and organ chamber: among the monuments is a very handsome one to Sir William Uvedale, formerly lord of this parish: it is in good preservation and affords a good example of the monuments of the period; the whole is surmounted by a shield, bearing the quarterings of the Uvedale family; below is the figure of the knight recumbent, and at his head and feet are shields with the quarterings of the Nortons; below him the figure of his lady, recumbent; and at the base are the figures of his four sons and five daughters kneeling; and one of these, bearing a skull in his hand, is intended to represent John, who died in infancy. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a rectory, rent-charge £577 11s. 2d.; glebe, 53 acres; net yearly value £450, with residence, in the gift of William Rashleigh esq. and held since 1863 by the Rev. Richard Parker M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £25 yearly, arising from various bequests. William Long, afterwards known as William of Wykeham, the great Bishop of Winchester and munificent founder of St. Mary's College, Winchester, and New College, Oxford, was born in this parish in 1324. Here is a large flour mill, a brewery, two malting establishments and several good shops. The High street is formed of continuous buildings, having the appearance of a town rather than a village. A fair is held annually on the 20th of May for the sale of farming stock. The principal seats are Rookes-bury Park, occupied by John Carpenter-Garnier esq. M.A., D.L., J.P.; Little Park, by Charles Edward Radclyffe esq. J.P.; Park Place, by Lieut.-Col. Harry Rich Farquhar and Wickham Lodge, Miss Harvey. John Carpenter-Garnier esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and other cereals, and there is some meadow land. The area is 2,427 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £5,123; the population in 1881 was 1,101.

CROCKERHILL is a small straggling hamlet, part being in Fareham parish and part in Wickham.

Deputy Parish Clerk, Charles Freeman.

WIDLEY with COSHAM.

WIDLEY is a parish which includes a considerable part of the village of Cosham (the remaining portion being in the adjoining parish of Wymering), 4 miles north from Portsmouth, in the Southern division of the county, Portsdown hundred, Fareham union and petty sessional division, Portsmouth county court district, rural deanery of Alverstoke, archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a plain structure of flint, with stone dressings, in the Norman style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, north aisle, and a turret containing one bell: it was rebuilt in 1849: a few interesting fragments of the old structure, including some portions of the old dog-tooth moulding, still remain. The register dates from the year 1611. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Wymering annexed, joint yearly value £600, with residence, in the gift of Rev. Francis Nugée, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Horatio Bolton Smith L.Th. of University College, Durham, who resides at Wymering. Thomas Thistlethwayte esq. of Southwick, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clayey; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,110 acres; rateable value, £4,806; the population in 1881 was 1,069.

COSHAM is a considerable village on the old road from Portsmouth to London, partly situate in the parish of Wymering and partly in that of Widley: it has a station on the London and South Western railway, 90 miles from London; by the Portsmouth direct line of the South Western railway to Havant the distance is about 70 miles, and by road about 65. Divine worship is held in the Board school, which is licensed for that purpose; there is a chancel screened off. Honorary vestry clerk and lay reader, Thomas B. Baker. Here is a place of worship for Baptists, erected in 1871; also an almshouse, founded and endowed in 1608, by Mrs. Honor Wayte, for four poor honest single women.

[ELD (or WEALD) is a parish 6 miles west from Alton, rth-east from New Alresford and 3½ north-west from lstead station on the South Western railway, in the tern division of the county, Bishop's Sutton hundred, n petty sessional division, union and county court rict, and in the Old Alresford rural deanery, and archconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. es is a very old flint building in the Norman style, conng of chancel, nave. and small wooden western belfry aining one bell: within the communion rails is a superb ument of marble to William Wallop esq. and his third , both full length and recumbent; he is in complete our; as a work of art it is of the finest order; this iam was member of Parliament for Lymington, and high iff of the county, and died without issue in his 84th ; he was the second son of Sir Oliver Wallop (ancestor e Earls of Portsmouth), who was knighted at the battle Mustleborough in 1547, and nephew of Sir John Wallop : the interior of the church was thoroughly restored in -5 : there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value about £100, without residence, endowed by the patron, the Earl of Portsmouth, with £48, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners £36, Queen Anne's bounty £6, and the remainder from glebe, and held by the Rev. Frank Edward Bignold: Lord Portsmouth is the lay rector and receives the impropriated tithes, about £400. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1848. The principal landowners are the Earl of Portsmouth and Arthur H. Wood esq. who is lord of the manor. The soil is principally clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and turnips. The area is 2,104 acres; rateable value, £1,477; and the population in 1881 was 246.

LOWER WIELD is about one mile north from the church.

WINCHESTER.

ancient city of Winchester is one of great historical est: it is a parliamentary and municipal borough, union market town, head of a county court district and petty onal division, in Buddlesgate hundred, diocese, archonry and rural deanery of Winchester, Winchester ion, the capital of the county, and a polling place for Western division of Hampshire, 66½ miles from London, orth-east from Southampton, 29 from Salisbury, 37 Chichester, 74 from Dorchester, 27 from Portsmouth, rom Reading and 19 from Basingstoke, whence there anch lines connecting the South Western railway with reat Western at Reading, and with the Dorsetshire and rn lines viâ Bishopstoke junction at Salisbury; a third h line, joining the Reading and Guildford railway at borough, reaches Winchester, viâ Farnham, Alton and ford, and in 1885 the Great Western Railway Company completed a new line to this city from Didcot, viâ Newbury, thus immediately connecting Winchester with their system, and affording a much more direct route from north to south; the city has now two railway stations.

Here, as at a central point, the old post road from London to Southampton is met by six others from Guildford, Portsmouth, Poole, Salisbury, Andover and Whitchurch.

The city is seated on the eastern declivity of a hill, sloping to the right bank of the Itchen, which, dividing at this point, circulates through the streets and meadows in several small streams abounding in trout and other fish; below the city the river is navigable to Southampton, but the canal has entirely fallen into disuse. At the foot of the High street the river is spanned by a stone bridge. This street, about three-quarters of a mile in length, is composed of substantial, well-built houses, many of them ancient, and is intersected at right angles by several other streets, all well paved and supplied with water of the purest quality. Owing to dissensions between the city authorities and the Gas Company, the streets have for some years been lighted with oil.

From the 23rd Edward I. up to the general election of 1880 this city returned two members to Parliament, and previous to the Reform Act of 1832 it was a close borough; by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the representation is reduced to one member.

The city, with its liberties, is under the separate jurisdiction of its own municipality, incorporated by Henry II.: under the Municipal Corporations Act, 5 and 6 William IV. c. 76, this consists of six aldermen and eighteen councillors, from whom the mayor is chosen: the city has a commission of the peace, and quarter sessions are held for the trial of all offences not capital: the Corporation also act as the urban sanitary authority. The Bishop's Court, formerly held twice a week in the cathedral, but now thrice a year, had also jurisdiction for debt and damage over all places which had ever belonged to the see or convent of St. Swithin: in the days of Norman supremacy it was held under an oak, on a spot still called "Cheyney court," from "chene," the French name for that tree; but this court, though still existing, is no longer used. The assizes for the county are held in March and July, at the County Hall, where also the quarter sessions are held.

Winchester was originally called "Caer Gwent," and likewise "Venta Belgarum," having, before the time of the Romans, been occupied by the Iberians, Britons and Belgians. Traces of its fortification by the Romans yet remain, and Roman relics are occasionally found. There are six Roman roads running out of Winchester; these connected the city with (1) Old Sarum (due W.); (2) Cirencester (N.N.W.); (3) Silchester (N.N.E.); (4) Alresford (due E.); (5) Porchester (E.S.E.) and (6) Bitterne or Southampton (due S.). On the retirement of the Romans, Winchester became the metropolis of South Britain, and subsequently of the Kingdom of Wessex and of Egbert's dominion, from which time it was the frequent residence of the English and Norman monarchs, some of whom were crowned and others held parliaments here. The treasury and mint were also established on this spot. In the reign of Athelstan, the famed triumph of Guy, Earl of Warwick, over the Danish giant, Colbrand, in single combat, was achieved in the meadow to the north of the city, named from that occurrence "Danemark mede:" the king is said to have witnessed the encounter from a turret in the north wall, still called "Athelstan's chair:" a representation of this battle is mentioned as existing on the city walls, and Colbrand's axe was preserved in the cathedral treasury till the reign of James I.

To the especial favour of the illustrious Alfred the city owed much of its greatness; and here Emma, mother of Edward the Confessor, is said to have sustained the fiery ordeal. Under the cherishing protection of Henry I. it attained its highest pitch of prosperity, being alike the seat of empire and focus of commerce: its buildings at that time far exceeded their present limits, extending in the several directions to Worthy, Week, St. Cross and "St. Giles' Hill," behind which is "Morne Hill,' or "Magdalen Down:" the city suffered much from a desolating fire in that reign, but more in the contest between Stephen and Matilda. Henry VIII. closed the long annals of its splendour by entertaining for a week within its walls the Emperor Charles V. to whom the round table, popularly called "King Arthur's," but ascribed with more probability to Stephen, and supposed to have originally borne a Mappa Mundi, was exhibited, newly painted and repaired for the occasion, as an unquestionable monument of glorious antiquity.

At the general dissolution of monasteries this city was a prey to fresh devastations, which again were exceeded in the great civil war, when its royal and episcopal castles were both destroyed. The Great Plague, in the reign of Charles II. extended its terrific ravages to Winchester, and an obelisk, on rising ground without the West Gate, marks the spot to which, with the most jealous precautions, the country people brought the provisions necessary to avert the additional calamity of famine, a vessel filled with water being stationed under the walls to receive the money in payment. Charles II. commenced the erection of a new palace, which, being left incomplete, was afterwards converted into a receptacle for prisoners of war, and a barrack capable of holding 2,000 soldiers: its name, the King's House, and many handsome mansions with which the temporary resort of the Court enriched the city, are existing proofs of that transient gleam of returning prosperity.

Winchester is supposed to be possessed of a relic, in the remains of King Alfred the Great, who was buried in Hyde Abbey, though the stone inscribed with his name, and which is supposed to have covered his tomb, has been removed to Corby Castle, Cumberland, the seat of Philip John Canning Howard esq. The Conqueror's survey, called "Domesday Book," was compiled here in 1085, and from this place was issued the charter of Ethelwolf, confir the tithes to the clergy.

The DIOCESE of WINCHESTER extends over Hants and of Surrey and the Channel Islands, and its foundation be traced from the 7th century until the Dissolution, it was re-founded by Henry VIII.

The venerable cathedral church of St. Swithin, situ on the south side of the city, has by tradition a far rer origin than even that of Canterbury, for it is stated Lucius, king of the Britons, after his conversion A.D. rebuilt, in lieu of a previous temple, the church o British town of Caer Gwent, now called Winchester, and this structure was dedicated to the Saviour in Nove A.D. 169; destroyed by the Danes in 266, it was rebu 293 in honour of St. Amphibalus: a third church, beg Kynegils, king of the West Saxons, was completed b son Kynewald, and dedicated in 647 to the Holy Trinit St. Birinus, first bishop of Dorchester: this edifice w built by St. Æthelwold, bishop of Winchester, and dedi to SS. Peter and Paul, October 20, A.D. 980: in 1079 H Walkelin began to rebuild the church from its founda and finally removed to it, April 8, 1093: and subsequ on the feast of St. Swithin (July 15) translated the re of that saint from the churchyard into the new cath the west front of which was 40 feet in advance of the ex structure: this removal being delayed by violent in gave rise to the adage, that when rain falls on St. Swi day, it will continue for forty successive days. Of W lin's work, the transepts and crypt, with portions t substructure of the nave, remain: the tower fell in o owing, as some believed, to the fact that King Wi Rufus had been buried beneath it; but was rebuilt, to h with the piers, as it now stands. Bishop de Lucy's w Early English—includes most of the eastern part t fabric, and was begun in 1202; the apsidal presbyte w taken down and replaced by the present polygonal Dec te termination, in 1330: the Norman clerestory and tri u between the apse and the tower was removed about 35 by Bishop Edyngdon, who also erected the present wes or and a small portion of each aisle: the complete trans m tion of the nave was begun in 1394 by Wykeham, and ei left incomplete at his death in 1404, was finished b successors: the Norman aisles of the presbytery w r constructed by Bishop Fox and Prior Silkstede, in 15-28 the side screens erected in 1524, and the lady ap lengthened eastwards, 1470-1524.

The cathedral stands in a spacious close crosseoy magnificent avenue of elms and lime trees leading up th west front, the finest in England of those which he n towers: the exterior, with the exception of the panell ea end, is plain and sombre, and the low heavy lanter we furnishes almost the only relief to its great length of line Winchester being, in fact, the longest cathedral in E and its exterior measurement exceeding that of St. Alb s b 27 feet 8 inches; but the richness and grandeur th interior amply atone for the want of impressiveness wit and make it, in this respect, incomparably the first non English minsters. The ground plan comprises a ve eleven bays; transepts of three bays each; presby y o choir of five bays, and an eastern lady chapel of thre ays all having aisles; and a central tower, 50 feet by feet and 140 feet high: the total internal length is 54 feet transept 208 feet, nave 250 feet, and the general he t 7 feet.

The west front, 118 feet wide, consists of a pelle gable, set between hexagonal panelled turrets, crown wit spirelets: there are three porches, and over the entra one a gallery for singers on Palm Sunday: the west ndow 47 by 32 feet, has Perpendicular glass, and on the ex the gable above is a canopied niche containing a st ue William of Wykeham. The nave "exhibits one f t most curious instances of transformation from one yle architecture to another that has been preserved to ; f although at present a complete and perfect specime of t fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, it is yet in the he t a core of its structure, from the ground to the roof, the igi building commenced, if not completed, by Bishop Wa lin the veneer of Perpendicular masonry thus laid o r t Norman work is constructed of stone from the quaies Quarr Abbey in the Isle of Wight: instead of t th vertical divisions of pier arch, triforium and cleston which distinguished the Norman nave, each bay o Wy ham's nave is divided into two parts only; the le y arch carries a triforium gallery, but this is complet y s ordinated to the clerestory above it; the roof i r vaulted in stone, the work of Cardinal Beaufort an Bi Waynflete.

At the west end of the north aisle is a large ib or gallery, facing both into the nave and aisle, a l s ported by arches springing from the piers, with a ne inclosure above: it was intended for minstrels or w ch and is now used as a depository for the episcopal r ste ler the sixth bay from the west, on the south side, stands font of black marble, of the time of Walkelin, consisting square basin, sculptured on the sides with various sym- s and the acts of St. Nicholas of Myra, and is supported on cular ribbed pedestal with detached shafts at the angles: ler the second bay from the east end stands the tomb of hop Morley, 1686, with his mitre and staff suspended ve it: immediately opposite, on the south side, is Bishop ngdon's chantry, 1345-66; more to the west, on this , is the fine chantry of William of Wykeham, the panelled eens of which inclose the whole space within two piers: hin, on an altar tomb, is a recumbent effigy of Wyke- n, fully vested, with pastoral staff. The nave aisles are eved on the outside by buttresses, rising into tall eketed pinnacles: in the south aisle is a monument by kman to Dr. Warton, head master of the college, 1800, n epitaph by Dr. Parr: there are other monuments here Dean Cheyney, 1760; Sir George Prevost, 1816, and hop Tomline, 1820: on the north side is a memorial to hop Hoadley, 1761: near the south-west door are sus- ded the colours of the 97th (2nd Batt. Royal West Kent) ment: the adjoining wall bears the names of the officers men who fell in the Crimean war, 1854-5, and the west dow of the south aisle is also a memorial to this regi- nt. The east end of the nave, owing to the existence of crypt, which extends as far as the second pier of the e west of the tower piers, is considerably raised, and ns a wide platform, approached by a fine divided flight en steps, the transepts being reached by stairs from the es.

he choir, continued one bay westward into the nave, is rated from it by a screen of oak, designed by the late G. G. Scott R.A. and erected as a memorial to Bishop berforce and Dean Garnier: the canopied stalls, of black mandy oak, date from about 1296, and form a series of nples, wonderfully varied and exquisitely finished, of the st Early Decorated woodwork to be found in the king- : the misericords are late Early English: the upper of desks dates from 1545, and bears the initials of ry VIII., Bishop Gardiner and Dean Kingsmill: the op's throne is a modern work, designed by Mr. Garbett: pulpit was erected by Prior Silkstede, 1498-1524: the n, shown in the Exhibition of 1851, was erected in 1854 cost of £2,350.

he eastern portion of the cathedral affords specimens of y style of architecture from the Conquest to the Refor- ion. The presbytery, extending from the eastern tower s to the reredos, dates from about 1320-50: the piers arches are Decorated: the triforium, like that of the e, is represented by a passage through the openings of clerestory, fenced with a screen of quatrefoils: the roof ulted in wood: the lofty reredos, rising above the height ne screens, and filling the whole space at the back of the r, is one of the finest examples of tabernacle work his country, and it incloses a large altar-piece by West he Raising of Lazarus: above, a vacant cruciform space ks the place once covered by a jewelled rood, over ch, it is recorded, Knut hung the crown he wore when ebuked the adulation of his courtiers on the shore of the mes: the three tiers of niches were formerly filled with ues: the reredos is pierced on each side by a door ing into the inclosed space at the back: the presbytery osed at the sides by traceried screens, erected by Bishop and Cardinal Beaufort, and bear the date 1525: upon e screens, on either side and under each pier arch, are mortuary chests of wood, painted and gilt in the Re- sance style, and containing the remains of the West n Kings, Queen Emma, Knut, William Rufus and the ops Wini and Alwyn: on the floor, near the tower s, is a plain coped tomb of Purbeck marble, indicating spot where the body of Rufus was first interred. The e behind the reredos was the feretory, where the feretra hrines of the patron saints were placed: at its eastern is a raised platform, seven feet broad, extending from to side; and at the back of this a wall, ornamented on eastern side with nine decorated tabernacles: inclosing feretory on the north is the chantry of Bishop Gardiner 1-55), and opposite to it, on the south side, that of op Fox (1501-29), restored throughout by Corpus Christi ge, Oxford, which he founded in 1516: the stained east low is filled with Perpendicular glass, chiefly the work ox, some being of Wykeham's time.

he low aisles of the presbytery, continued eastward nd the feretory, are separated from the central aisle by des of three arches, and terminate eastward in chapels: aisles, very Early English, are lined on either side by ant arcading, and lighted by coupled windows, between pair of which rise clustered shafts supporting a plain ned vault: on the north side of the central aisle stands magnificent canopied chantry of Bishop Waynflete 7-86), with effigy, the whole of which has been re- ed at the cost of Magdalen College, Oxford, founded by him in 1458: under the corresponding arch on the opposite side is the chantry of Cardinal Beaufort (1404-47) with his effigy in the robes of a cardinal, and between these chantries lies the recumbent cross-legged effigy of a knight in chain mail of the 13th century, believed to represent Sir Arnold de Gavaston: against the wall of the south aisle is a monument to Sir John Clobery, 1686: the eastern chapel of the north aisle, called "the chapel of the Guardian Angels," from the figures on the vaulting, contains a recumbent figure in bronze of Sir Richard Weston, knight, first Earl of Portland of that family, K.G. and Lord Treasurer, who died 16th March, 1634: here also is the tomb of Bishop Mews, 1706, with his mitre and staff suspended above it: near the entrance, on the north side, is a half figure holding a heart, and representing Bishop Aymer or Ethelmarus de Lusignan or De Valence (1250-61), half-brother to King Henry III., who died at Paris, 4th December, 1261, and was buried in the church of St. Genevieve; his heart, however, at his own request, being conveyed hither and interred, with the following inscription:—

"Corpus Ethelmari cujus cor nunc tenet istud Saxum Parisiis morte datur tumulo. Ob. anno 1261."

The eastern chapel of the south aisle, built by de Lucy, was fitted up as a chantry by Bishop Langton (1493-1500), and is called by his name: the exterior is arcaded in three tiers, and the interior contains woodwork of very rich character and highly wrought vaulting with the rebuses of Langton and Prior Hunton: in this chantry stands the altar tomb of Bishop Langton. Between the aisle chapels and projecting some distance beyond them eastward is the Lady Chapel, partly the Early English work of de Lucy, but finished in the Perpendicular style by Priors Hunton and Silkstede between 1470 and 1524: the western half of the chapel has elaborately carved panelling, seats and desks, and a screen of perfect design and workmanship: the walls retain some ancient paintings illustrative of the legendary history of the Virgin, and there is a vaulted roof of beautiful and complex design: in the chapel is a fine statue by Chantrey of Bishop North (1781-1820), and a chair of antique form, said to have been used by Queen Mary on the occasion of her marriage with Philip of Spain, which took place here 25th July, 1554: on the pavement at the entrance to the chapel is a slab of grey marble, said to mark the burial place of Bishop de Lucy (1189-1204).

The transepts (1079-1107) are very plain Norman, of two periods, the earlier portion being distinguishable by its plain groined vaults and smaller piers: both transepts have triforium and clerestory in divisions of nearly equal height: the northern gable has a marigold window with Perpendicular tracery, and the south, an intersecting arcade: each wing has eastern and western aisles, and at the end of each is an aisle of two arches, raised to the level of the pier arch: in the north transept at the back of the stalls is the Chapel of the Holy Sepulchre, the walls of which are ornamented with rude paintings of the 13th century, illustrative of "the Passion:" here also is an altar tomb, with effigy by Chantrey, to the Rev. Frederick Iremonger, prebendary, 1820: in the eastern aisle of the south transept is Silkstede's chapel, inclosed by stone traceried screens, and displaying some elaborate iron work of late character: in the chapel is a plain slab of black marble with inscription, over the tomb of Izaak Walton, "the patriarch of anglers," who died here at the house of his son-in-law, prebendary Hawkins, Dec. 15th, 1683: in the western aisle stand some oak presses: in the transept itself is a rude bench, possibly Norman, and at the north end, next the stalls, the monument of Sir Isaac Townsend, 1731; the ancient sacristy on the west side, is now used as a chapter house and library, and contains a copy of the Vulgate of the 12th century, richly illuminated: in this transept has more recently been placed a very beautiful marble monument to the late Bishop Wilberforce (1869-73), and a cenotaph to Bishop Sumner (1820-7). The tower, rising two stages only above the roof, has in each face three noble Norman windows, with chevron mouldings: the interior was ceiled in 1634: the enormous piers were enlarged from the old ones after the fall of the former tower. The crypt, which extends from the nave to the eastern extremity of the church, is of rude Norman work, corresponding in style to that of the transepts: it is entered from the north transept, and is interesting as indicating conclusively the original plan of the Norman cathedral.

In addition to the monuments already noticed, there are other memorials to Bishops de Rupibus, 1244; Courtenay, 1493; Cowper (brass), 1595; Willis, 1734; Tomline, 1827; to Baptist Levinz, Bishop of Sodor, 1697; Elizabeth Montagu, 1800; and Jane Austen, 1817, authoresses; and to Canon Poulter, 1853. In October, 1883, a memorial window was erected by the officers and men of the 60th Rifles, to their comrades who fell in the Afghan, South African and Egyptian campaigns of 1879-82. The cathedral underwent a thorough repair during the sixteen years, 1812-28. The registers of baptisms and burials date from 1599, and of marriages from 1603.

The cloisters on the south side, together with the chapter house and other buildings, were taken down by Bishop Horne in 1563; the chapter house, 98 by 37 feet, stood in front of the south transept, from which it was separated by a stype or passage: a row of Norman arches, now open to the Close, formed the communication with the cloisters, and adjoining these is an elegant Early English doorway: on the west side of the Close are some vaulted apartments, one of which is used as a kitchen: the present deanery, formerly the prior's house, has three external arches, and a vaulted passage of the time of Henry III.; the dean's stable, to the south, is a curious wooden structure of the time of Edward I. and retains its original roof.

Wolvesey Castle, the ancient episcopal residence, built in 1138, by Henry de Blois, Bishop of Winchester, nephew to Henry I. was pleasantly situated on a branch of the Itchen, a short distance south-east of the cathedral: it remained entire until the Civil Wars of Charles I. when it shared the destruction of the royal castle: its picturesque ruins, principally those of the keep, and of the lofty and battlemented walls, are of considerable extent, and nearly all clothed with ivy, or concealed by trees and shrubs: the walls of the keep, and a great part of the outer walls are nearly perfect; and it is evident from their strong defensive character that they originally formed part of the external defences of the city. Close to Wolvesey Castle stands the episcopal palace erected by Bishop Morley in 1684, which is now let to the head master of the college, and is used for lecture-rooms &c.: the Bishop's residence is Farnham Castle, Surrey.

The city comprises the following parishes:—St. Bartholomew, Hyde, is the northern parish of the city of Winchester. The church, which is ancient and picturesque, adjoins the ruins of Hyde Abbey, and is said to have been built from the materials of the abbey, which is probably true in part, since some of its features do not appear to belong to the places they now occupy: it consists of a chancel, with north aisle, nave of four bays, north transept, south porch and a late western tower containing one bell: the chancel, which was in ruins at the commencement of the present century, was entirely rebuilt about 1844 by a former vicar, the Rev. W. Williams: a north aisle was added to the chancel by W. Barrow Simonds esq. formerly the principal resident in the parish; and the north transept was enlarged about the same time: the nave was re-roofed, and its northern aisle completed in the year 1880: the main entrance is by the south porch, within which is a very fine Norman doorway: the vicarage house was considerably enlarged under the late vicar, the Rev. C. Sloggett: there are 500 sittings, of which 250 are free. The register dates from the year 1563. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £285, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Lewis Macnaughtan Humbert M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, Hon. Canon of Winchester and rural dean and surrogate.

St. John's church, situated in St. John's street, is an interesting building of mixed styles, chiefly of the period of transition from the Norman to the Early English style, with later additions: it is constructed of flint and stone, and in plan consists of three parallel aisles of unequal length, caused by the eastern wall of each following the line of the street, which cuts obliquely across the east end of the church, making the north aisle the longest of the three: the chancel and nave, under a single roof, form three bays, but there is no chancel arch: at the first bay from the east end, a tall Perpendicular screen crosses both nave and aisles, and part of the rood-loft remains, with the passage through the walls on both sides: the rood-loft stairs still exist in a 15th century turret on the south side: the sides of the chancel are partly inclosed by Decorated screens of the 14th century, and the sacrarium by stonework, pierced by a hagioscope on either side and retaining a Perpendicular piscina and a single sedile: the aisles are unusually wide: at the east end of the north wall is an arched recess, and below it an altar tomb, panelled with quatrefoils, inclosing shields, bearing the emblems of the Passion, but without figure or inscription: the tower, which is placed at the west end of the south aisle, is a Perpendicular work of the 15th century, built in three stages, chiefly of hard chalk, faced internally with ashlar, and cased on the outside with flint and stone: it has an embattled parapet and contains 5 bells: there is a south porch adjoining the tower, and another entrance through the rood stair turret: the church has some good bench ends of the 14th century, a panelled octagonal font, and a pulpit of the Perpendicular period; over the communion table is a reredos of Venetian work, and above this two modern frescoes of St. Cecilia and St. Catherine: and there are four stained windows: the organ was presented by the vicar: there are 200 sittings, all of which are free. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1595, marriages 1610, burials 1611. The living is a vicarage, tithe rentcharge £125, net yearly value £240, including 58 acre of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held s 1871 by the Rev. Henry Compton Dickins M.A. fellow of College, Oxford.

St. Lawrence's church, Great Minster street, is a s and plain building of Perpendicular character, the orig features of which, save the east window and the tower, l been destroyed; it is constructed of flint and stone, and sists of choir, nave, western porch and an embattled wes tower, dating from c. 1367-1405, and containing 5 bells: font is square, with cinquefoiled panels, and there is a parish chest of Elizabethan date: there are 180 sittings of which are free. The register of baptisms and bu dates from 1760, marriages 1754. The living is a rect gross yearly value £143, without residence, in the gi the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1871 by the Rev. H Manning Richards M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford.

St. Maurice, St. Mary Kalendar and St. Peter, Colebr are united rectories: the church of St. Mary Kalendar on the south side of the High street, and that of St. Pet the south-eastern part of the city: the church of St. Ma which now serves for all three parishes, is situated in street, eastward of the site of St. Mary's, and is an ec of brick, rebuilt in 1841, in imitation of the Early En style, and consist, of chancel, clerestoried nave, a north porch and a tower of the 15th century, contain bells: it retains a Norman doorway, a fine 15th cen chest and some remains of a fine Decorated screen, verted into altar rails: the east window is stained: organ was presented by a former Earl of Carnarvon: are 800 sittings, of which 400 are free. The register from 1575. The living is a rectory, net yearly value in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since by the Rev. James Henville Thresher M.A. of New Co Oxford.

St. Michael's church, Kingsgate street, is an edifi flint and stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisti chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch a tower containing 5 bells: the church was rebuilt in when the arcades were removed and the building conv into a square preaching house: in 1882 it was again par rebuilt, reseated and a new chancel erected: the to which belonged to the old church, is at the south angle and is a plain structure of the Perpendicular pe on one of the walls is an ancient sun-dial of the 13th tury: there are 350 sittings, of which 100 are free. register dates from the year 1634. Francis Thomas Madge M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, minor canon of Winchester, and sacrist.

The general charities, for distribution in money and kind, amount to about £500 a year.

The Hospital of St. Cross, at Sparkford, one mile from Winchester, was founded in 1136 by Henry de Blois, Bishop of Winchester, for poor men, described in the charter of 1185 as "poor impotent men, reduced in strength as rarely to be able to support themselves without the assistance of another," and these were to be provided with "garments and beds suitable to their infirmities." In 1445, the Hospital having been in existence for some three centuries, Cardinal Beaufort (then Bishop of Winchester) conceived the idea of engrafting upon it a far larger and more complete scheme. With the consent of the Master and Brethren of St. Cross, he erected upon ground closely adjacent to the church of St. Cross, and to the buildings then occupied by the Brethren, that quadrangle, part of which still exists, with its original features unimpaired; and, at the same time, provided endowment for thirty-five Brethren, three Sisters, and two Priests. The Cardinal lived to see the buildings completed, and shortly after his death the fraternity of the Almshouse of Noble Poverty (as he named this memorial of his goodwill to men), was fully established with its prescribed number of Brethren and Sisters; it was placed by charter under the government of the Master of St. Cross, but was directed to be, and was, managed as a totally distinct institution. The gowns and badges of the Brethren differed from those of the Hospital, the buildings were separate, and the endowments of the Almshouse clearly defined. After the year 1557 it is difficult to find traces of the Brethren of Noble Poverty, and many of the possessions of the Almshouse seem to have been altogether alienated. In 1696 the Master and Brethren of the hospital publicly repudiated the trust of the Beaufort foundation, and pulling down their own buildings, occupied part of the Beaufort buildings with the Brethren of the Hospital, gutted another part so as to make a house for the Master, and pulled down one side of the quadrangle as useless; thus leaving only seventeen sets of rooms available for Brethren out of the original thirty-five sets. Successive Masters continued to enrich themselves with large sums, raised by letting the estates of both foundations for lives, upon payment of fines, and the Brethren were elected without regard to the conditions imposed by the Charter. Brethren of the Almshouses there were none; these abuses were at length, about 1840, made the subject of proceedings in Chancery, and a Board of Trustees was appointed, who are amenable to the Charity Commissioners; the trustees are fourteen in number, of whom five, including the Master of the Hospital, are ex-officio. Under the scheme approved 22nd June, 1855, and modified 20th March, 1857, the foundation of Cardinal Beaufort has been revived, the first Brother admitted in October, 1881, and four more since that date; these are now to be persons who "have been reduced by misfortune from independence to poverty," while the Brethren of St. Cross are to be men "so reduced in strength as not to be able to work;" the scheme also sanctions the appointment of a resident nurse or nurses. There are now thirteen Brethren on the foundation of Henry de Blois, who receive 5s. a week and cloth gowns yearly; and four on the Beaufort foundation, together with a porter, cook and some pensioners. In 1868 the gross yearly income of the Hospital was £1,922 and the expenditure about £1,800; and it was then estimated that the annual value of the property, on the falling in of all the leases, would considerably exceed £8,000.

The most direct way from the city to St. Cross is by Kingsgate street, and then across a pleasant meadow called "Barton Court," from which a footpath leads to the entrance of the Hospital, a large but undecorated gateway opening into a small and narrow courtyard, inclosed on either hand by low buildings, much modernised: on the left or east side these consist chiefly of Hundred Men's hall, now a brew-house, where once that number of almsmen were fed daily: on the west side are the stables, kitchen, larder, and bread room: the buildings at the south end of the court-yard include the gateway erected by Cardinal Beaufort, which leads to the great quadrangle: it is a massive square tower, rising nobly above the high roofs on each side, and is well supported by buttresses and by an octagonal turret at the south-west angle: the quadrangle is completely surrounded by buildings on three sides, and the nave of the church partially closes its southern boundary: to the left of Beaufort's gate house is the porter's lodge, where a horn of beer and a manchet of bread are offered to every visitor: to the right is the hall, 45 feet by 24 feet, entered from the quadrangle by a flight of steps; it retains a screen, above which is a gallery, overhanging the entrance: at the east end, which is wainscoted, is a raised daïs and on the wall a Flemish triptych, with paintings of the Holy Family, St. Catherine and St. Barbara: the hall is lighted by mullioned windows of graceful design, the upper portions of which contains some remains of ancient glass, displaying a cardinal's hat, and the motto "A honor et lyesse:" the open timber roof is of Irish oak: under the hall is a vaulted crypt, supported by a central shaft: adjoining the hall westward is the residence of the master, some windows of which are adorned with ancient glass taken from the hall, and consisting of Scripture subjects and shields of arms: the west side of the quadrangle is occupied by the houses of the Brethren, each of whom has three rooms and a separate garden: on the east side is an open ambulatory or cloister, 135 feet in length, partly embattled, with a stair turret leading to chambers above, originally occupied by the three sisters who tended the sick Brethren: at the south end of this ambulatory was the infirmary, with a window opening into the north transept of the church, which completed the quadrangle on this side.

The church, which stands at the south-east angle of the quadrangle, is a cruciform structure of mixed styles, consisting of a choir of two bays, with aisles or chapels, transepts, nave of three bays, north porch and a central tower of two stages, containing 2 bells: though small, it has all the features of a conventual or collegiate church, and is lofty and stone-vaulted throughout: the eastern part of the building exhibits work of two distinct dates, the lower part of the external walls being that of De Blois, while the rest is Transitional: the east elevation displays a high-pitched gable between buttresses rising into square turrets of two stages with a flat top; the lower stage of each is arcaded, and the upper relieved with slender banded shafts: there are three tiers of windows, corresponding respectively to the aisles, the triforium and clerestory, but the lowermost are blocked and covered on the interior with ancient paintings; in the gable are two circular windows divided by a pilaster: the choir is, as at Romsey, surrounded by a stone wall, and stone screens inclose the sacrarium on either side: there is also some good screen work of wood, a piscina and credence and some very curious cinque-cento stalls, carved with the date 1572: the central pier on each side supporting the arches of the short arcade is Perpendicular and octagonal, but the original bases remain; above is the celebrated triforium of intersecting arches, the windows in which are merely openings cut through for the purpose of admitting more light; save at the east end there is no trace of a passage: the clerestory has Norman windows: at the end of the choir aisles are the sites of altars, and in the north choir aisle is a singular enriched piscina on a low shaft, and two elegant brackets attached to the shafts of one of the piers: at the angle of the south choir aisle and transept is the famous triple arch, both portions of which are ornamented with the chevron and cable mouldings; the transept portion has the appearance from without of a blocked doorway, but internally contains several recesses or aumbries.

The transepts are of somewhat later date than the choir, some portions being almost Early English; the lower windows are round-headed with rich mouldings, the upper range on the north side are lancets, and on the south, Norman; at the ends of the transepts the domestic buildings of the hospital join the church; at the south end is a vaulted chamber, with aumbries, the only remaining part of the Norman Hospital; and the north wing is united to the ambulatory, and opens to it by a small Perpendicular doorway: the tower, which is low and massive, was originally entirely open to the church: the upper stage displays on the exterior a row of blank arches on each face, now built up, but at one time forming a sort of open gallery, or outer triforium; a moulded string course finishes the plain parapet.

The nave is chiefly Early English, with some marks of the Transition period, and Decorated insertions; the arcades are supported by unbroken cylindrical columns, and the clerestory windows, which with the west window, form the latest portion of the church, illustrate the change from the Late Geometrical to the flowing style of tracery, and date from about 1292: the west front, admirable in its design, has a splendid window of five lights, with rich tracery, and below it an elegant doorway, with double entrance: in the gable is a small lancet, and on either side a strong flanking buttress, rising above the parapet: the north porch is Early English and has a vaulted chamber over the entrance: the total length of the church is 150 feet and of the transept 120 feet: there are several monumental remains: a Transitional niche occurs in the south transept, and in the north wing one of the Early Decorated period: in the nave is a brass to John Campden, archdeacon and master of the hospital, 1382, besides others; in the south aisle is a monument to Mr. Cornwall, speaker of the House of Commons, ob. 3 In 1860 the nave was thoroughly repaired under the direction of Mr. W. W. Butterfield, architect: in 1861 the Norman work at the east end was partially opened and a heavy screen of deal removed, the upper windows being at the same time filled with stained glass by various donors: in 1862-3 the organ was erected and in 1867 it was inclosed in a new case; in August, 1863, an anonymous donor, known as "Z.O." having forwarded the sum of £500 for the repair and decoration of the east end, this sum, with additions, was expended in 1864 in the restoration of the choir, and the church was re-opened October 19th, 1865: a further sum of £250 was forwarded by "Z.O." in 1866 for the renovation of the west window and the collection and re-arrangement of the ancient glass; and subsequently ten sums of £50 each were given by Melville Portal esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Laverstoke House, and nine others for decoration and fitting. The Park, which extends from the hospital southward to the banks of the Itchen, is well timbered and contains an extensive rookery; a footway leads past the church through "Pigeon House Mead" towards the college. The mastership, which is in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, has been held since 1868 by the Rev. William Gerrard Andrewes M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford, who is also rector of St. Faith's.

St. Elizabeth's College, founded in 1301 by John de Pontissara, or Pontois, Bishop of Winchester, for a provost and six priests, stood in St. Stephen's mead; the foundations may still be distinctly traced.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE.—The College of St. Mary, situate in the south-eastern suburb of the city, and outside the boundary of the ancient city walls, was founded by William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester (1367-1405), who laid the first stone March 26th, 1387, in the chapel, and entered the college March 28th, 1396; the site originally acquired by the founder was about an acre and a half in extent, bounded on the north by the king's highway, on the south by a field called "Otterbourne's Mede," and the ground of the Carmelites, on the east by a branch of the Itchen and on the west by the gardens of the Sustern Spital; and here, according to tradition, there stood during the Roman period a temple of Apollo, or College of Flamens, for the education of youth. The college was granted a royal charter 28 Sept. 1396; and this was confirmed by Edward IV and by all succeeding monarchs, except Queen Mary, till the end of the reign of Charles II. The college buildings are arranged in two quadrangles, occupying an area of about 2 by 300 feet, with detached cloisters on the south; the outer front, in College street, originally built with a view of defence, presents a nearly blank wall pierced by a few insignificant windows, but relieved by a noble entrance gateway tower with turret and at the west end by the master's house: over the arch in the upper story is a niche with a figure of the Virgin; but the small niches which flanked the arch have been removed; the outer court or quadrangle, 128 by 63 feet, has to the right the porter's lodge, brewhouse, workshops and warden's stables, the front of which is a low wall with a lion's head, a relic of St. Elizabeth's College; to the left are modern buildings; on the east side is the warden's lodge, built by Warden Harman in 1597, partly rebuilt and improved by Warden Nicholas in 1692, at a cost of £1,375, and newly fronted by Mr. Ripton in 1832-3: in the gallery are portraits of the founder, various wardens, and other distinguished persons.

The middle gateway tower, between the two quadrangles, resembles the outer tower, but is loftier and more ornamented, having on either side statues in niches, of the Virgin, the angel Gabriel, and the founder; over the entrance is the election chamber, a panelled apartment where the elections to the College and to New College, Oxford, are held in July in each year: on the walls and over the windows of the adjoining buildings are curious symbolical paintings: the south side of the inner quadrangle is included by the chapel, with the muniment tower at its north-east angle, the refectory, and the cellar, with buttery, pantry and a room above it: the chapel, 93 feet by 30 feet and 50 feet high, is approached by a low vestibule or ambulatory under the refectory, which also leads to the cloisters, which are of six bays, with a vaulted roof of Irish oak, and curious tracery in wood: the nine windows are filled with painted glass, restored from the original patterns in 1822-3: the fine east window displays the genealogy of Jesse, whose prostrate figure adorns the base; the glass, dating from a little earlier than 1525, was chiefly the work of Bishop Fox, whose arms and motto, "Est deo gracia," are introduced, but some of Wykeham's glass remains at the top: the window contains figures of Richard II. and Edward III. and the carpenter, mason, glass-painter, and clerk of the works at their devotions, with their names on scrolls, hers taken from Holy Scripture; it was restored by Mr. ıve, and has been described by Bishop Lowth, in a poem ·itten as a school imposition and published in 1729; the terior was formerly surrounded by panelled wainscotting the Ionic order, set up by Warden Nicholas (1679-1711) the sacrifice of the stalls and reredos; but this was re-oved on the restoration of the chapel, the ancient stalls rtly replaced, and the original reredos reproduced: the mer altar-piece of the "Annunciation" by Moine, pre-ıted by Dr. Burton, head-master, 1724-74, is now in the ırden's house: the silver-gilt candlesticks were given by . Christopher Eyre, sometime second master; the organ, ıced on the north side, over the entrance to the sacristy, s built by the elder Harris, and improved by Green: the gle lectern was presented by some of the college prefects 1848: at the south-west angle is the chantry and tower, ilt from bequests by Warden Thorburn, who died October th, 1450, aided by contributions from Warden Chandler d Bishops Bekynton and Waynflete, and erected in 1475-, at a cost of £370; but the unskilfulness of its construc-n for some time threatened the ruin of the western end the chapel; in 1777 strong supports dividing the chantry o two parts, were erected under the direction of Mr. nes Essex F.S.A. architect, of Cambridge, and about 1865 was completely rebuilt as a memorial to Wardens lliams and Barter, the two last wardens of the New llege and Winchester respectively, and is now called "the ver of the two wardens:" a Latin inscription on the south ll commemorates its re-erection; it stands on the site of wooden campanile built by Wykeham, and is 100 feet in ght, with angle turret and crocketed pinnacles, and con-ns [ ] bells: the chantry is now used as a baptistery, and a font presented by the late Dr. Moberley, when head-ster: there are also memorial windows here to the Rev. arles Wordsworth M.A. second-master, 1835-45, and now hop of St. Andrew's, put up in 1848 by the commoners l scholars, and to Mr. J. D. Walford M.A. 40 years thematical master: the sacristy on the north side has a ıding stair leading to the muniment room, which is ılted, and contains in presses the archives of the college, ending over a period of three centuries, mitre cases used travelling, and lockers for copes: in the ambulatory lead-to the chapel is a monument to those Wykehamists who in the Crimean war of 1854-5.

The ascent to the refectory, 62 feet by 30 feet, is by a ble flight of steps: a screen crosses it at the lower end, l at the upper end is a daïs for the high table; the wains-was put up by Dean Fleshmonger in 1540, and there is ne open oak roof, with louvre: the audit room, in the ldings west of the refectory, is hung with Arras tapestry blazoned with arms and is paved with Flemish tiles; it ıtains also the founder's treasure chest, some antique niture and arms: at the entrance is the famous picture "the trusty servant," an allegorical figure, with explana-y verses in Latin and English: the cellar has groined ılting, supported by a single pillar.

The cloisters, united to the main buildings by the ambu-ory and Warden's tower, are 132 feet square, with walks feet wide; they consist of nine panes on each side, sepa-ed by buttresses, and each pane is divided by mullions three quatre-foiled lights, with Perpendicular tracery: the midst of the garth, which is used as a cemetery, nds the chantry, erected under the bequest (1420) of John mond, of Sparsholt, Hants, steward to the founder; it is feet long by 18 wide, and has a richly groined roof, the ses of which bear the arms of Henry VI., John of Gaunt, l others: a portion of the reredos remains, and in the east ndow is stained glass brought from Thorburn's Chantry: ve is a small ceiled room, formerly a vestry or scrip-ium: this building was converted into a library at the formation, improved in 1629 and again in 1740; Fromond l his wife were both interred within it: in the cloisters many brasses and inscriptions: at the time of the res-ation of the chapel the brasses therein were taken up and t, but in 1883 were renewed by the munificence of Edwin shfield esq. LL.D., F.S.A. from rubbings of the old brasses en by him when a boy at the college.

The original school room was beneath the refectory: present school room, a building of brick with stone ins, was begun in September, 1683, and finished June h, 1687, at a cost of £2,599 18s. 9d. of which Warden holas contributed the sum of £1,477; its dimensions are by 36 feet, and its broad projecting eaves, high pitched f, and pedimented central front give it a noble and sub-ntial appearance: over the principal entrance is a fine tue in bronze of the founder, executed by Caius Gabriel ber, father of Colley Cibber, and put up in 1682: the erior is wainscotted up to the sills of the windows, which deeply embayed: along the room are four parallel ranges ak benches, on which are placed the scobs or boxes; the er lids of these serving as a shelter, the lower as desks: the west wall is the well-known tablet painted with re-presentations of a mitre and pastoral staff; a pen, ink-horn and sword; and a rod; and beneath each combined symbol the apt legend "Aut disce, aut discede: manet sors tertia, cædi:" the infirmary was built in 1640, by Warden Harris, on the former grounds of the Carmelites: the garden or south front was added in 1775, by the Rev. John Taylor M.A. fellow of the college: the college meads consist of part of the domain of St. Elizabeth's College, and are bounded on the east by "Non Licet" gate: the ball court and school court now occupy Otterburne's mead, and the playing grounds have been enlarged by taking in out-lying meads; new fives and racquet courts have been built, a gymnasium erected, and a bathing place constructed in Elizabeth meadow.

There are thirty scholarships at New College, Oxford, open to all boys alike who have received their education at the school, whether as scholars or commoners. Attached to the school are also the Goddard scholarships, founded in 1846, of £25 a year, tenable for four years, to which £5 is added every year from the Pitt fund; the gold and silver medals given by Her Majesty the Queen; prize books, one in each class, given by Lord Saye and Sele; the Warden's and Fellows' prizes; the Duncan prizes, given by Philip Bury Duncan esq. D.C.L. in 1841-55; the Moore-Stevens prize, and others in natural science, modern languages and literature. The scholarships are open to the competition of all boys who have reached their tenth and not passed their fourteenth birthday: an examination, graduated in difficulty according to the age of the candidates, is held at the college annually during the month of July, notice of which is given in the public papers in March or April preceding; the names of the best of the candidates are arranged upon a roll, but only so many of those as are required to supply the vacancies that may occur during the ensuing year are admitted scholars, and in the order in which the names stand upon the roll: the candidates are examined in elementary religious knowledge, English dictation, arithmetic, Latin composition (verse and prose), construing and parsing in Greek and Latin: the average number of vacancies is 14, and of competitors nearly 150. The college boys are 70 in number, and live in the college, under the care of the Hostiarius, or second-master. Boys called "Commoners" are also admitted into the school for education, but must be resident in the house of one of the privileged tutors, and of these houses there are now nine, situated in the fields beyond Kingsgate street.

Amongst the great public schools for the training of English youth, Winchester College holds a high rank in general estimation; and many of our greatest poets, divines, and statesmen have here received their education. There can be no question that in point of antiquarian interest, quaint customs and associations that last through life, Winchester College stands far before all other public schools. With a régime and constitution which have undergone a very considerable change since the operation of the University and Public Schools Parliamentary Commission, there is still much of the internal discipline, customs and associations of Winchester College which remains as it was from its earliest date, and which has taken such deep and strong root that it will outlive all changes that may even yet in the progress of time be brought to bear upon it. These customs and associations are well known, for happily a Latin hexameter poem exists in the Winchester College library, which describes them exactly as they existed at the period of the Reformation, by Christopher Johnson, a person of considerable note in the age of Queen Elizabeth, and head master from 1560 to 1571: it need not be said that its chief interest is for Wykehamists, though it also has a general interest, as describing the early life of one of the greatest of England's public schools: it had never been published till it was edited by the Rev. Charles Wordsworth M.A. then second-master, and now Bishop of St. Andrew's and fellow of Winchester College, who has added to Johnson's poem a collection of poetry, under the title of "Winchester and its Memories," from his own pen and those of others: the quaintness of one couplet of Johnson's justifies its insertion in this place: he wrote a couplet in the same metre on each warden and each head master down to his own time, respectively eleven and twenty-six in number; his own lines on himself being:—

"Ultimus hic ego sum; sed quam bene, quam male, nolo Dicere:
Qui de me judicet alter erit."

The foundation consists of a warden, six fellows, one head master, one second master, nine house masters, several assistant masters, tutors and extra masters, three chaplains, seventy scholars and sixteen choristers, with a governing body consisting of eleven persons, of whom two are ex-officio. Wykeham's scheme was a grand one: he first built New College in Oxford—the 500th anniversary of which was celebrated on October 15th, 1879—and ten years later he completed the buildings of the sister foundation, the scholars of which were to supply the vacancies in fellowships as they occurred in the elder foundation. Modern legislation, commencing in 1852, has interfered to a very considerable extent with Wykeham's original plan, but so far from showing the slightest symptom of decadence or decay, each society seems to have started into a fresh existence with renewed life and vigour and to be among the most successful and flourishing of ancient institutions adapted to the necessities of modern times: those who wish to read more of the Wykehamical literature may do so in "The life of William of Wykeham," by Lowth; "William of Wykeham and his Colleges," by the Rev. Mackenzie Walcott B.D. of Exeter College, Oxford, precentor of Chichester Cathedral; the work above quoted from by Bishop Wordsworth; and "Wykehamica," a history of Winchester College, by the Rev. Henry C. Adams M.A. late fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, now vicar of Old Shoreham, Sussex.

The city was constituted a guild under royal protection in the 9th century, 100 years earlier than any other on record. It was formerly the seat of the wool staple, and carried on extensive manufactures in that material; its trade is now chiefly confined to the business which is attracted to it on account of its advantageous position in the centre of the county, the agricultural pursuits of the neighbouring population and the transaction here of all matters relating to the administration of the county.

The City Cross, which stands in a somewhat cramped position in the High street, is a light and elegant structure of three stages, erected in the earlier part of the fifteenth century, by the Fraternity of the Holy Cross, and is 43 feet in height; the lower stage, rising from four octangular steps, consists of four open arches, supported by panelled buttresses continued upwards into slender crocketed pinnacles, united by open tracery to the second stage, which is canopied, and exhibits on one side a statue of St. Lawrence; the upper portion is finished with pinnacles and a single shaft, terminating in a cross. A piazza extends from the cross along the south side of the High street.

The Guildhall, situated in High street and opened May 14th, 1873, by Lord Selborne, is a very handsome building of Bath stone, relieved by red Mansfield stone, in the Geometric Gothic style, from designs by Messrs. Jeffery and Skiller, architects, and was erected at a cost of £16,000: the structure is 150 feet long and 53 feet in height, with a central tower, the height of which to the top of the vane is 112 feet: the interior contains offices for the mayor, town clerk and town surveyor, a large assembly room, sessions hall, magistrates' room, committee room and museum, police station and volunteer armoury. Adjoining is a building containing on the ground floor the public reading room and library of 4,000 volumes, and upstairs the School of Art.

To Winchester Castle, the palace of so many kings, tradition has assigned the age of King Arthur, but the later edifice was, without doubt, chiefly of Norman origin: the Conqueror possessed a house or palace here, standing on ground received from Hyde Abbey, and known as "the King's house," and the existing remains appear to occupy the same site. During the reign of Henry II. the castle was frequently repaired, and in 1177 marble columns were prepared for its decoration. Here, in 1206, Prince Henry, afterwards Henry III. was born, and in the sixth year of his reign (1222) extensive works were begun, including the erection of the great hall, now called St. Stephen's Hall, which in the 20 Henry III. (1235-6) was so far completed as to admit of internal decoration; this, as well as the works generally, being superintended by Master Elias, of Dereham; this hall is now the only remaining portion of the castle-palace, and forms a parallelogram 110 feet long by 45 wide consisting of a centre and aisles, divided by arcades of five arches, supported on clustered columns, and lighted by transomed windows of two lights, separated externally by buttresses: at the east end is a small triplet and the bosses in the roof display the irradiated rose of Edward IV. After the reign of Henry III. the castle ceased to be the habitual residence of English monarchs until that of Charles II. in the 30th year of whose reign (1678-9) the corporation received a grant of the site, with the exception of the great hall, which had before then been vested in trustees for the use of the county. On the eastern wall is suspended the famous round table, 18 feet in diameter, painted in radiating bands of green and white, the livery colours of the Tudors, with the Tudor rose in the centre, surmounted by a seated figure of King Arthur, robed and crowned, beneath a canopy, and round the circumference are the names, in black letter, of the twenty-four knights: the poetic historian, John Hardyng, who lived in the reigns of Henry VI. and Edward IV. refers to Arthur's table as still hanging at Winchester, and Leland also mentions it in the reign of Henry VIII. and the existing table, if not substantially that which was originally placed here, is undoubtedly about 400 years old, possibly more, and it appears to have been repainted shortly before the visit of the Emperor Charles V. in 1522. For nearly three centuries the interior of the hall was fitted up as magisterial and assize courts, but new cou were some time since erected and the hall completely resto and decorated.

The Market house in High street, erected in 1857, a brick building: markets are held on Wednesday and Sa day, the latter the principal for agricultural produce. fairs are held on the first Monday in Lent, and the 23rd 24th October; St. Magdalen's (now neglected), on the August; and St. Giles', on the 12th September, for chee this fair, now almost extinct, was at one period the lar fair in England, and extended to 16 days, during wh time no business was allowed to be transacted elsewh within 7 leagues of the hill; it was held on St. Giles' and formed a kind of temporary city, entirely mercan whole streets being appropriated to particular commodi

The corn market is held on Saturdays at the Corn Excha in Jewry street, which is a very handsome and commod building; there are four banks in the city.

The Mechanics' Institution, formed in 1835, occupi handsome building in the square, and has a library of 6 volumes and daily and evening reading rooms, well supp with newspapers, periodicals and reviews: the numbe members is now (1889) about 700.

Winchester is a considerable military station, as he is the Rifle depôt of the King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th ft (of which Field Marshal H.R.H. the Duke of Cambrid is col. in chief), comprising four battalions, to which are t tached four militia battalions; of the Rifle Brigade (Pr Consort's Own) (H.R.H. Duke of Connaught col. in ch of four battalions, to which are also attached four mil battalions; the Hampshire Regiment, or 37th Regime district (37th and 67th foot), has its depôt here, to wh forming its 3rd battalion, is attached the Hampshire Mi which has its head quarters in the city. The Barra erected in the year 1684, stand in a commanding positio the west side of the city, and will hold 2,000 infantry; t are officers' quarters, separate barracks for married sold a hospital, large school-room and gymnasium. Winch is also the head quarters of the Hampshire Yeomanry alry, whose stores are in Minster street, and of the Volunteer Battalion of the Hampshire Regiment, whose h quarters are at the Castle Barracks.

Her Majesty's Prison and House of Correction, bui 1849, together with county Police Station and offices, bu in 1848, stand on West hill, without the west gate, bu partly within the borough.

Races are held annually in July, upon some exte downs, about three miles north-west of the town.

The Royal Hants County Hospital, founded in 1736, the earliest provincial hospital in the kingdom; the y fixed income from endowments is now (1889) about £16 and from subscriptions are about £3,000. The new buil situated in the Romsey road, is a structure of red bri the Elizabethan style, from designs by Mr. W. Butter and was erected at a cost of £30,000: it contains 108 the yearly average number of in-patients is about 600; patients, about 950.

The Winchester Provident Dispensary, situated in Square, was established in 1875, and is supported by v tary contributions and the subscriptions of patients.

Christ's Hospital, founded in 1586 by James Syr has an endowment of about £800 yearly, derived landed property: eight unmarried men above 50 yea age are here provided with a residence and 10s. a each, and four poor boys are maintained and educated. exhibitions, of £15 each, tenable either at Oxford or bridge, are given from this foundation to poor stude these universities for three years, or until they take orders.

St. Catherine's, or College Hill, a singular peninsu elevation, distinguished by a clump of trees, and surro by a circular earthwork, is separated from the meado St. Cross by several branches of the river; it is suppo have been a Roman fortification, communicating wit Roman road to Porchester; on the hill is a curious ma feet square, supposed to have been of ecclesiastical o adjoining which was formerly an ancient chapel, dest by Wolsey: on a hill on the other side, called "Ol Battery," Cromwell placed his camp at the time of the of the city, and his works may still be traced.

Hyde Abbey, founded in 965 by King Edgar, unde wills of King Alfred and his son, Edward the Elder, nally stood within the cathedral precincts, between edifice and the High street, but was removed in the re Henry I. to Hyde, on the north side of the city, in 11 that King and Bishop Giffard: the original foundatio dedicated to the Holy Trinity and SS. Mary and Peter that of Hyde to SS. Peter, Grymbald, Columban and B bas: within its walls were the tombs of St. Grym ed and Edward his son, and those of several other Saxon ces: the Abbey was destroyed soon after the Reformation, its only remains are the precinct walls and the founda- s of the church, for in 1785 the fine and most interesting ains of the abbey were levelled to make room for the Bridewell, since pulled down: ruins of the abbey sup- l materials for the erection of many adjacent buildings, the tower of St. Bartholomew's church in particular is )osed to be wholly composed of them.

any other monastic institutions disappeared at the gene- Dissolution. Of the abbey of SS. Mary and Edburga, ded by Queen Alswitha, in 900, for her own widowed ement, all vestiges are swept away. In St. Stephen's d stood St. Elizabeth's College, for a provost and six ts, founded by Bishop Pontissara, in 1301, and there other religious houses dedicated to the Holy Trinity, ames, and S. Mary Calendar. The hospital of St. Mary dalen was founded before Edward I.: the Dominicans, ciscans and Austin Friars had also houses here.

ie city was anciently surrounded by continuous walls, ing in plan an irregular quadra igle, slightly bulging he south-east and south-west in order to include esey Castle on the one hand, and the Castle proper on ther: these walls were strengthened at intervals, and frequently on the western side, with towers, and ed at different points by gateways, of which only two, King's gate, referred to in connection with St. Swithin's ch, and the West gate, now remain; the latter, erected e reign of Henry III. is a valuable specimen of the ary architecture of that period and stands on the road astle Hill: it is of three stages, with a wide entrance r a depressed moulded arch, flanked by tall buttresses, to the parapet, the centre of which is machicolated; ie side the gate is a postern, and in its upper chamber reserved the standard measures, bushel, gallon, quart ard, fixed by the laws of the Tudor sovereigns.

ong the seats around Winchester are Abbot's Barton, field, Cranbury Park, Crawley and Bambridge, Twyford Wyke Houses; Hursley Park and Shawford; Avington , Stratton Park and Worthy Park. Winchester gives tle of marquess to the Paulet family.

'INCHFIELD (called in the "Domesday Book" nesflet, the manor at that time being held by the Abbey Chertsey) is a parish having a station 1 mile north from village on the London and South Western railway, 39 les from London, 2½ north-east from Odiham and 8½ east m Basingstoke, in the Northern division of the county, rtley Wintney union, Odiham petty sessional division and ndred, Basingstoke county court district, rural deanery of iham, and Winchester archdeaconry and diocese. The irch of St. Mary is a very remarkable specimen of Norman rk; it consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and south ch, and a massive square tower containing 3 bells: the ncel arch is a very elaborate specimen of late Norman, and composed of three receding semicircular arches, ornanted with zigzag mouldings and others of a different racter; the archivolt being enriched with a kind of billet ulding, very unusual and rich in its effect: in the restora- of the church, completed in 1850, some very curious scoes were found on the walls, illustrating the custom of ching scripture lessons by pictures, so common in the ldle ages: it appears that very much care had been towed on this curious specimen of Norman church architure: here are several mural tablets to the Beauclerk ily: there are 230 sittings. The register dates from the r 1662. The living is a rectory, yearly value from comted tithe £323, in the gift of Sir Henry B. P. St. John dmay bart. and held since 1849 by the Rev. Charles deric Seymour M.A. of University College, Oxford. The ingstoke canal passes through this parish. The workhouse for the Hartley Wintney Union is situated in this parish; for particulars see Hartley Wintney. Winchfield House, the seat of the Beauclerk family, is now occupied by Colonel David Magill Crichton Maitland, and is pleasantly situated on an eminence in well-wooded grounds, commanding extensive views of the surrounding picturesque neighbourhood. The principal landowners are Frederick Edward Beauclerk esq. who is lord of the manor, and Sir Henry B. P. St. John Mildmay bart. D.L. The soil is light; subsoil, clay. The crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. The area is 1,572 acres of land and 10 of water; rateable value, £6,636; the population in 1881 was 366.

TUNDERRY GREEN is half a mile south-west; Water Lane Hatch, 1½ miles north; Shapley Heath is 1½ miles north-west.

THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

island lies off the south shore of Hampshire. The Solent eparating it from the mainland, varies from four to six across, while at one point, near Hurst Castle, it is little than a mile. The island is of a lozenge shape, 22½ from east to west, 13 from north to south, about 60 in nference and including 93,341 acres. On the north the slopes to the margin of the sea, woods and meadows hing to the water's edge ; but on the southern shore is cipitous barrier of cliffs, with here and there a stream g through a ravine ; occasionally the coast curves in- and at either extremity is a bold rocky promontory. ological structure is interesting, as it includes several , from the tertiary to the wealden formation, and which ne places are closely compressed together. A high of chalk hills, or downs, stretch from east to west, and higher range runs southward, terminating abruptly at ndercliff, which enjoys a high reputation for its pic- jue scenery and the mildness of the atmosphere : it ts of various shelves, from a quarter to half a mile in th and 6 miles in length, gradually sloping to the sea, l by landslips from the chalk downs. St. Boniface , at Ventnor, is the highest in the island, being about et in height ; on Ashey Down, which is 420 feet above a, is a sea mark, built of stone by the Trinity Board 5. The Needles, at the western extremity, are isolated s of rock, principally chalk and flint ; the Needles light- is on the highest point of this part of the island. St. Catherine's Point, at the southern end, is another ouse : near here is a rock worn by the action of the to the shape of an arch ; the cliffs at this part rise to eight of 600 feet, and are frequented by numbers of ic birds.

re are several singular chasms in the cliffs, or chines, y are called, produced by the continued action of water, ich Shanklin, Blackgang and Luccomb are the princi- The principal bays are Alum Bay and Totland Bay, at estern end of the island, remarkable for sands of varie- hues ; Sandown Bay, with its fine sands, on the south- Freshwater and Brixton Bays, on the south-west ; horness Bay, on the north-west. The principal river island is the Medina, which runs from south to north, ng the island into two parts, termed respectively East Vest Medina : it rises in St. Catherine's Hill and falls he sea at Cowes : it is navigable for ships of small ge to Newport. The river Yar, at the western ex- y, flows almost through the island from south to north. island is under the control of a governor, who is styled overnor and Capt.-General : it forms a magisterial on of Hampshire, and contains the liberties or hundreds st Medina, with 14 townships or parishes, and West a with 16 : it is within the archdeaconry of the Isle of , and diocese of Winchester, and is divided into the deaneries of South-east, West and North-east Medina : arliamentary district it returns one knight of the shire ; orough of Newport returned two members, but was nchised by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885." seaports derive some advantage from supplying the ng lying in Spithead and the neighbouring roads ; but nief source of prosperity to the island is from the ous visitors who resort to its romantic scenery. From ltered position and the mildness of its climate it is a able resort for invalids, more especially those suffering hest complaints ; it is likewise covered with the seats lthy residents.

rainfall of the Isle of Wight is about 30 inches per 1 ; it is measured daily at three places : the amounts 78 were, St. Lawrence, 33½ inches, Newport, 30 inches, ne, 24½ inches. The temperature is remarkably uni- especially along the sheltered region known as the ercliff."

The towns, which are all more or less frequented by pleasure visitors, are Newport, with 9,376 persons ; Ryde, with 11,461 ; West Cowes, with 6,772 ; East Cowes, with 2,512 ; Ventnor, with 5,504 ; Yarmouth, Freshwater and Shanklin, 2,740 ; Sandown, 3,120 ; and St. Helen's, 4,210. Cowes and Ryde, on the north, carry on the chief trade, and are the ports of entrance for steamers from the railway stations on the mainland : and also the head quarters of yacht clubs : there is some intercourse between Yarmouth and Lymington : there are no seaports on the south.

The whole of the parishes in the island are incorporated, for poor law purposes, under a local Act : the Union workhouse is at Carisbrooke. A county court for the whole of the island is held alternately at Newport and Ryde every month. In the island there are large military establishments and at Parkhurst is a convict station. The railways are one from Cowes to Newport ; another from Ryde to Ventnor, having stations at Brading, St. Helens, Bembridge, Sandown and Shanklin ; a line, opened Feb. 1st, 1875, from Sandown to Newport ; one from Newport to Ryde direct ; and the line from Newport to Yarmouth and Freshwater, opened in 1889. Coaches run frequently to various parts of the island, and communication is made with the mainland by steam vessels from Ryde and Cowes to Southampton and Portsmouth.

The Royal Isle of Wight Infirmary, at Ryde, was erected in 1849, at a cost of upwards of £2,000, and is supported by public subscriptions : it was enlarged in 1866 and again in 1882 and 1888, and has now 54 beds : in 1888 the number of in-patients was 468, of out-patients 2,081, and of dental patients 683 : Alex. G. Davey M.D. Alfred Woodward. Frederick J. Greening, Evelyn A. Rich L.R.C.P.Lond. and Thomas A. Buck M.B. medical officers ; W. G. Daish L.D.S. Eng. dental surgeon ; Benjamin Curwen Oldham L.R.C.P. Lond. house surgeon and secretary ; Miss Janetta Fitzpatrick, matron.

The island seems to have received its name from the Iberians, and was an early seat of trade with the continent. After being held by the Britons and Belgians, it was settled by the Romans, who had their chief post at Carisbrooke. When the English conquered Britain, it became a Jutish kingdom, and was a separate commonwealth until seized by the more powerful English kings : in the middle ages it was constituted a feudal kingdom, under the Rivers or De Redvers.

The population in 1861 was 55,362, in 1871, 66,219 and in 1881 73,633 : in the summer time the population is nearly doubled.

THE GEOLOGY OF THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

THE rocks of the Isle of Wight offer to the student an epitome of the geology of the south-east of England. In the splendid sections exposed along the line of coast we are enabled to examine the strata, and trace their relations to each other in a manner which is impossible in inland districts, while the beauty of the scenery, originated by and dependent upon the arrangement of the rockmasses, lends an additional charm to the investigation.

Such a region would be likely to attract, and has attracted, much attention from geologists. In the map of the Island (Sheet 10), constructed by the officers of the Geological Survey, we have an exact representation of the position at the surface occupied by each formation, while the horizontal (Sheet 47) and vertical (Sheet 25) sections also published by the Survey, show the lie of the beds, their thickness, &c., with the greatest accuracy; descriptive of this map and the sections we have an excellent memoir by Mr. Bristow, published in 1862; Professor E. Forbes in 1856 well explained the structure of the northern half of the island in his memoir on "The Tertiary Fluvio-marine Formation of the Isle of Wight."

Of earlier workers we must note Mr Thomas Webster, who wrote some good descriptions of the strata in Sir H. C. Englefield's "Description of the Isle of Wight," published in 1816.

Dr. Mantell's book, "Geological Excursions round the Isle of Wight" (2nd Edition, 1851), has numerous plates of fossils, and is well known, whilst Mr. E. P. Wilkins has also written a capital general account of the geology of the Island.

In the volumes of the Palæontographical Society the shells which occur in the Tertiary beds have been admirably figured and described by Messrs. Edwards and Searles Wood, and the reptiles of the Wealden Formation by Professor Owen; while Mr. J. S. Gardner has undertaken the description of the Eocene plant remains. In the earlier publications of the Geological Society of London, many valuable papers on special points have appeared by Dr. Fitton, Sir Charles Lyell, Professor Owen, Messrs. F. W. Simms, J. S. Bowerbank, and S. P. Pratt, while Professor Prestwich aided greatly in clearing up the relations of the Tertiary strata to each other. Of later date, in the "Quarterly Journal" of the Geological Society, we have Professor Judd's paper on the Punfield Beds (vol. xxvii. 1871), Mr. W. Whitaker on the chalk (vol. xxi. 1865), Mr. Codrington on the gravels (vol. xxvi. 1870), and Mr. J. W. Hulke on the great reptilian bones so diligently collected by the Rev. W. Fox. Quite recently Professor Judd has put forth a fresh classification of some of the newer strata, but his views have been opposed by Messrs. H. Keeping, Tawney, and others, and the question is still under discussion.

The dweller in London can see specimens of almost all the rocks and fossils which occur in the Isle of Wight, arranged in the Geological Museum in Jermyn street: here, too, he can examine the beautiful models of the island constructed by the late Captain Ibbetson, which afford not only a faithful representation of the topography, but express the geological structure in the most accurate manner. New and excellent maps of the Isle of Wight on the scales of 6 inches and 25 inches to the mile have been published by the Ordnance Survey.

In explaining the position and nature of the strata it seems the simpler plan to commence with those which are the oldest or first formed. These will be found underlying all the others, and from them we can ascend gradually, passing over rocks some thousands of feet in thickness, until finally we arrive at such deposits as the river-gravels or shingle-beaches which are now in course of formation.

NEOCOMIAN (or LOWER CRETACEOUS) FORMATION. —THE WEALD CLAY.—The beds called by this name are exposed on the south-west side of the island along the coast between Compton Bay and Atherfield, and they appear at the surface as far inland as Mottestone and Brixton; on the east coast they are again seen over a small area round Sandown; altogether they perhaps form five square miles of the surface. These two areas of exposed Wealden strata are of course connected, and the beds run uninterruptedly across the Island, but over all the central part they are covered over and concealed by newer beds; a boring made at Godshill, Arreton, Kingston, &c., would pierce these later-formed rocks and enter the Wealden strata at a depth of a few hundred feet.

The lowest Wealden strata are seen on the shore at Brook Point; here at the base is a thick bed of pale sandstone, above which come red and green marls; these dip or incline on one side to the north, and on the other to the south and east, marking in fact that bending or arching rock-beds which geologists call anticlinal curve. variegated marls on the shore there occur numerou fragments of the trunks of pine-trees, forming what h called the "Pine raft;" the stems are of a black and have been completely mineralized, yet the woody ture, the bark, and the rings of annual growth can traced; thin slices, examined under the microscope s dotted vessels characteristic of pine-trees. No r found, and it is not probable that these trees grew we now find them; they were probably swept here current of a mighty river, just as thousands of simil are now carried down by the Mississippi and othe rivers until, on reaching the estuary they become logged and sink to be buried underneath the sand, m which go to form the delta. Iron pyrites is a c mineral at Brook Point, its yellow crystals filling u in the tree-trunks, some of which are 2 or 3 feet in d and 20 feet in length.

Walking southwards along the shore past Chilto and Grange Chine we note a continuance of the va marls, clays and sandstones, and also see the in character of the different layers, the sandstone beds e thinning out and disappearing altogether in very s tances. The thickness of the true Wealden beds here is about 300 feet, which is of course not t thickness inasmuch as the base is not seen. Mr. believes them all to represent the "Weald Clay" of In the Sandown neighbourhood similar beds can be low tide on the shore and the trunks of pine-tre there also. The fossils of the Wealden Beds are f water species, and include the minute crustacean Cyprides; shells as, Unio Valdensis and Paludina Sea sis; scales and teeth of a fish, Lepidotus; and most able of all, great bones of extinct reptiles. Of one the Iguanodon, Mr. Beckles has found the footprints of sandstone on the shore west of Brook Point, and Chine, Sandown, and several other localities, the Fox has found bones both of the Iguanodon, the saurus, and a reptile new to science—the Hypsil Thus in these deposits of Wealden age we have evide mighty river which flowed from west to east, dra continent which stretched far into the Atlantic; th formed in its estuary now extend from the Vale of in Wiltshire to the Boulonnaise in France, a distance miles, and from the Isle of Wight to Quainton in about 100 miles; the delta of the Ganges affords present day an instance of a tract of land similar and of about the same area.

The Punfield Series.—These were so named by Judd from their occurrence in Punfield Cove on t side of Swanage Bay in Dorsetshire: in the Isle they consist of grey shales with some beds of limest sandstone, altogether about 200 feet thick. They at Brixton Bay, Atherfield Point, and Sandown Bay lie the Wealden Beds proper. They contain both fr and marine fossils and show the coming on of an the old delta sinking and the coast line of tha slowly receding westwards. Fibrous carbonate commonly called "beef," is common in the limestor which are used locally for rough paving and which a times quite made up of small oysters; in Compton Punfield series have a high northerly dip and are by several small faults; they are also well seen at Chine and Barnes High: the sandy beds at the latt have yielded many reptilian bones to the local geo

THE LOWER GREENSAND.—The strata known name are about 900 feet in thickness; they are o origin, and show a continuance of that depressio earth's surface in this district which we have jus to. At the junction with the Punfield Series is a about 2 feet thick, full of a large bivalve she Perna Mulleti; next come 60 feet of clayey stra the Atherfield Clay, because it is well exposed at so named; then come alternations of sandy c concretionary sands called the "Crackers" from the sea makes in breaking over the ledges of t which, near Atherfield Point stretch far out into they contain numerous remains of crustaceans ( for which reason two layers are known as the beds;" above these come 400 feet of sandy clays shells Terebratula sella, &c., and the uppermost ferruginous sands about 250 feet thick, in which f scarce: these upper sands were formerly worked house purposes at Rocken End. The Lower Gree well exposed on the coast from Atherfield Point Chine, Walpen Chine, and Blackgang Chine to Roc etches across the Island from Arreton and Shorwell on north, by Newchurch, Godshill, and Kingston to Shanklin Chale on the south, extending westwards in a narrow strip, past Brook Church to Compton Bay; it is the "Shanklin sand" of Webster, and the "Shanklin sand" of the Undercliff." At Blackgang Chine a chalybeate spring issues from a bed of sandstone, 130 feet above the sea. In his memoir Mr. Webster gives a list of 137 species of fossils from the Lower Greensand of the Isle of Wight, 111 of which were shells.

THE CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—The lowest division of the Cretaceous series which takes its name from its most characteristic member, the chalk (Latin creta, chalk), is called Gault; this is a bed of blue clay, sometimes sandy, and with minute spangles of mica; its thickness here is 100 feet. It is known in the Island as the "blue slipper," from the tendency of the overlying strata to slip or slide over its surface. "The beautiful and romantic scenery of the Undercliff or 'Back' of the Island has been mainly produced by the undermining of the superincumbent strata over the Gault clay when the latter has been rendered unctuous by the water which (after percolating through the overlying beds), reaches the land springs which break forth at its surface." To these springs, too, which cut narrow ravines or gullies, locally termed "chines," in their short and rapid passage to the sea. The Gault can be traced from Compton Bay curving round to Gatcombe, and thence just north of Yaverland to the sea; along this line it dips to the north. Crossing a broad valley excavated in the Lower Greensand we again find the Gault as a narrow band with an outcrop of 300 yards wide encircling the southern range of hills, but here it dips to the south: evidently these northern and southern outcrops were once connected, and of the mass which once stretched right across, we have a fragment left in the outlier at Gossard Hill. The Gault clay is recognizable by the damp and rush-grown nature of its surface, which is everywhere in pasture. Fossils are few, but in the gully west of the hotel at the top of Blackgang Chine, such shells as Inoceramus sulcatus and I. concentricus have been found.

Upper Greensand.—This division is composed of sand- and sandy beds containing chert (an impure variety of flint), about 150 feet in thickness; it is also known as the Malmstone and Malm Rock. We can trace it as a narrow band from Compton Bay running eastwards along the southern foot of the chalk hills, to the cliffs in Sandown Bay beneath Bembridge Down; then on the south side of the Island the Upper Greensand forms the long lower slopes of the Downs between Chale, Niton, and Shanklin, having, in one outcrop half-a-mile broad for some distance north and south of Gatcombe; it is finely exposed in the cliffs on the right-hand side of the road in going from Ventnor to Blackgang. On Shanklin Down the higher beds are quarried for building-stone; when first raised the stone is soft and easily worked, but it rapidly hardens when exposed to the atmosphere. Most of the old churches on the south side of the Island are built of this material: the chert affords an excellent stone for road-mending, being much harder than the chalk flints. Fossils are not numerous, but the branching arms and stems of a sponge (Siphonia) are frequent on the surfaces of the sandstone beds; the shells such as Nautilus Fittoni, Trigonia caudata, &c., are all marine species.

Chalk.—The base of this formation is marked by a bed of yellowish marl 5 feet thick, called the Chloritic Marl from the presence of dark green grains of the mineral Glauconite; it contains many fossils, as Scaphites Ammonites Deshayesi, &c., with many rounded phosphatic nodules called coprolites.

The chalk of the Isle of Wight has been minutely studied by the well-known French geologist, Dr. Charles Barrois, whose following table, showing the thickness of the subdivisions and their characteristic fossils, is taken from his valuable work.

The Chalk-Marl is of a greyish tint; it is dug for lime-burning and sometimes for building-stone: there is a large quarry at the west end of Brixton Down, and the interior of Brixton church is partly built of this stone. Stems of a plant Clathraria Lyellii are found in it.

The common White Chalk which succeeds is a pure earthy limestone, which is divisible into a lower portion—without flints—and an upper, in which black nodules of that substance are seen at intervals of a few feet, forming lines parallel to the planes of bedding of the rock. These two divisions are separated by the bed which Mr. Whitaker has called the chalk-rock; this is a hard, cream-coloured band of limestone about a foot thick; it often has a layer of green-coated nodules on top with lumps of iron pyrites: it is seen in a chalk-pit on the south-east corner of Shalcombe Down, in pits on the south side of Mottestone Down, in the quarry east of Carisbrooke Castle, in a disused pit on the western end of Arreton Down, and in the pits about a mile south-west of Brading Church.

The White Chalk forms the ridge of hills which stretches east and west right across the Island, from Culver Cliff to the Needles, isolated masses of rock standing in the sea and marking the former extension of the chalk, which once was continuous with that of Dorsetshire. At the extremities of the ridge the chalk is seen to dip very steeply, almost vertically where in contact with the Tertiary Beds, to the north, so that the outcrop is very narrow, from a quarter (Afton Down) to half a mile wide, but going inland the dip decreases and the outcrop widens to three miles between Mottestone and Carisbrooke. The hills on the south side of the Island, called St. Catherine's Down (830 feet above the sea) and Shanklin Down, are outliers of chalk having a slight southerly dip; these hills were once continuous with the main central ridge, but in the course of long ages the beds forming the top of the arch or curve which connected them have been worn away by the agencies of the weather and by the sea. The sea-cliffs formed by the chalk are striking objects from their whiteness and verticality: the latter is due to the joints or cracks by which the rock is traversed, and by which it is divided into a series of more or less regular blocks; the sea attacks and wears away the base of the cliffs, and then the upper portion falls down; the hard flint nodules are used by the waves as missiles, which they hurl with great force against the face of the rock, thus making it to aid in its own destruction.

The chalk hills, or downs, as they are called, are easily distinguished by the bold, rounded outline which they present: scantily furnished with soil, they are covered by dense short herbage on which sheep do well, but woods are wanting, though the beech in places grows fairly well: the surface is dry, for the chalk is a very porous rock and rapidly absorbs the rain. Good sections are exposed in the numerous pits where the chalk is extracted for lime-burning, while the flints, furnish fair road-metal. Fossils are frequent, such as the sponges called Ventriculites, sea-urchins of the genera Micraster, Ananchytes, &c., shells like Inoceramus, Pecten, Terebratula, &c., but, in fact, the mass of the white chalk is made up of the minute shells of foraminifera, which are only visible under the microscope, so that geologists class chalk as an organically-formed rock. The general opinion is that it accumulated on the floor of an ocean, in a similar manner to the whitish ooze, which deep-sea soundings bring up from the bed of the North Atlantic. The so-called Agates, or Isle of Wight pebbles, which are common on the beach between Ventnor and Sandown, are really rolled chalk-flints, which owe their beauty to the silicified sponges they often contain: the brown markings on them are due to the presence of peroxide of iron: the "Isle of Wight diamonds" are fragments of rock-crystal or quartz.

THE TERTIARY EPOCH.—Of the great interval of time which elapsed after the deposition of the chalk and before the formation of the lowest Tertiary strata, we really know little or nothing. We are certain that the time-interval must have been immense, for in the newer beds, which we are now going to describe, we find the remains of an entirely new set of creatures, resembling more nearly those of the present day, with which, indeed, a few of them are identical. Hence Sir Charles Lyell called the lowest Tertiary beds the EOCENE, a word which means the "dawn of new life."

EOCENE FORMATION.—The lowest strata of this division are called the Woolwich and Reading Beds; they were formerly known as the Plastic Clay. They are seen on either side of the Island resting on a rather uneven surface of chalk, in Whitecliff Bay on the east, and in Alum Bay on the west: at the latter place their thickness is 84 feet, but they thicken eastwards to 200 feet in Whitecliff Bay; they have been so upheaved as to be now standing on end, or nearly vertical, inclining to the north; they consist of red, white, and blue mottled clays, with some brownish sands: fossils are wanting: at Newport coarse pottery and tiles are made from the clays of this age.

London Clay or Bognor Beds.—These vary from 200 feet in thickness in Alum Bay to 300 feet in Whitecliff Bay; they are divided from the Reading Beds by a band of flint-pebbles, and consist of grey and brown sandy clays, from which bricks are made at Newport. The fossil shells, such as Pinna affinis, Panopœa intermedia and Pholadomya margaritacea show the London Clay to have been formed in a sea some 600 feet deep, and probably in the proximity of land.

The Bagshot Beds.—This is the term applied by the Geological Survey to a great thickness of strata (altogether about 1,200 feet) composed of sands and clays, the sub-divisions of which were first made by Mr. Trimmer in 1850.

Lower Bagshot Beds.—These are 660 feet thick in Alum Bay, but only 142 feet in Whitecliff Bay. They are mainly sands, but contain beds of pipe-clay, in which at Alum Bay, the remains of beautifully-preserved leaves of land plants occur. Four species of Leguminosæ (the pea and bean order) have been found, long thick leaves of fig trees, and the palmated leaves of an Aralia.

The Middle Bagshot Beds are 411 feet thick in Alum Bay and 710 feet in Whitecliff Bay: they have been sub-divided into a lower or Bracklesham Series, (111 feet thick), and an upper series—the Barton Clay (400 feet): these are separated by a bed of flint-pebbles. In Alum Bay there are beds of wood-coal, or lignite, 2 feet thick, in the Bracklesham Beds, and the rootlets can be traced in seams of clay which underline these lignite beds. The Rev. O. Fisher has minutely studied the same strata in Whitecliff Bay (see Journal of Geological Society, vol. xviii.) and found Cardita planicosta to be the most common fossil shell.

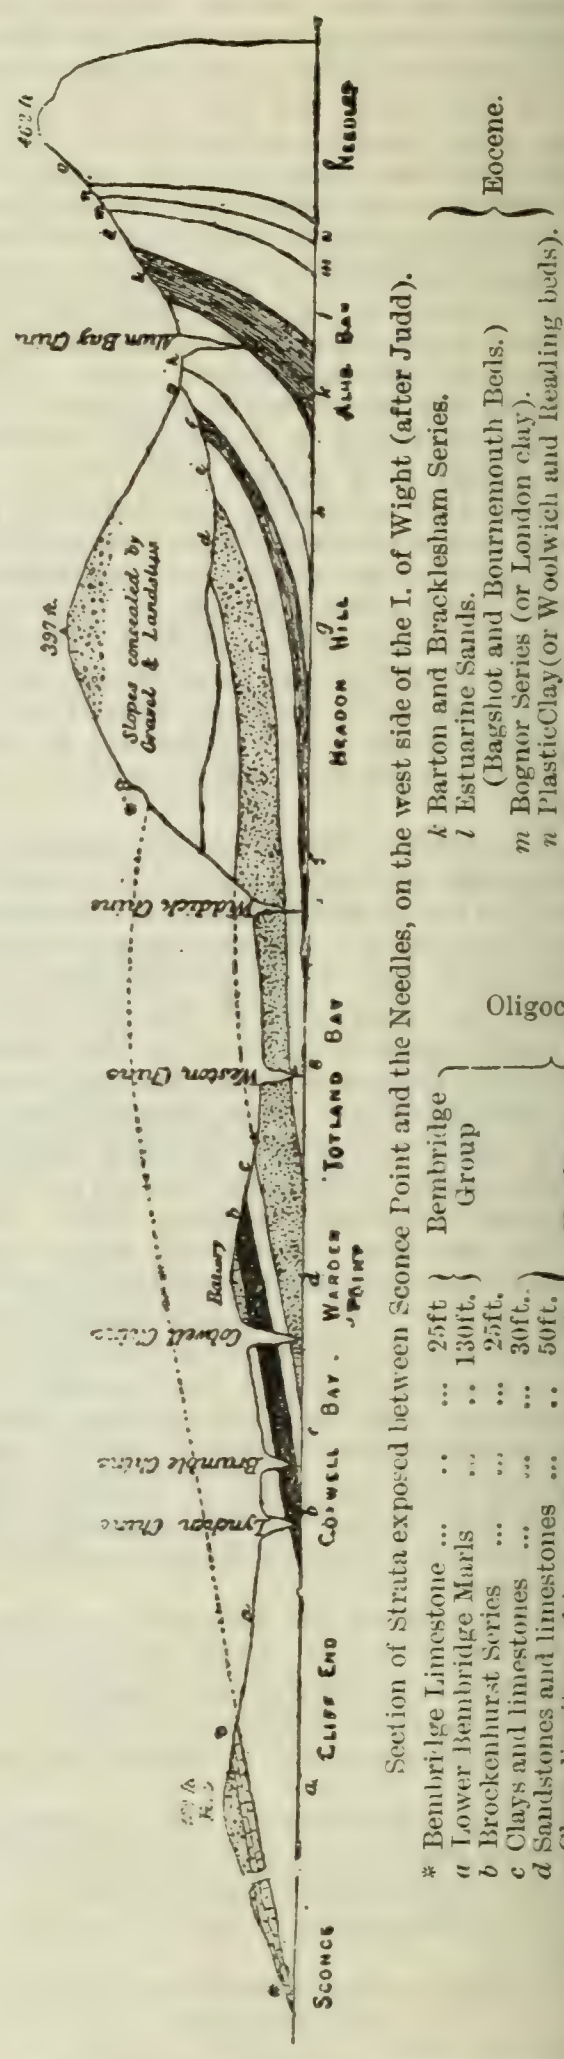
The Upper Bagshot Beds are pure white and yellow sands, about 150 feet thick, which have long been worked in Alum Bay for glass-making purposes: between 1850 and 1855 there were shipped from Yarmouth 21,984 tons of sand mostly to Bristol and London.



All these Bagshot Beds can be traced with some difficulty right across the Island, but it is in Alum Bay that they are best seen: here the rich and variegated colours of the sands and marls, combined with their almost vertical position, form a scene of surpassing beauty.

UPPER EOCENE OR FLUVIO-MARINE SERIES.—The lower and middle Eocene strata are all of marine origin, but the upper beds indicate an elevation of the sea-bottom, and are of a fresh-water and estuarine character, having been deposited in and near the mouth of a great river: their divisions and relations were thoroughly worked out by Professor E. Forbes between 1848 and 1853.

The Headon Series form the central and lower part of Headon Hill, where they are 180 feet thick: they extend thence past Newport to Whitecliff Bay; east of the Medina river they occupy a large area, having been elevated by a fault or dislocation of the strata, which runs nearly north and south along the bed of the river: the "throw" of this fault is about 100 feet, so that the Headon Beds at East Cowes have been elevated 100 feet above their proper position. At Headon Hill the lowest beds contain such fresh-water shells as Planorbis euomphalus and Cyrena cycladiformis, with a land shell, Helix labyrinthica: higher beds contain brackish-water shells, as Potamides cinctus ,and even marine forms as Venus incrassata: higher still are beds of fresh-water limestone, with Paludina and Cyrena.

The Osborne, or St. Helens Series, are red and green sands and clays, about 80 feet thick, containing fresh-wat sh and the seed-vessels of Chara, a fresh-water plant; be sandstone, called the Nettlestone Grit, has been mu u for building purposes near Ryde.

The Bembridge Series.—This is the most importan vi of the Fluvio-marine Formation. As we go nor wa from the chalk we find the high dip of the strata g du to decrease until the Bembridge Beds are nearly ho on as a consequence of this they occupy a large surfa a forming the greater portion of the surface of th Isl north of the chalk downs: they consist of 20 fee of cream-coloured limestone, overlaid by 40 feet of mar t two divisions are separated by an oyster bed. T li stone occurs at Binstead, Bembridge, Cowes, Gurn B

Sconce, the upper part of Headon Hill, and runn sea forms Hempstead Ledge: the quarries at Bins been worked for centuries. The most remarka are the bones of large mammals, chiefly of the gen therium, a creature resembling the Tapir.

MIOCENE FORMATION.—In consideringthe Hemp as belonging to the Miocene Epoch, we follow the tion of Sir Charles Lyell: these strata are 170 fee Hempstead Cliff near Yarmouth, and they also fo hurst Forest: at the base is a band of black lamin containing a Miocene shell—Rissoa Chastelii, th green and brown marls with estuarine shells, and feet are of marine origin, containing the shell pisum and Voluta Rathieri. These beds form a usually waste, pasture, or woodland.

We have given above the usual classification of ry strata of the Isle of Wight. Recently, however, sor Judd has put forth a new arrangement of the which is well worthy of careful consideration ; the ı Clay he classes as Upper Eocene ; all the strata en the Barton Clay and the top of the Hempstead ıe places in the Oligocene Formation,and divides them ı) Headon Group (including the Upper Bagshot ) ; (2) Brockenhurst Series ; (3) Bembridge Series ; (4) Hempstead Series. The term Oligocene was in-ed by professor Beyrich in 1854, as a name for certain ts on the Continent, which lay between the Eocene iocene Formations, and were not closely related to Professor Judd clearly shows that there are three ts containing the remains of marine animals (viz. the ı Clay, Brockenhurst Series, and Hempstead Series), the intervening Headon Group and Bembridge Group estuarine origin.

: DRIFT.—Of the boulder clay of the Northern and ıd Counties we find no trace in the Isle of Wight, r are there any signs of the passage of glaciers over ks. The gravels, however, which cap the hills on the rn side of the Island, are certainly of high antiquity : ccur on Headon Hill (390 feet above the sea) Hemp-Cliff (200 feet), &c. Mr. Codrington has shown that high-level gravels were once connected, and that they were formed on an old table-land, whose surface sloped to the north: at that time the Isle of Wight was not separated from the mainland, and the Solent was a river flowing into the sea, somewhere near Spithead, and of which the Test, the Medina, &c., were tributaries : the high-level gravels were deposited in the estuary of this river, and the land has since undergone a considerable elevation. Mr. S. V. Wood believes that these gravels date back to the early part of the Glacial Period, and mark a submergence of the land which then occurred.

Of later date are the brick-earths and marls at Totlands Bay, Wotton Creek, Brook Chine, and the Foreland. In beds of sand and peat at Brook and also near Bembridge Point trunks of trees and hazel-nuts have been found: the latter are called "Noah's nuts" by the natives: in the gravels at Freshwater Gate teeth of the Mammoth (an extinct species of elephant), have been found.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—But few traces of those early dwellers in our islands who were unacquainted with the use of metals have occurred in the Isle of Wight ; in a bed of brick-earth at the Foreland, about 80 feet above the sea, Mr. Codrington found an ovate palæolithic flint implement, about 4 inches long by 3 in width: of the later, or Neolithic Stone Age, there is a polished flint celt or axe-head, five inches long, in the British Museum, labelled "from the Isle of Wight."

ARRETON is the largest parish in the island, in north-east Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester, 3 miles south-east from Newport and 8 south-west from Ryde; the village consists of a long straggling street. The church of St. George is an ancient edifice of stone in the Norman style (there being some remains of Saxon work in the western wall of the nave and north wall of the chancel), consisting of chancel, south porch, nave, aisles, organ chamber, and embattled western tower containing 4 bells, and contains some handsome monuments to the Holmes family; the chancel has been restored at a cost of about £1,600: in 1886 the church was completely restored at an expense of about £2,000; the north wall of the aisle was re-built, the roof stripped and tiles relaid; the plaster has been removed from the roof, revealing the fine timbers which have been repaired: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1655. The living is a vicarage, yearly value now about £280 with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late John Fleming esq. and held since 1887 by the Rev. Charles Seward Beachcroft M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians; there is also a Wesleyan chapel at Hale common. The Arreton charities are under the management of trustees; Mann's charity is an income of about £43 13s. 3d. charged on certain lands in Yorkshire, out of which grants are annually made to the parish schools and for apprenticing poor orphans. Serle's charity has an income of about £56, less charges, and is distributed in coin to the deserving poor. There are other smaller charities, called Pope's and Gard's gifts, of £2 per year, and distributed to the deserving poor. Elizabeth Wallbridge, the "Dairyman's Daughter," eulogized by the Rev. Leigh Richmond, was born about a mile from the village in 1769, and died May 30, 1801, and is interred in the churchyard. The view of Arreton Vale, from the down of the same name, is very picturesque; on the down are two large barrows, where some Roman armour has been discovered. The Cormelies, an ancient county family, had a manor (Wootton) in this parish, which retains the name of Combley. The principal landowners are the trustees of John B. W. Fleming, esq. who are lords of the manor, and the trustees of the late Philip Wykeham Martin. The soil is very varied; subsoil, green sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 9,118 acres of land and 43 of water and foreshore; rateable value £14,826; the population in 1881 was 1,920.

Sexton, Henry Blake.

Haven Street, a station on the Ryde, Newport and Cowes railway, 4 miles north-east, is a hamlet and ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1853 out of the parishes of Arreton and Ryde. In 1852 St. Peter's, a small stone church, in the early English style, was built here; it consists of chancel, nave, south porch, western turret and 1 bell. There are 135 sittings. The register dates from the year 1853 The living is a vicarage, yearly value £250, in the gift trustees of the Society for the Maintenance of the and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Spittal, M.A. of Hall, Cambridge. Here is also a Wesleyan Chapel. is a large building called Longford Institute, erecte cost of about £2,500, by John Rylands, esq. for the p of reading rooms for the neighbourhood. The pop in 1881 was 408.

Sexton, John James.

The church of St. John's, Rookley, erected 1886 late vicar, the Rev. H. B. Philips, is a small iron b with 1 bell. There are 80 sittings. The Rev. John Gillington, M.A. Trinity college, Dublin, is curate in IBRIDGE is a pretty village and ecclesiastical parish, d in 1827 out of the parish of Brading, situated at the h of Brading Harbour, opposite St. Helen's, at the ex- ty of a peninsula of about 3 miles in length, being the eastern part of the island, in the South-east Medina deanery, Isle of Wight archdeaconry and Winchester e. The Brading Harbour company have carried out sive alterations; erected (1882) the Royal Spithead the head quarters of the Isle of Wight Golf club; and ished extensive oyster breeding beds, and placed many of reclaimed land under cultivation. The Isle of ; Transit Co. have a station here for the conveyance of igers and goods to Langstone Harbour. There is fre- communication with St. Helen's by ferry boats. The ridge and Brading railway has a station here. The h of the Holy Trinity is a stone building in the Early ish style, consisting of chancel, nave of 5 bays, south and north and south porches, and has an embattled 'n tower surmounted by a spire, containing clock and s: there are several stained windows, one at the west f the nave to the memory of the Rev. Sir. Henry pson, bart., who was the first incumbent of Bembridge 1827 to 1835: the east window was erected by the ioners in memory of Miss Elizabeth Cope, who died 3: on the north side of the nave is a stained window d by the Rev. James Nelson Palmer M.A. in memory wife, Sarah Palmer, who died in 1886: at the west the aisle is a memorial window to Emily Isabella , erected by her husband the Rev. Huddleston Stokes ate curate of Bembridge; and two others in the aisle, Jeremiah Dennett, erected in 1886 by his daughter , and another to John Wm. Dennett, erected at the time by his sister Louisa: there are 430 sittings. The register dates from the year 1827. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £100, in the gift of the vicar of Brading, and held since 1851 by the Rev. John Le Mesurier M.A., of Christ Church, Oxford, rural dean of South-east Medina, and hon. canon of Winchester. The Wesleyans have a place of worship here, built in 1844. A granite obelisk, in memory of the second Earl of Yarborough, was erected by subscription in 1849, on the summit of Whitecliff Down; it is a conspicuous object from most parts of the island and from the sea. Bembridge Fort is situated on Bembridge Down. Sir Graham E. W. Græme Hamond-Græme J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Lieut.-Col. Augustus Henry Macdonald Moreton are the chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, gravelly. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,581 acres, 850 acres having been reclaimed from Brading Harbour; a large portion belongs to Bembridge; rateable value, £4,698; the population of the ecclesiastical district in 1881 was 881.

The register dates from the year 1710. The living is a rectory, gross yearly income £100, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since 1881 by the Rev. George Vallis Garland M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. A cemetery containing about an acre, with mortuary chapel, was formed in 1856; the land was presented by John Fleming esq.; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. In this parish are the ruins of Quarr Abbey, founded in 1132 by Baldwin de Redvers, Earl of Devon, as a Cistercian house: a farm house has been built out of the remains and on the site of the abbey and in rear of the house is a large building, now used as a barn, adjoining, and on the east side of the site are other fragments, with doorways and Early English shafts. Quarr Abbey House, the seat of Lady Cochrane, is a handsome stone building. The trustees of John Fleming esq. are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, beans and oats. The area is 1,206 acres of land and 236 of water and foreshore; rateable value, £4,333; the population in 1881 was 813.

BONCHURCH is a parish in South-east Medina liberty and rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester, on the coast, about 11 miles from Ryde, and adjoining Ventnor on the east. The old church, an ancient small structure, is now disused, except for burials, a new church, St. Boniface, having been built near it in 1848 by subscription: this is a stone building in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and western turret with 1 bell, and contains sittings for about 400 persons, of which those in the south transept are free. The register dates from the year 1776. The living is a rectory, yearly value about £150, in the gift of trustees of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Henry Geldart M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. The rectory house is pleasantly situated near the new church and is a modern building. At Coombe Wood is a small mission room. This village is most picturesque and a favourite resort for invalids during the winter, on account of the general dryness and salubrity of the climate and the mildness of the temperature, it being completely sheltered from the north by lofty cliffs: it is warm in the winter and cool in the summer. The Pulpit Rock, which is 400 feet above the sea, is an interesting and striking feature, surmounted by a rude cross, and many romantic caves are to be found in the high cliffs of Pulpit Rock grounds. East Dene, the seat of John Snowdon Henry esq. D.L., J.P. is an Elizabethan building, picturesquely situated amid undulating pleasure grounds, on the site of an ancient landslip: the mansion, which commands extensive views of the English Channel, contains some interesting portraits of James I. and his family, Sir Philip Sydney, the Countess of Hunsden, and a curiously carved organ, by Hoffheimer, da 159 which belonged to Queen Elizabeth: on the estate e th remains of a Roman camp, near which a quantity of ma bones were found in 1865, the teeth in excellent p erva tion. Monks Bay, where the first Christian monks nde in A.D. 755, from the Abbey of Lire, in Normandy, situ ated just below the mansion: there is splendid se bat ing and boating from this bay. The Rev. James W ite, celebrated author, resided here: and the Rev. Illia Adams, for a short time vicar of St. Peter's in the E t, O ford, author of many valuable works, was buried in e c churchyard in 1848. The principal landowners a Jol Snowdon Henry esq. D.L., J.P. and Col. Atherley J. La Jane Swinburne and J. Jolliffe esq. The soil is hie chalk; subsoil, limestone on a gault base. The are s 5 acres of land and 61 of foreshore; rateable value, ,51 the population in 1881 was 670.

ADING is a town and large parish, with a station on sle of Wight railway, situated 8 miles east from Newport 4 south from Ryde, at the head of Brading Harbour, an formerly covering several hundred acres, in the South-Medina liberty and rural deanery, archdeaconry of the of Wight and diocese of Winchester. Sir Hugh Myd-n bart. the constructor of the New River canal in lon, expended £7,000, though unsuccessfully, in at-pting to confine the waters of the harbour; but the Brading bour Company, having succeeded in doing so, have imed about 850 acres, which are now under partial culti-n. A line of railway is completed from the station here t. Helen's, and crosses the upper part of the harbour. ling was incorporated long prior to the date of its 16th ury charter, under which it was governed by two bailiffs, corder and thirteen jurats, annually chosen at a court held on or before the 9th of October, but under the pro-ns of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1883, this cor-tion ceased to exist in March, 1886. The church of St. y, situated on high ground at the north end of the town, is ncient edifice of stone in the Transition Norman and Early lish styles,and consists of chancel of two bays with aisles or els, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and a western r with spire built on open arches, which form a porch ; in belfry are 8 bells, four of which were added and the old re-hung in 1887 ; the tenor weighs 10 cwt. : the church ds traditionally on the spot where, in A.D. 686, St. rid, Archbishop of York, coming hither from Selsey, sailing up Brading Harbour, at length landed and raised cross : the chancel retains a square-headed piscina and a nsitional stoup, removed hither from the porch : in the ncel is an incised slab, in the centre of which is an effigy esenting John de Cherowin, constable of Porchester le, circ. 1441 ; the head, hands and parts of the armour e formerly inlaid with silver ; the figure is surmounted canopy on which are shields with armorial bearings, on each side rises a tier of canopied niches with pin-ed buttresses ; in these were formerly eight figures, but six remain perfect, and of these four are supposed to re-ent SS. Andrew, Lambert, Peter and James : here also slab with arms and an inscription to the Rev. Richard ner M.A. vicar, d. 1763, and within the sacrarium a brass he Rev. T. Waterworth B.D. d. 1790 : in the north el are two altar tombs, the sides of which are orna-ted with tracery and roses, and one bears in small panels nscription, "J'hu haue merci on Wylliam Howlys on hys ame' mccccxx." ; the other tomb, inscribed to lizabeth his wyf," is similar ; the upper slabs of both of Purbeck marble : the south or Oglander chapel, which ains several fine tombs of that family, is enclosed by traceried screens of oak, and fitted with oak stalls, h are returned at the west end ; the chapel has a elled wood roof, and on the cornice supporting it are 34 lazoned shields of arms, 17 on each side, and including coats of Russell, Clerke, Hamond, Strode and Fitzroy: he windows are stained ; that at the east end is a norial to George Oglander esq. ob. 1567, and Alice mond) his wife, and has an inscribed brass below it ; the dows on the south side are filled with heraldic shields of Oglander family, quartered or impaled : on the north of the chapel is a plain modern altar tomb of huge stone s, on which lies the full-sized coloured effigy of a man in e armour, reclining on his elbow, and on a brass affixed he tomb is an inscription to Sir John Oglander kt. of well, deputy governor of Portsmouth,ob. 28th Nov. 1655, Frances (Moore) his wife, ob. 12th June, 1644 ; west of stands a panelled altar tomb, the four panels of which he south side enclose sculptured figures in high relief, eling, of a knight in armour, with four sons, and his with three daughters; surrounding the panels is a ler of foliage work, which bears traces of colour : the t end of the tomb has a modern panel exhibiting traces painted shield of arms and inscription, and the north , also panelled, is ornamented with other figures and lds : this tomb, from the number and sex of the children esented, may commemorate the family of the preced-; on the north side of the chapel is another heavy r tomb, bearing the recumbent effigy of a man bare-led, but in plate armour and wearing a ruff, the whole being coloured and gilt, and representing William Oglander kt. ob. 27th March, 1608, and Ann (Dillington) his wife'; westward of it is a panelled altar tomb, ornamented with roses and blank shields, and covered by a slab of Purbeck marble, but without inscription : above the first mentioned of these tombs is a niche containing a facsimile, in miniature, of the effigy below, and over it an inscription on brass to George, eldest son of Sir John Oglander kt. who died abroad in 1632 : on the floor are slabs of large size inscribed to Sir William Oglander, 3rd bart. d. Aug. 1734, and Elizabeth (Strode) his wife, d. 1722 ; Sir John Oglander, 4th bart. d. 11th May, 1767 ; Margaret (Cox) his wife, d. 1744, and Frances and Margaret their daughters, d. 1780 and 1786 ; and to Ann (Brown) wife first of John, 2nd baron Poulet, of Hinton St. George, Somerset, and secondly of Sir John Strode, kt. of Parnham, Dorset ; she d. 1710 ; there is also a marble tablet to Richard Oglander esq. of Fairlie, some time Consul at Tunis, d. 1857, and Caroline (Tulin) his wife, d. 29th June, 1826 : in the nave are floor slabs of black marble with arms inscribed to Sir Thomas Knight kt. ob. 1689, and Frances his wife, ob. 1679, and others of this family, 1695-1735, and to the Fitchett family, 1738-42 : at the back of the pulpit, on the north side of the chancel arch, is a moulded arch, and a portion of another, and inside the head of the arch are carved several letters of early character, the meaning of which is doubtful ; the brass eagle lectern was presented in 1875 by John, 10th baron Rollo ; besides the stained windows in the Oglander chapel there are various others, including the east window, presented by Lady Oglander in memory of her husband, the late Sir Henry Oglander, 7th (and last) bart. d. 1874 ; two in the south aisle to the Rev. John Glover M.A. vicar 1862-84, and to Miss Cecilia Scott, and some on the north side : the west window of the tower was the gift of Mr. Thomas Hellyer : the font, a new work, is in the Transition style, the old font now serving as a credence : the church chest of panelled oak is probably Jacobean : over the priest's doorway in the north chapel is a stone incised with two stepped crosses engrailed : the chancel was restored in 1874 by the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, under the direction of A. W. Blomfield esq. M.A. architect, and the rest of the building in 1864, at the cost of the late Sir Henry and Lady Oglander, and under the superintendence of Mr. T. Hellyer, architect, of Ryde : on the south side of the churchyard are a number of ancient altar tombs, including two inscribed to Peter Bryers, butler, and Mr. Tobye Kempe, ob. 1637, clarke to Sir John Oglander kt. of Nunwell ; and to Robert Stac . . ob. 1649 ; on the east side is a similar tomb to John Howlis, ob. 2nd April, 1675, and one of the same period to Ellen (Harbert), wife of Richard Loveing : close to the path at the east end of the church is the well-known and much-visited grave of "Little Jane," the "Young Cottager," and there are other tombs and memorials to Nanny Loosemore, d. Jan. 12, 1871, aged 102 ; Col. William Joliffe R.M. d. 1854 ; Lieut. J. H. Peel R.N. d. 1844; Comm. J. W. Bazalgette R.N. d. 1849 ; Maj. H. H. Warner, 39th regt. d. 1872, and various clergy : in the churchyard are the remains of a cross, consisting of part of the shaft rising from a circular base of three steps ; on the top is now a sundial, dated 1815, and the shaft is inscribed "I.W. 1714." The register dates from the year 1547. The living is a vicarage, commuted yearly value £325, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Edgar Summers B.D. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The vicarage, immediately adjoining the churchyard on the east, is surrounded by spacious and pleasant gardens and grounds, and both the house and grounds have been greatly improved by the present vicar. Here are Bible Christian and Congregational chapels. The Town Hall, situated close to the west end of the churchyard, was rebuilt on its old site in 1875-6, and is a picturesque structure of stone and brick, resting on the south side on open arches, and within this portion, underneath the hall, are kept the ancient stocks and whipping post ; at the north end is a lock-up : in the hall is a free library containing 1,400 volumes, and supported in part by private subscriptions : on the west side of the building is a stone panel bearing a representation of the old borough seal—a Tudor rose, with the legend, "The Kyngs Towne of Brading" : near the Town

Hall are two timber-framed houses, and over the door of one of these appears the inscription, "William Sothcot, 1698." In a small open space in the middle of the principal street the massive bull ring, to which bulls were formerly tied to be baited, still remains. The Charity Commissioners have sanctioned a scheme for a Town Trust to deal with the income (£70) of the town, which is applied as before to the maintenance of the library and of pumps and lights. The Rev. Legh Richmond M.A. well-known as the author of "The Dairyman's Daughter" and "The Young Cottager" in his "Annals of the Poor," was curate in sole charge of this parish and Yaverland from 1797 to 1805: Jane, the young cottager, is buried at the east end of the church, and her grave, and the thatched cottage in which she lived, are visited by strangers from all parts. The parish gun, a piece of brass ordnance bearing the inscription, "John and Robert Owine, Brethren, made this Pese 1549, Berdynge," having been presented to the late Sir Henry Oglander bart. is now at Nunwell. Brading, Nunwell and Ashey Downs continue the lofty chain of Midland hills westward: on the conspicuous summit of the last named is a stone pyramid, 20 feet high, erected as a sea mark by the Trinity House in 1795; and within a well-wooded park is Nunwell Mansion, the seat of Lady Oglander. In 1880 an interesting discovery was made near here by Mr. F. G. Hilton Price F.S.A., F.G.S. of the foundations of a Roman villa, which on excavation has proved to be one of the most important and interesting remains of the kind in the kingdom; many coins of the reigns of Severus (A.D. 197-211), Constans (A.D. 333-350), and Magnentius (A.D. 350-353), and pieces of pottery have been found; several of the chambers can be very clearly traced, and the mosaic pavement of the dining hall and the bath room, and other apartments are remarkably perfect; the whole has been covered in, and is now carefully protected. The charities for distribution amount to £27 yearly. dy Oglander, who owns the manor, Sir Graham E. W. Græme Hamond-Græme bart., J.P., D.L. of Norton, and ol. Francis Henry Atherley are the principal landowners. he soil is sandy loam; subsoil, sand and clay. The chief ps are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 8,239 acr of land and 799 of foreshore and water; rateable v ue, £45,366; and the population in 1881 was 7,952, incl ng BEMBRIDGE, LAKE and SANDOWN, in this parish, whic ill be found under separate headings: a portion of SHAN IN is also in this parish.

ALVERSTONE is a small hamlet, 2 miles south-west: ere is a school, supported by Sir R. E. Webster Q.C., M.P., for rls and infants, holds 67; average attendance 28; Miss A. gg, mistress. MORTON and YARBRIDGE are small haml , a mile south. Here is a brewery and malting works.

LBOURNE is a parish with a station on the Newport, outh & Freshwater Railway, situated about 5 miles by-south from Newport and 5 miles south-east from outh in the West Medina liberty and rural deanery, leaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. parish includes the ancient chapelry and borough of rown. The church of All Saints is a building of stone e mixed Norman and Pointed style, and consists of el, nave, south aisle and north transept, west porch and e tower: the church was thoroughly restored in 1842 ost of £2,550: there are 300 sittings. The register from the year 1599. The living is a rectory, gross y value £461, with residence and 81 acres of glebe, in ift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since 1877 by ev. John Vicars M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. principal seats are—Swainstone, the residence of Sir Stephen Barrington Simeon bart. D.L., J.P. a handsome e stone building, in the Italian style, most delightfully ed; and Westover, the property of Lord Heytesbury occupied by Octavius Moulton-Barrett esq. a modern nce, situated on a gentle declivity at the foot of the urne Downs. The lord of the manor is Sir John en Barrington Simeon bart. D.P., J.P. who is also ipal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley, peas and beans. The parish (including Newtown) com-s about 5,529 acres of clay and chalky soil, which is y cultivated, and 559 acres of water and foreshore; ble value, £4,242. The population in 1881 was, includ-art of Newtown, 693.

wtown, formerly a chapelry in this parish, was, in 1872, separated therefrom, and, with part of Shalfleet, formed into an ecclesiastical parish; it lies to the north, on the Solent, about 7 miles west from Newport and 5 east from Yarmouth. Here is a secure and pleasant haven, formed by a broad estuary, which divides into small creeks at the points where four or five rivulets fall into the sea: Newtown stands between two of them. Formerly a considerable quantity of salt was made here in the salterns which may still be seen on the coast. Although now a small village, this was anciently a town of some importance, called Francheville, the ground still showing evidences of two long streets running east and west, and connected by other shorter streets running north and south; some ancient deeds preserve the names of High street and Gold street, Broad street and Church street: it is said to have been burned by the Danes in 1001, and it certainly was by the French in the reign of Richard II. from which last devastation it arose under its present name of Newtown: it received from Queen Elizabeth the privilege (which was annulled by the Reform Act) of sending two members to Parliament, who were elected in the Town Hall, which stands on an eminence overlooking one of the creeks of the harbour. The Chapel of the Holy Ghost, which has been rebuilt, is a stone structure, in the Norman style, consisting of nave, south porch and turret containing one bell. The register dates from the year 1871. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £150 (variable), with house standing in 3 acres, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester and held by the Rev. Henry Rice Venn, surrogate. The population in 1881 was 356.

CARISBROOKE is a parish and village, pleasantly situated on the banks of the Lukeley rivulet, flowing into the Medina, and at the foot of the Castle Hill, closely adjoining Newport and 8 miles south-west from Ryde, in the rural deanery of West Medina and archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. Mary is large and handsome, but was once much larger, the chancel having been pulled down by Walsingham to save the cost of repairing it: the nave and south aisle, of equal height, are separated by a plain Transition Norman arcade: there is a south porch: there are some interesting monuments: the pulpit bears the date 1658: the western tower is a noble structure of the Perpendicular style, with an enriched staircase turret and crocketted pinnacles, and contains a peal of 8 bells and clock: this church, with several of the other island churches, belonged to the Benedictine priory which was founded by William Fitz-Osborn, the prime favourite and counsellor of William the Conqueror: nothing remains of the priory: there are two stained memorial windows in the south aisle: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1577, and contains an entry respecting the passing of the Spanish Armada at the back of the Isle of Wight, July 1588. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Northwood annexed, gross yearly value £790, with residence and 53 acres of glebe, in the gift of Queen's College, Oxford, and was, with other pieces of preferment, given to that society by Charles I.; the Rev. Edwd. Boucher James M.A. late fellow and tutor of that college, has held the vicarage since 1858. The Castle here, which is supposed to have been a fortress previous to the Roman conquest, is of great interest: the first time it is mentioned is in the year 530, when it was taken by Cedric the Saxon; but its present appearance evinces a Norman renewal: the outworks, or the latest fortifications, were added by Queen Elizabeth; what attaches peculiar interest to this castle is the circumstance of its having been the place of confinement of King Charles I., who during fourteen months was captive in the hands of the Parliament; and on the north side of the ruins is shown what is said to have been the bed chamber of the king, and the window from which he attempted his escape; after his death, his children succeeded him as occupants of the same prison; and here the young Princess Elizabeth died, and was interred near the communion table in Newport church: the keep, an irregular polygon, about 60 feet in its greatest breadth, is raised on an artificial mound between 50 and 60 feet high, near the north-east angle of the area, and is entered by an ascent of 71 steps: near the centre of the area is a well 150 feet in depth, cut through the solid rock, supposed to have been the work of the Romans; it contains 20 feet of water, which is very pure, and raised by the labours of an ass upon a treadmill: the view from the summit of the massive walls embraces a circuit of nearly the whole island, and every variety of landscape: northwards it extends from the pretty village at the foot, over Newport, and along the sparkling course of the Medina to the Solent, bounded by the New Forest and the Portsdown hills: the castle is the property of the Crown, and the public are admitted on payment of 4d. each person. The remains of a Roman villa, discovered in 1859 by Mr. William Spickernell of this parish, are on the south slope of the Hill, to the left of the village street: the remains are of a highly interesting character, and in good preservation; they consist of mosaic pavements with a semi-circular bath, covering a space of about 120 feet by 50: the public are admitted on payment of 6d. each person. St. Nicholas chapel, now in ruins, within the walls of Carisbrooke Castle, with its lands, once belonged to Quarr Abbey. St. Nicholas-the-Castle is a parish, partly within the borough of Newport. The living is a sinecure, gross income £24, in the gift of the Governor of the Island and held by the vicar of Carisbrooke. Here are two chapels for the Primitive Methodists, and a chapel at Gunville for the Bible Christians. A cemetery of 5 acres was formed in 1858 at a cost of about £3,000: it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. The Convent of our Lady of Reparation, of the order of St. Dominic, is a large and handsome building, erected in 1865, at the cost of the Countess of Clare. The charities for distribution are £25 yearly. The Workhouse for the whole of the island is situated in this parish. James Luxton Manning is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Charles Seely esq., Sir J. S. Barrington Simeon bart., G. Ward and Tankerville Chamberlayne esq. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 8,602 acres of land and 43 of water and foreshore: rateable value, £31,286 10s.; the population of the parish is 8[illegible], of which 3,661 are within the bounds of Newport, 8[illegible] in Parkhurst prison, 601 in Albany barracks and 405 officers and inmates in the Isle of Wight Workhouse.

PARKHURST FOREST, formerly extra parochial, is now included in Carisbrooke parish: it is 1 mile north of Newport.

BOWCOMBE is a hamlet 2 miles south-west from Newport: CHILLERTON, a hamlet, partly in Carisbrooke and partly in Wootton, 3 miles south from the Castle; Apes Dow 2½ miles west; Clatterford, ½ mile south-west; Whitcombe, a mile south; Gunville, ½ mile north.

HALE is a parish in the West Medina liberty and rural nery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of nchester, 8½ miles south-south-west from Newport and iles west of Ventnor. The church of St. Andrew is a lding of stone in the Norman style, and was built by gh Vernon in the reign of Henry I. about the year 1113, only a few traces of the original structure remain: it sists of chancel, nave, south aisle divided by four Gothic hes, north and south porches, and embattled western er, with pinnacles and four bells; it contains a white rble monument, by Baker, Southampton, to Sir Henry rsley, who died in 1843: in the churchyard is interred ptain Samuel Walker, of the ill-fated ship "Clarendon," , on his homeward-bound passage from the West Indies, s wrecked in Chale Bay, on the 11th October, 1836, when of the crew and all the passengers, 13 in number, ished. There are 300 sittings. The register dates from year 1679. The living is a rectory, yearly value £330, h residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late W. odes esq. and held by the Rev. Charles William Heald . of Corpus Christi college, Oxford. The Bible Christians e a brick chapel here, built in 1842; rebuilt 1884; with sittings. A Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1888: it is one building, and has sittings for about 120 persons. f a mile from the church is Blackgang Chine, a tremendchasm, the sides of which are nearly 500 feet in height, lving down to the shore, terminating inland in an overging rock 40 feet in height, over which a small stream n the top of the Chine falls: the view from the summit prises the whole of the coast to the Needles, with the setshire coast in the distance. Near to the Chine is St. herine's Hill, said to be the highest land in the island, ng upwards of 800 feet above the sea level: also the ient Manor House, an interesting architectural relic. Medina river takes its rise at the foot of this hill, at a e called Hermitage: on the summit is St. Catherine's ver, a small erection with lantern top, octagonal outside square inside, being all that remains of a chapel built by one Walter de Godyton, in the year 1323: the name is still retained, a farm on the west slope of the hill being called Gotten Farm. On the brow of the hill is an elegant column, 72 feet high, and visible from the greater part of the island, erected by the late Michael Hoy esq. to commemorate the visit of his Imperial Majesty Alexander I. Emperor of Russia. A military road has been made from Chale Church to Freshwater, a distance of 10¼ miles, in connection with the south coast defences. There is also a Mission Hall, erected in 1873, by the late Mr. Charles Reade, capable of accommodating between three and four hundred persons. The principal landowners are Lady Mary Gordon, Rev. Charles W. Heald, Messrs. Best, Way, Russell and Morris. The land is all freehold. The soil is strong loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley; the area is 2,222 acres of land and 54 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,300; the population in 1881 was 681

EAST COWES is an improving town in the parish of Whippingham, 5 miles north from Newport, on the east bank of the river Medina, at its mouth, and across which is a steam ferry to West Cowes, East Medina liberty and North-east Medina rural deanery, Winchester archdeaconry, and diocese of the Isle of Wight: it is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1843 from the civil parish of Whippingham. The Local Government Act of 1858 was adopted by the town October 14, 1859, and it is governed by a Local Board of Health of twelve members. The church of St. James is a plain structure of stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel and nave with aisles, with square embattled western tower and 1 bell: it was built by the late Mr. Nash, and its foundation stone was laid by H. M., then Princess Victoria, in September 1831: it was finished and consecrated in 1833, but in 1868 greatly enlarged and altered, and in 1870 again enlarged by the addition of a chancel, erected at the sole expense of the Dowager Viscountess Gort, who also gave the east window: the carving of the capitals of the pillars is good, representing the parable of the Sower: there is also a very handsome font, the gift of Mrs. Powys Lybbe Powys, in memory of her son: the stone pulpit is the gift of the Dowager Viscountess Gort: in 1882 a stained window was placed in the south of the chancel by the children of a former vicar, the Rev. William Veale Hennah, to the memory of their father: in the south aisle is a stained memorial window to Roscow Shedden esq. There are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1833. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Whippingham, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Robert William Burnaby, M.A. of New College, Oxford. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. A cemetery of 4 acres was formed in 1877 on ground a free gift of Her Majesty, and was laid out at a cost of £1,200; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. £10 from Shedden's charity is distributed in clothing, fuel and bread. In 1668 John Mann left a yearly rent charge out of Lazenby Grange, Yorkshire, for apprenticing poor children of the parish of Whippingham, with preference for those of East Cowes: in 1881 Lady Gort left £1,000 in the 3 per cents consols for the poor of East Cowes. Cole's charity produces £2 10s. annually.

East Cowes has grown into considerable importance: many shops and handsome private residences have been built. Ship building is carried on extensively here, as well as at West Cowes. Bridge Yard, the establishment of Mr. John Samuel White, has a patent slip on which vessels of 700 tons can be hauled up, and there are commodious shipbuilding sheds: one of the principal branches of this establishment consists in the construction of steam lifeboat launches (on Mr. John White's patent), and which have been extensively introduced into Her Majesty's navy and coast-guard service, as well as throughout the various yacht squadrons; and Messrs. C. Hansen & Sons have yacht-building yards both here and at West Cowes. The proprietors of the Medina Commercial Wharf and District Quay have large storehouses and bonding warehous general merchandise, here and at West Cowes. Th Recreation Ground, situated in the Park, consists of 4 acs of land presented to the town, January 1887, by Visct Gort, M.A., J.P. and supplied with various gymnast appliances by public subscription. East Cowes Castl residence of Viscount Gort, M.A. is a large castellated sion, erected by John Nash, the celebrated architect, own residence, towards the close of the 18th centu stands on the south side of the town in a park of abo acres, and consists of several square, octagonal and towers. Norris Castle, the seat of the Duke of Bed K.G., D.L., J.P. is an extensive and magnificent cast mansion, standing in a fine park, upon a bold ascent coast, commanding extensive views across the Solent, site to the broad entrance to Southampton Water: built in 1799 for Lord Henry Seymour, by James Wy late eminent architect: it was for several years th dence of Her Majesty, when Princess Victoria, and mother, the late Duchess of Kent. The principal owners are Mrs. R. C. Shedden, of Millfield, the D Bedford, K.G., D.L., J.P. Viscount Gort, M.A., and J. S. Bush. The soil is light loam; subsoil, gravel. T area is 498 acres; the rateable value is included in pingham; the population in 1881 was 2,543.

WEST COWES is a thriving bathing place, seaport town and railway station, 11½ miles south-south-east from Southampton, 4¾ north from Newport and 10 west-south-west from Portsmouth, in the civil parish of Northwood, West Medina rural deanery, Isle of Wright archdeaconry and Winchester diocese, seated on the declivity of the hill on the western side of the river Medina, which separates it from East Cowes, and is crossed by a steam ferry : it is a populous place, and many handsome houses and villas have been erected in various parts of the town. The town is not incorporated, but is regulated by the Health of Towns Act, and a Local Board of Health of 15 members has been formed. Gas was introduced in 1845, supplied by the West Cowes Gas Co., and a water company formed in 1847 ; the water works, situated at Broadlands, are now owned by the Local Board. The attractions of yachting and the convenience of bathing have occasioned it to become the resort of much fashionable company ; the baths and machines are situated at Egypt Point. Cowes is the principal port in the island, and is both safe and convenient, the roads affording excellent shelter in severe weather, the anchorage being so good that ships seldom drift ; from its excellent roadstead, ships can directly steer either west or east : the trade carried on is extensive, particularly in provisions for shipping. The steamboat quay and pier were built by G. H. Ward, esq. ; the Southampton and Isle of Wight Steamboat Company are the lessees. In the Medina road is a commodious wharf and quay, designated the Medina Commercial Wharf, with storehouses and bonding warehouses for general merchandise ; here is extensive quay accommodation, furnishing at all times a ready means of discharging and loading ships of almost any burden in perfect security ; a pier has been constructed at this wharf for the purpose of landing and embarking troops. The Cowes and Newport railway was opened in 1862. Cowes Castle is now let on lease by the Government to the Royal Yacht Squadron and used by them as their club house. For ecclesiastical purposes West Cowes is divided into two districts formed in 1832 out of the parish of Northwood. St. Mary's church, rebuilt in 1867, is a handsome edifice of Swansea rubble, with Bath stone dressings, in the early English and Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave of 4 bays, and aisles, tower containing 1 bell and clock, and a south porch, and contains a very handsomely-carved reredos given by Pascall Atkey, esq. and a fine organ presented by the late Miss Ward and Mrs. Beckford : many of the windows are stained : the western window is very beautiful, and was placed there by the widow of the Rev. W. H. Park, A.M. and Harriet, widow of Sir Charles Fellows, to the memory of their parents : it contains 900 sittings, 200 of which are free : the cost of the building was £6,000. The register dates from the year 1657. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £135, in the gift of the vicar of Carisbrooke, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Andrew Wallace Milroy, M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford ; £20 yearly was left by Bishop M

There are some beautiful walks ives in the neighbourhood, and some lovely scenery. incipal establishments are the docks and ship-building of Mr. John S. White : the Medina dock is 330 feet in and 17 feet over sill, with a patent slipway, and four g slips of nearly equal extent : the Royal Mail Steam Company's ships "Medina" and "Solent," of 1,800 ere built here, as also several of the Peninsular and al Steam Company's ships ; likewise many steamers any battleships for the British and foreign navies : f the Peninsular and Oriental Company's ships have engthened here, including the "Tay," and many ing to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company : in tion with the above premises is a large boat-building shment for building lifeboats for Her Majesty's navy : are likewise the extensive ship and yacht-building shments of Messrs. Charles Hansen and Sons, who so slipways. There is a brass and iron foundry, con- by Messrs. W. White and Sons. The extensive of Mr. Bannister was the first for the manufacture of ope : sail-making is also carried on extensively by Messrs. Ratsey and Lapthorn, and Messrs. Summers and Hewitt. The oyster fisheries in the Medina and Newtown rivers are worked by a company, called the Isle of Wight Oyster Fishery Company Limited ; the chief office is at Tower House, West Cowes. Twelve almshouses in Market hill, erected in 1881, for 12 poor and aged persons, and endowed with £72 yearly by the Rev. Thomas Binstead Macnamara, rector of Kingston, Isle of Wight. The West Cowes Provident Dispensary, Cross street, was established in 1877. The charities amount to £38 10s. annually, as follows : John Mann's charity of £20 yearly, devoted to the apprenticing of poor orphan children belonging to the parish of Northwood ; Cole's charity, £2 10s. yearly, is for the purpose of teaching poor children to read ; and Hoskin's charity, amounting to £16 yearly, is distributed in groceries amongst the poor of the parish of Northwood not receiving parish relief. Edmund Granville Ward esq. is the lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loamy subsoil, clay and gravel. The area and rateable value are included in Northwood. The population of the town in 1881 was 7,072, viz. Holy Trinity, 2,404 ; St. Mary's, 4,668.

FRESHWATER is an extensive parish 12 miles west from Newport, 14 south-west from Cowes, and 2 south from Yarmouth, in the liberty and rural deanery of West Medina, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight, and diocese of Winchester, in the extreme west of the island. A line of railway was opened in July, 1889, connecting this place with Yarmouth and Newport. The church of All Saints is a building of stone in the Norman style, consists of chancel, nave, transepts, north and south aisles, and square embattled tower containing 2 bells: the church was rebuilt and partly restored in 1876, at a cost of £3,000, which was raised by public subscription; there are 650 sittings. The register dates from the year 1576. The living is a rectory, yearly value, gross income £740, net £430, with residence and 6 acres of glebe, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Eric John Sutherland Rudd M.A. late fellow of that college. There are chapels for Wesleyans, Baptists and Bible Christians and a Congregational Church. Holme's charity of £9 18s. 10d. yearly, derive consols left in 18th century, is for bread, and given in Bibles and prayer books to the chil the National school. Freshwater, and especially Bay, on account of the beautiful sands and sea is much resorted to in summer as a marine place, on account of its pure atmosphere, its rem cliffs and caverns, and its beautiful land and sea v stands on an estuary, formed by the mouth of the litt Yar, which, being at its source separated only by a isthmus of pebbles from the small creek called Fres Gate, communicating with the centre of Freshwa cuts off this western extremity of the island, which sequence was formerly called the Isle of Freshwater. villas have been built, amongst which are Westhill, Lodge, Afton House, the Marina, Farringford Hou Alum Bay Cottage. The cliffs, which bound the whol of Freshwater Bay, are of great height, and afford be

s from their summits: the prospect from the Light-
e, on the highest and extreme western point of cliff, eet perpendicular above the level of the sea, is exceed-magnificent, and includes a full view of the Needles:
ıe other side, within a short distance west of the mouth ıe Yar, where the estuary meets the sea, and nearly site Hurst Castle, on the Hampshire coast, these cliffs nence, and from that point they skirt the length of ınd Bay and Alum Bay westward, gradually increasing ight till, at the lighthouse, they meet the ridge from outhern side, then stretching out into the sea in broken s, disjointed from the mainland by the force of the s, they form those singular rocks called the Needles, of h the highest, being wholly undermined by the sea, fell y years ago, and totally disappeared; the remaining rocks are tipped by a number of jagged points, nbling the grinders of an enormous jaw: the entire
e of these cliffs, when viewed from the sea, is beautiful;
me places they are perpendicular, in others they project the sea in an awe-inspiring manner; they are frequented cularly from May to August by great numbers of sea , who deposit their eggs among the crevices of the ing strata at a great height: the country people take irds thus harbouring by the perilous process of descend-y ropes fixed to iron bars driven into the ground, and e thus suspended, beat them down with sticks as they rom their holes: several caverns and deep chasms ese rocks seem to penetrate a considerable way within , and in many places the issuing springs form small ides rippling down to the sea. Freshwater Gate is a remarkable natural cave, the principal entrance formı rugged segment of a circle, about 20 feet high and 35
; it runs into the rock about 120 feet: this entrance can be approached at low water, and even then the jutting
s and lofty fragments of rock which obstruct the passage er the access very difficult. At some distance to the ward, about 500 yards from the shore, are two insularocks, through one of which the waves have formed an ing resembling a picturesque arch. Some very exten-
Government forts have been erected here. Farringford

OTLAND BAY is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1875
n Freshwater parish. Christ Church, built in 1875 at a cost 3,800, enlarged in 1888, is a stone edifice in the Early Eng-style and consists of chancel and nave with turret and 1
, having sittings for 500 persons. The register dates from year 1875. The living is a perpetual curacy, yearly ıe £210, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, held since 1875 by the Rev. Raymond Blathwayt B.A. of pus Christi college, Cambridge. Weston Manor, the dence of Edmund Granville Ward esq. J.P. is a large handsome stone building, situated on a hill, and commands extensive views of the Solent and inland scenery; attached to the house is a very beautiful Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Saviour, with stained windows and altar piece, representing the burial of Our Lord; the services are open to the public. There is a large hotel at Alum Bay. A very commodious hotel was erected and opened in 1880, called the Totland Bay Hotel, and a pier was also constructed in connection with it. An iron pier was erected in 1887 called the Alum Bay Pier. There is a pottery in this district, the property of Mr. Henry Dowty, where the celebrated red ware is made solely by hand; the works are open daily to visitors.

COLWELL BAY is 2 miles north-west

GATCOMBE is a parish and small village, 2½ miles south-south-west from Newport, situated on the Medina river, in West Medina liberty and rural deanery, Isle of Wight archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. Olave is an ancient edifice of stone in the Norman style, having chancel, nave, south porch and square embattled western tower with pinnacles and containing 3 bells: the chancel has been entirely rebuilt, the nave has also been restored and the old pews been replaced by open seats of stained deal: the fine old tower arch has been opened, and the western window (Perpendicular) in the tower may now be seen from the other end of the church: the east window is stained: the most interesting object in the church is a crossed-legged oaken effigy of a knight in complete armour, lying on his right side, and his feet supported by a rude, curiously-carved animal: at the head a cherub with outstretched wings—is supposed to represent "St. Rhadegund," who was the patron saint of the church. There are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, yearly value £500, with residence, in the gift of the University of Oxford, in trust for St. Edmund Hall; the Rev. Edward Moore D.D. principal of St. Edmund Hall, has held the rectory since 1864, and the Rev. Charles Edward Wilkinson B.A. St. John's College, Cambr e. the curate in charge. Near the church is Gatcombe formerly the seat of the Worsley family but now t perty of Charles Seely esq. ODSHILL is an ancient parish that existed before the npilation of "Domesday Book," situated on the river dina, 5½ miles south-south-east from Newport and 5 th-west from Ventnor, in the liberty and rural deanery of st Medina, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of nchester. Part of the village is in Arreton, a parish. The rch of All Saints, a building of stone in the Early English le, is a cruciform building with chancel and nave (with ars and arches running through the centre from east to st), north and south transepts, with south porch, and battled western tower with pinnacles, 6 bells and clock, and nds on an abrupt hill, commanding a beautiful prospect: vas one of the six churches given by William Fitz-Osborne his Abbey of Lyra, in Normandy: several tombs formerly brasses, which have been stripped off, but by the oldest ounts they belonged to the families of Fry, de Aula, and vno : here is also a handsome tomb of Sir John Leigh, Mary, his lady, who died in the reign of Henry VIII. several monuments of the Worsley family, long possess- of the neighbouring seat of Appuldurcombe: on the north of the church is a striking oil painting, representing iel in the Den of Lions, presented to the church by a ner Earl of Yarborough, of Appuldurcombe, the picture ing been the property of his uncle-in-law, Sir Richard rsley: it is supposed to be a replica corresponding with a ure by Rubens sold in the collection of the Duke of nilton by Messrs. Christie, Manson and Woods, on the 1 of June, 1882, for 4,900 guineas, and bought by Mr. kett Denison, and in 1885 repurchased by the Duke of nilton for £2,600 : the replica differs in many important iculars from the picture belonging to the Duke of Hamil- showing that it is not a mere copy; in all probability figure of Daniel in both pictures was painted by Rubens the remainder from his designs by one or other of the sts who assisted him: the replica is in good preservation entirely uninjured by cleaning. The register dates n the year 1690. The living is a vicarage, yearly value it £200, in the gift of and held since 1867 by the Rev. mas Ratcliffe M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The rch of St. Alban is of iron, which formerly stood in tnor, has been removed to this parish (1889), and re- secrated by the name of St. Alban, and is a chapel of to the parish church, and consists of nave, chancel and tern porch: Rev. Richard Ussher, of Exeter college, ord is curate in charge. The Wesleyans and Baptists e each a chapel here. Sir R. Worsley's charity of £10 ly, derived from land rent-charges, is for eight poor ows, and £5 left by a former rector, the Rev. R. Dixon is distributed in bread. Appuldurcombe, a very ele- mansion, once the residence of the second Earl of Yar- ugh, is now the property of Reginald Freke Williams ; since 1866 it has been occupied as an establishment educating young gentlemen of the higher classes; the ber of pupils is about 45, ranging from the age of eight urteen in the junior school, and fifteen to nineteen in senior school, who are prepared for public schools, the , army, and the universities : it is about 7 miles from port and 3 from Ventnor, and stands in a beautiful , which contains some of the finest-grown timber in the island; the mansion has four regular fronts of the Corinthian order, the grand entrance in the south front being a spacious hall, adorned with eight Ionic columns : a spacious entrance in the west front was built by Charles, Earl of Yarborough: at the highest spot in the park are the remains of a granite obelisk, formerly 70 feet high, till struck by lightning in 1845, which was erected to the memory of Sir R. Worsley, who commenced the mansion in 1710, and died before it was finished. The manor was given, about the latter end of the reign of Henry III. to the Abbey of St. Mary de Montisburgh, in Normandy, by Isabella de Fortibus ; it became a cell of Benedictine monks to that monastery, and had lands seized during the wars in France : it was dissolved in the reign of Henry V. after which, in the reign of Henry VI. it was given to the Minoresses without Aldgate, London, and confirmed to them in the beginning of the reign of Edward IV.; on the site of this priory the mansion now stands. Reginald Freke Williams esq. is lord of the manor of South Godshill, and Frank Barton esq. is lord of the manor of North Godshill. The principal landowners are R. F. Williams esq. John Harvey esq. the Hon. Evelyn C. Anderson Pelham, William George Ward esq. Dudley Albert Hambro esq. Mrs. Conder and Mr. David Henry Gillingham. The soil is various ; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 6,443 acres, and 23 of water and foreshore ; net rateable value, £13,249 ; and the population in 1881 was 1,302, including part of Ventnor.

Rookley is a small hamlet, in the parishes of Godshill and Arreton, principally in the former, from which it is about 2 miles north-west. The Bible Christians have a chapel here.

NEWCHURCH is a village and parish, about 5 miles south-east-by-east from Newport and 6 south-west from Ryde, on the southern bank of the river Yar, which flows into Brading harbour, in the East Medina liberty and rural deanery, Isle of Wight archdeaconry and Winchester diocese. The Isle of Wight Central Railway has a station here. Under the Newchurch Parish Act of 1866 (29 & 30 Vict. cap. cxi.) the ancient parish of Newchurch was divided into the parishes of Newchurch, Ryde and Ventnor, for all civil and ecclesiastical purposes. The church of All Saints, on the summit of a hill, originally built in 1087 by William Fitz-Osborne, and known as one of the "churches of atonement," is an ancient cruciform structure of stone, in the Early English style of the eleventh century, the present building dating from the early part of the thirteenth century, with a chancel, nave, aisles, and transepts, tower with small spire and 6 bells, and contains an organ and several ancient monuments of the Dillington and Bissett families : the church was reopened after restoration in Dec. 1883 ; the high pews have been removed, and the south transept and south side of the nave have been reseated with handsome English oak benches : the edifice has been refloored, several windows opened out, plaster removed from the roof, revealing the open timbers which have been repaired, and oak stalls have been placed in the chancel. There are 200 sittings. The registers date from the year 1692, although there is undoubted proof that an earlier register was kept. On the first page of the first register, which is in an excellent state of preservation, there is the following entry :—"Because of a loose leaf in the other register for buryales before this, I have therefore (lest that might be lost) inserted the same here." This entry is neither signed nor dated, but the entries which follow are dated—the first, Mar. 27th, 1690, and the last "ffebruary" 7th, 1691 : it may be taken for granted that the older register must have been lost sight of in very recent times. The living is a vicarage, tithe commuted at £327, £275 gross, with residence, in the gift of John Campbell Dicker esq. and held since 1831 by the Rev. Alfred Cecil Dicker B.A. of St. John's and Downing Colleges, Cambridge. There is a small Congregational chapel at Langbridge, erected 1847, with 100 sittings; and a Wesleyan chapel at Apse erected 1873, has 100 seats. £10 from charities tributed yearly, arising from various gifts. Ashey partly in this parish and partly in Ryde, is chalk, an of the highest hills in the island, on which is an el The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are owners of the m rights. The principal landowners are Sir Rich Webster Q.C., M.P. Edward Carter, Thomas F. Sebastian Gassiot and John Peter Gassiot esqrs. is sand and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, ba oats. The area is about 4,524 acres; rateable value, the population in 1881 was 1,356.

BRANSTON is 1¼ miles south-west, Wroxall, 4 mil which see ; Princelett, a mile and a half ; Winford south ; Wackland, half a mile south-west ; Apse a son, 3 miles south ; Knighton, a mile north-east ; a mile north ; Queenbower, two-thirds of a mile e the latter place Queen Anne (1702-1714) had a " where she came at certain seasons for the " hawking."

NEWPORT.

PORT is an ancient borough, and well-built market and ay town, occupying a central position on the island on iver Medina, which is navigable to the quay of the town n is 7 miles south-west from Ryde, 5 south from s on the northern, and 9 from Niton on the ern coast of the island, 12 east from Freshwater at its rn and 10 west from St. Helen's at its eastern ex- ty, in the West Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of sle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The great iority of its situation over Carisbrooke for trade rs to have been the cause of its rising into rtance, on the decay of the former more ancient Camden mentions Newport thus:—"Newport, principal merceate toune of the whole isle, in times Medina and Novus Bergus de Meden," that is, the Burgh of Meden. It stands on a pleasant eminence, ed on its east side by the Medina river and on the by the Lukeley, a small stream which falls into the na at the quay. On account of its central position, it en chosen as the head quarters of travellers wishing to all the most attractive parts of the island, for which it ticularly convenient, and itself a most eligible resi- . The town consists of five principal streets, running nd west, and crossed at right angles by three others, well paved and lighted with gas supplied by the New- ras Company. Water is obtained from works situated risbrooke, the property of the Corporation.

Cowes and Newport Railway was opened to Cowes in and a line of rail from Newport to Ryde was completed 76, and another from Newport to Sandown opened on ary 1st, 1875, and connected with the two former 1879. er line of railway from Newport to Freshwater and Yar- n was opened July 20th, 1889. This town is incorporated t of Parliament, and by a charter of James I.; the ning charter was granted 13 Charles II.; it comprises rish of Newport, and parts of the parishes of Caris- e, Northwood, St. Nicholas and Whippingham: its ation consists of a mayor, 6 aldermen and 18 coun- , who also act as the urban sanitary authority; the gh has a commission of the peace. Before the Municipal n Act the corporation consisted of a mayor, a recorder, ef burgesses, 11 aldermen, self-elected, and freemen, om there seemed not to have been any definite number; it returned two members to Parliament, until the passing of the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," when the number was reduced to one, and by the Boundary Act, 1868, the parliamentary borough was extended by the addition of certain other portions of the parishes of Carisbrooke and Whippingham; it was however disfranchised by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885."

The church of St. Thomas the Apostle has been rebuilt, the foundation stone being laid by H.R.H. Prince Albert on the 24th day of August, 1854; the new church, built of stone, is a highly enriched specimen of the Early Decorated style, deserving of admiration for the excellence of its proportions and for the gracefulness and elaborate character of its sculptured decorations: it consists of a chancel with north and south chancel aisles, a clerestoried nave, with gabled aisles, and vestry, north and south porches, and a lofty, well-proportioned embattled tower and with pinnacles at the west end containing a peal of 8 bells, and a clock with chimes: the interior is lofty and noble; the roof is open, of timber, with moulded ribs and sculptured corbels: a splendid monument (by Marochetti) to the memory of the Prince Consort was placed in the church by the mayor, vicar, churchwardens and other inhabitants: there are two beautiful stained windows, the gift of her Majesty and the Prince Consort; the east window is a magnificent work of art, by Holland, of Warwick: the vault of Elizabeth, second daughter of Charles I. discovered in 1793, is near the communion table, and a stone, with the initials E. S., marked the spot: she, as well as her royal parent, was confined in Carisbrooke Castle, and died in 1650, about a year and a half after her father was beheaded; a beautiful monument of white marble (a recumbent figure) also by Marochetti, was placed here to the memory of this princess by her Majesty Queen Victoria in 1856; there is also a monument to Sir Edward Horsey, captain of the Isle of Wight, who died in 1582: the church contains a very fine organ: the pulpit is a piece of beautiful workmanship, bearing the date of 1636. There are 1,400 sittings. The register dates from the early part of the fourteenth century. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since 1883 by the Ven. Henry Haigh M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, Archdeacon of the Isle of Wight.

St. John the Baptist, situated on the south-west side of the town, in St. John's road, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1836 from Carisbrooke civil parish: the church is of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1837, at a cost of about £4,500, raised by subscriptions and grants, and consists of chancel and nave and south vestry: the chancel windows are stained: there are two octagonal turrets, one on each side of the western door: the organ, part of which was presented by the late Prince Consort, is about to be enlarged at a cost of £300: it contains a monument to the Rev. W. C. Wilson, erected in 1861 by non-commissioned officers and privates: there are 800 sittings, one-third of which are free. The register dates from the year 1838. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from endowment £30, with pew rents and a house, in the gift of the trustees, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Henry Graham Thwaites. The population in 1881 was 3,661.

The Catholic chapel, in Pyle street, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, was erected in 1791, at a cost of £3,000, having been built by Mrs. Elizabeth Heneage: daughter and heiress of John Brown esq. (late of Gatcombe,) it is a plain brick building, and will seat about 500 persons.

The Congregational chapel in Lower St. James street, built in 1699, rebuilt in 1848, is a handsome stone building, and will seat about 500 persons.

The Castlehold Baptist chapel at the top of High street is a brick building, erected in 1812, at a cost of about £2,000, and was enlarged and improved in 1872, and will seat 570 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, Pyle street, has 650 sittings; the PrimitiveMethodist chapel,also inPyle street, has 320 sittings; and Unitarian chapel, High street, will seat 150 persons. The Bible Christians have a handsome new chapel with spire, spacious school and class rooms in Quay street, built in 1880, which will hold 550 persons. The Society of Friends and the Brethren have meeting rooms.

The Salvation Army have barracks situated in Quay street.

A cemetery, situated in the Ryde road, was formed in 1871, at a cost of £3,000, and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

Worsley's Almshouses, situated in Crocker street, were originally founded by Giles Kent, who, by his will, devised them for the purpose of maintaining five aged people of the borough of Newport or the parish of Godshill. In the year 1618 these houses were conveyed to the Corporation of Newport, and the charity was endowed with a rent charge of £10 by Sir Richard Worsley, bart., and was further endowed by Christian Roman, of Shorwell, with a yearly sum of £10. They were rebuilt in 1879.

The Almshouses in High street, called "Upper Almshouses," consist of four tenements of one room each. It is supposed they were founded by Stephen Marsh, a mayor of Newport, about the year 1650, but are not endowed. These are occupied by four poor widows who are chosen by the churchwardens for the time being.

The general charities are of the value of £40, and are distributed yearly by the churchwardens in gifts of bread and groceries at Christmas and Easter. In addition to above, John Mann's charity, amounting to £53 16s. 4d., is devoted to the apprenticing of four or five boys annually.

The Town Hall, in High street, stands in the centre of a square, at the intersection of two streets, under it is the market place. It is a nearly square building, erected in 1816, from designs by Nash, the eminent architect, at a cost of £10,000, supported on a double set of arches, and is built of brick, except the pillars and cornices, which are of Bath stone: the whole is cemented over and painted white. A tablet, 11ft. by 6½ft., has been placed in the council chamber, bearing the names of all the mayors of the borough from the year 1607 down to the present time; above are the borough arms carved, and immediately below are particulars of all the charters granted to the borough since the reign of Henry II.; on the south and west sides, and facing the High street, are balconies and a clock. A new clock-tower of stone has been erected at the south west c[orner] the Town Hall. The corporation have (1889) de[cided] erect a Corn Exchange in St. James's square. T[here] three banks and a savings bank, a well-conducte[d] and several good inns. At Dodnor, about 2 miles [from] the town, are the extensive cement works of Charles [Aspdin] Son & Co., of 17, Gracechurch street, London, wh[ere] a large number of hands in the manufacture of [Portland] and Medina cements. The market days are on S[aturday] and alternate Wednesdays; the corn market is he[ld] Saturday; formerly there were three days (Sat[urday] those nearest Michaelmas, called Bargain Saturda[y] young men and women assembled in the town an[d] register offices, offering themselves as servants for t[he] y[ear]

The Isle of Wight Institution, situated in St. [James's] square, is a handsome building built of Swanag[e] stone erected in 1810 at a cost of £3,000; it has a la[rge] well-supplied news room and valuable library; [it] been purchased by the Isle of Wight Club Co. Limi[ted], is now used for the purposes of a social club. T[he] N[ew]port Literary Society and Museum, in Quay st[reet], an excellent reading room and library, containi[ng] 2[,] volumes; the museum contains an interesting coll[ection] objects chiefly found on the island.

The Newport Free Club in Lugley street was fo[unded] 1887 by the late Charles Seely esq. of Brook, and [is] ported entirely by his son; it contains a library [of] 3,000 volumes, reading and smoking rooms, and is op[en] noon till 11 p.m. and is free to all.

A good trade exists here in timber and malt, and [a] quantity of wheat and flour is exported. The chief [trade] the town consists of the general supply of articles c[on]ducive with subsistence and comfort to the villages aro[und] Albany barracks close by. The Albany barracks, o[r] known as Parkhurst barracks, built in 1799, occupy [a] spa[ce] of ground 1,600 ft. by 766 ft., and contain officers' [quarters] twenty large and small barracks, capable of hold[ing] non-commissioned officers and men, and 186 wo[men] children, with commandant's and chief accountant's r[esi]dence. An extensive camping ground is enclosed Par[k] hurst Prison was formed out of the hospital of the l[ate] which was assigned by Government in 1838 as a gener[al] penitentiary: on the 31st of January, 1855, a fire t[ook] in the prison and consumed property to the valu[e] of [£]wards £1,000; building operations are now (1889) go[ing] there is at present room for between 700 and 800 [pris]oners. The Drill Hall will hold 1,000 persons, it is let for [pub]entertainments, and is the headquarters of the loc[al] teers. The villas in the neighbourhood, as in ever[y] this beautiful island, are situated amongst en[chanting] scenery. The area of the parish is 58 acres; rateab[le] £15,466; the population of the parish in 1881 was [3,2]the municipal population 9,357.

NITON is an extremely pretty village and parish, 5 miles west from Ventnor and 8½ south from Newport, in East Medina liberty and rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester, beautifully situated at the south-west angle of the island, and considered one of the most romantic spots in the Undercliff district. Here are several mansions and some lodging houses, having fine views of the sea. The church of St. John the Baptist is built of freestone, in the Transitional style, with some traces of Norman architecture, and consists of chancel, nave, north transept with north and south aisles of the latter ancient, the former added on the site of the ancient one in 1864, south porch and a square embattled western tower and short spire, containing 1 bell:

antiquity, and was one of those given by William Fitzrne to his Abbey of Lyra, in Normandy: the church to the Crown at the dissolution of religious houses, was, with five other churches in Hampshire, given to n's College, Oxford, by Charles I. There are 250 gs. The register dates from the year 1560. The is a rectory, yearly value, £368, with 19 acres of , in the gift of Queen's College, Oxford, and held since by the Rev. George Wynne Jeudwine M.A. of Corpus ti college, Oxford. Near the church are the steps of cient cross, upon which a shaft was erected in 1874, designs furnished by Joseph Clarke F.S.A. # RYDE.

RYDE is a large and handsome seaside town, municipal borough, railway station, and a parish 7 miles east-north-east from Newport, 5 south-by-west from Portsmouth, in North-east Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester, and is beautifully situated, rising from the shores of the Solent, up the slope of a hill, from which Spithead, Portsmouth, Stokes Bay, and the Mother Bank are readily seen. Ryde, considered as a town, is wholly of modern date; a hundred years ago it was a small village, but the beauty of its position has caused it to become a fashionable watering place, and elegant villas and noble mansions have been built; the hilly nature of the site give many advantages of appearance and aspect, and the principal streets are open and well paved and regularly arranged, most of them crossing each other nearly at right angles: several of the best streets run parallel to each other in almost a direct line to the beach, and from their elevated position one above the other, afford an admirable sea-view.

The pier, which forms a pleasant promenade, is a structure of timber, extending from the Quay to low-water mark—a distance of nearly half-a-mile: it was opened in 1814, but has since received repeated additions amounting in all to no less than 1,000 feet: in 1864 a tramway with a double line of rails was laid down its whole length for conveyance of passengers in covered carriages from the station to the pier head: in 1886 horses were dispensed with and electricity substituted. The works, carried out by the joint railway companies, the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway company, the London and South-Western Railway company, the Isle of Wight Railway company and the Ryde, Newport and Cowes Railway company, enable the traveller to step direct from the trains into the boats at Stokes Bay, Portsmouth and Ryde: at Ryde this involved a pier half-a-mile long, by the side of the existing pier, and a tunnel under part of the town: owing to the depth of the silt deposit under the pier and the treacherous nature of the soil, through which the tunnel had to be driven, this undertaking was attended with great difficulties, which, however, were successfully overcome by the engineers of the companies and their representative on the works, Mr. Ernest Benedict M.I.C.E.

From the Railway stations, situated at the foot of the pier and in St John's road, the railway passes by Brading, Sandown and Shanklin to Ventnor, and a branch was opened on February 1st, 1875 from Sandown to Newport; there is also a third line from Ryde to Newport direct and thence to Cowes.

There is also an extensive esplanade, affording a carriage drive of nearly a mile in front of the sea and a footpath extending to Sea View, 3 miles east, where there is good bathing on fine sands.

Steamboats ply between this place and Portsmouth, Southsea, Portsea and Stokes Bay every hour in the day during the summer months, and from eight to ten times a day in the winter; there are also boats to Cowes and Southampton, and occasional excursions are made to various parts round the island.

The municipal borough was incorporated in 1868 and comprises most of the parish of Ryde, and a small part of St. Helen's parish, and is divided into east and west wards: the corporation consists of a mayor, six aldermen and eighteen councillors, who also act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The borough has a commission of the peace.

The town is lighted with gas and paved, under an act of Parliament obtained in 1829: this Act was amended in 1847, and the jurisdiction of the roads within the town transferred from the Commissioners of Highways to the Ryde Commissioners; the Act was again amended in 1868 for the purpose of conferring extended sanitary powers, including a supply of water, and for making the Commission an elective instead of a non-elective body: and an additional Act was obtained in 1861 for the purpose of securing a further supply of water: the town and neighbourhood is now supplied with a constant service of water obtained from Knighton near Newchurch and Ashey. The police are under the control of the Corporation

Ryde was formed into a separate parish in 1845; it formerly was attached to Newchurch, the parish church of which is about 7 miles from Ryde, but was separated by Act 29 & 30 Vict. cap. cxi.

The parish church of All Saints, situated in the Queen's road, was erected in 1870, at a cost of about £18,000, from the designs of the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A.: it is a magnificent building of stone in the Geometrical Early Gothic style, consisting of chancel with north chapel, nave s, aisles, north porch and a lofty tower on the north , with arcaded pinnacles, and an octagonal spire, re- ed by dormer lights, and containing 2 bells: the fine th porch is flanked by buttresses with canopied niches, taining figures of SS. John and Andrew: in the gable is isped recess, enclosing a sitting figure of Our Lord; ided turrets rise above the buttresses, and on either side he porch are three stained windows, with the arms, nogram and motto of the late Prince Consort, erected by nbers of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club in 1872: the t front has arcaded pinnacles between the gables; the and west windows and nine others are stained: an open apet runs round the entire structure: the fine reredos labaster and marbles, consists of three divisions: the ral portion, which projects, is subdivided into three are panels, one of which is canopied and exhibits a ip of the "Crucifixion," and those on either side have ls within ornamented borders: the whole is sur- nded by a banding relieved with bosses: the wings ex- ling on each side of the walls are arcaded, and display ous groups: the church contains sittings for about 0, all of which are free. The register dates from the 1719. The living is a vicarage, tithe-rent charge £220, yearly value £320, with residence, and £120 for curate, he gift of the Bishops of Gloucester, Bristol and Win- ster, and held since 1868 by the Rev. Alexander Poole M.A. t. John's College, Cambridge. The population in 1881 7,486.

he church of St. Thomas, situated in St. Thomas' street, chapel of ease to the parish church, and was built by Player family, to whom the building, although conse- ed, belongs, and whose arms appear on the west front: an edifice of stone in a poor Perpendicular style, con- ng of chancel and nave under a single roof, aisles and mbattled western engaged tower with octagonal spire, aining a clock; the church is overgrown with ivy; it ains 1,000 sittings, of which 100 are free. The Rev. hard Hosgood B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham, has been ate in charge since 1889.

oly Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1846. church in Dover street, situated on a commanding eleva- , is a building of stone in the Early English style, consist- of chancel, nave of 6 bays, aisles, transepts, south porch a western tower, with pinnacles and a spire rising to a ht of 150 feet: the church was built in 1845 at a cost of ut £7,200, and has 1,050 sittings, of which 500 are free. south transept was added in 1848, the north in 1860; 886 the church was thoroughly restored, the floor of the ncel raised and tiled, and oaken benches provided for the r at a cost of £800; an oaken reredos was erected in 3 by Robert Richardson esq. as a memorial to his sister niece. The font of carved stone bears a Latin inscrip- by the Rev. John Keble, which states that the font was a nk offering by the Yard family for the preservation of present Major Yard from drowning whilst rescuing a panion. There are several stained windows. The ster dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £250, which is derived from pew rents and , in the gift of the vicar of Ryde, and held since 1846 by Rev. Arthur John Wade M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. area is 137 acres; the population in 1881 was 3,668.

t. James' church, Lind street, was erected in 1829 at a of about £6,000, as an Episcopal proprietary chapel: it low embattled structure of stone in a debased Gothic e, and consists of chancel, nave of six bays and aisles: west front is ornamented with octagonal embattled tur- , and has a bell turret with clock: the east window is ned; there are about 1,100 sittings, 300 of which are . The register dates from the year [ ]. The living is a petual curacy, gross yearly value £530, derived from rtories and pew rents, and held since 1865 by the Rev. liam Henry Redknap, who is the patron.

he Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, situated at the of High street, and erected in 1845 at the sole cost of abeth, Countess of Clare, is an edifice in the Lancet e, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, baptistery, side pel, north porch, and open turret with spire containing lls: over the altar there is a fine picture of the Cruci- n, with St. Mary and St. John, copied from an original he Sistine chapel at Rome: it also contains a highly hed picture of The Annunciation: over the altar is a ned trefoil window memorial to Lady Clare (1881); there two other stained windows; the chapel was enlarged and north porch added in 1883: here are 250 sittings: ched to the church is a presbytery. The Right Rev. nsignor Provost John Cahill B.A. (Lond.), Vicar-General, riest.

he Congregational church in George street, erected in t, is a singular gabled edifice of Swanage stone, with h stone dressings in the Geometrical Decorated style, has a square tower diminishing upwards into an octagon terminating in an arcaded turret with spire. There are other smaller Congregational chapels at Upton road, Week's road and Green lane.

Christ Church Baptist chapel, also in George street, and erected in 1862, is a building of red and white brick in the Early English style, and has a turret with spire, and will seat about 600 persons; there is a good schoolroom at the back of the building.

Park road Baptist chapel was erected in 1870 at a cost of about £1,000, and will seat about 500 persons: underneath the chapel is a large room used for school, lectures, and other purposes.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, Star street, was built in 1841, and enlarged in 1860, and will seat about 250 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Garfield road, is a building of brick, erected in 1884-5, in a debased Italian style; the front gable is flanked by small turrets, and has a large Geometrical window, and a double entrance porch; on either side are wings with staircases.

The Free Wesleyans have a chapel in William street, Swanmore, which was erected in 1836; it will seat about 150 persons.

The Bible Christians' chapel, erected in 1860 in Newport street, is a simple structure of white brick in the Classic style, and will seat about 400 persons: there is a minister's residence adjoining.

The Salvation Army Barracks, erected in 1888 in Green street, will seat 450 persons.

The Brethren make use of the Town Hall as a place of worship.

A cemetery, situated in West street, formed at a cost of £8,000, was consecrated in 1842, and has two mortuary chapels, and now comprises 10 acres: it is under the control of the Ryde Corporation, acting as the burial board.

The Market House and Town Hall is a substantial building of stone in the classic style, the foundation stone of which was laid in 1830 by John Lind esq.: the basement is rusticated, and the structure has a projecting colonnaded entrance with Ionic pilasters, pediment and balustrading: above is a square clock tower with an open turret, surrounded by Corinthian pillars, and finished with a cupola and vane. The market days are Tuesday and Friday. The Royal Victoria Arcade contains 14 shops and a spacious room for the exhibition of works of art. Opposite the Town Hall are the Victoria rooms, a building with a stone front enriched with Corinthian columns, supporting an ornamental cornice.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club House, situated in St. Thomas' street on the west side of the pier, contains a noble suite of rooms: the first stone was laid by H.R.H. the Prince Consort on March 2nd, 1846, and in 1864 the club house was enlarged and much improved: the club regatta is held in the month of August, the town regatta also taking place during the club regatta week.

The Philosophical and Scientific Society, formed in 1850, had a museum of curiosities in nature and art, but the Society having been dissolved, the museum has been placed in the School of Art.

Ryde Young Men's Christian Association and Literary Institute, situated in Lind street, is a well-built structure, erected at a cost of about £2,000, and consists of a suite of rooms comprising lecture hall, reading room, reference and circulating libraries. Public lectures are given during the winter months. The reading room is supplied with the daily, local and religious papers, quarterly reviews, and a large number of magazines. The library contains upwards of 8,000 volumes.

The Temperance Hall, in the High street, was built in 1884; used for lectures.

The Odd Fellows' Hall, also in the High street, and erected in 1880, is an edifice of brick in the Classic style; the front displays six columns of the Corinthian order, with cornice and pediment, enriched with the arms and supporters of the order.

Here is a theatre, which is open during the summer months.

The Vectis Physical Recreation Courts, erected by B. Barrow esq. in 1889 are in Bennett street; the building is 100 feet long by 36 feet wide; one half of the floor is set apart as a racquet court; the other is furnished with every appliance for the exercise of gymnastics. There is a spacious gallery for spectators.

Ryde has several good hotels; among the most conspicuous may be named the Royal Pier Hotel, the Kent Hotel, Union street, the Royal Eagle Hotel in Pier street, and the Esplanade Hotel. The lodging houses are very numerous.

The Capital and Counties Bank and the National Provincial Bank have branches in Union street.

Three newspapers are published in Ryde: 'The Isle of Wight Observer,' the 'Isle of Wight Times,' and the 'Ryde News': all papers give a weekly list of fashionable arrivals, and addresses of the resident families.

The Ryde Dispensary, in Newport street, was established in 1842; there were 477 patients treated during the year 1888.

The Royal Isle of Wight Infirmary, in Swanmore road, was erected in 1849 at a cost of upwards of £2,000, and is supported by public subscriptions: the Infirmary was enlarged in 1866, and again in 1882 and 1888, and has 54 beds: in 1888 the number of in-patients was 468, of out-patients 2,081, and of dental patients 683.

Wilder's Almshouses, in Newport street, consist of six houses, and were erected in 1854 in memory of Francis Boyle Shannon Wilder esq. by his widow Augusta: the houses are intended for 12 widows or spinsters of the Church of England, who reside here rent free and receive sundry gratuities of coals &c.: the almshouses are under the charge of the vicar and churchwardens of Ryde: there are gardens in front, and over the entrance an impaled shield of arms.

The neighbourhood abounds with objects of interest, including Binstead Quarries and Church, and the ruins of Quarr Abbey.

The area of the parish is 3,816 acres; rateable value, £74,318. The population of the borough in 1881 was 11,461, and of the parish 12,817, including 39 in the infirmary.

Parish clerk: George Beazley, Newport street.

SWANMORE is a suburb of Ryde, which was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1864. The church of St. Michael and All Angels is a cruciform building of stone with brick dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave of 4 bays, aisle, transepts, and a central embattled tower, containing 3 bells: the church was first opened in 1862 and completed in 1874 at a cost of £ [illegible]: there are 500 sittings, all free. The living is a vicarage, net yearly valu[e] £[illegible], chiefly derived from pew rents, in the gift of the v[icar of] St. Helen's, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Henry [illegible] M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. The ancient p[ark] of St. John's is now nearly covered with houses. [illegible] Towers, the seat of Lady Hutt, is a handsome buil[ding] in the Elizabethan style, with a lofty tower rising fr[om the] centre and a fine clock-tower over the east wing. [The] principal landowners are the trustees of the late Ma[jor] Sir George Hutt K.C.B. Col. F. V. Harcourt, Lieu[t.] the Hon. Somerset John Gough Calthorpe J.P. and [Com]mander Sebastin Gassiot R.N. The area is 950 acre[s]: population in 1881 was 2,881.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Brading.

ST. HELEN'S, with SEA VIEW, SPRING VALE, and NETTLESTONE.

ST. HELEN'S is a large parish 4 miles south-east from Ryde and 10 east from Newport, finely situated on the Bay called St. Helen's Road, much used in the time of war as a rendezvous for the Royal Navy, in the East Medina liberty, and South-east Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The Local Government Act of 1858 was adopted by the Drainage District July 9, 1872, and is governed by a local board of 12 members. In January 1868, by a Secretary of State's Order, under the Sanitary Act, 1866, and Sewage Utilization Act, 1867, the portion of the parish not included in Local Board district was divided into four special districts, viz.: St. John's, Spring Vale, Sea View Helen's. The ancient church of St. Helen was close to the sea side, and the churchyard was encroached upon by the sea in the beginning of century as to endanger the church, which was pull part of the tower, which is still standing, being left mark; the church, rebuilt in 1717, in a more situation, and again rebuilt in the year 1831, is an

one with brick dressings in the Gothic style, consisting of ancel, nave of 2 bays, aisles, transepts, and a western wer containing 1 bell; the chancel was rebuilt in 1862, d contains a fine stained window: in the chancel are eral mural tablets memorial to members of the Grose nily; one is to Sir Nash Grose, judge of the Court of ng's Bench, ob. 1814, and another to his only son Edward ose, who was mortally wounded at Waterloo: there are o sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The ing is a vicarage; gross yearly value £137, in the gift of on College, to whom it was given on the dissolution of the iory by Henry VI. and held since 1872 by the Rev. William . Richards M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. There are sleyan, Free Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. The age, called St. Helen's Green, stands about half-a-mile to south-east of the church, and as much inland from the , near Brading Harbour. The Priory, founded for Cluniac nks, about the year 1155, has been the seat of the Grose nily and their ancestors since the reign of James II. and now the residence of Henley Grose Smith esq.; it is utifully situated on the shore at the head of a spacious n, which gently declines from the house to the brink of igh ridge overhanging the sea, and is covered with wood the water's edge, through which various pleasant walks e been formed: the priory property was afterwards ropriated by Henry VI. and used by him for the building l endowment of Eton College. Henley Grose Smith esq. lord of the manor. The principal landowners are the stees of late Major-General Sir George Hutt K.C.B. H. se Smith esq. and Samuel William Ridley esq. The is chalk; subsoil, clay: the chief crops are wheat, ley, oats and beans: the area is 1,883 acres of land and of water and foreshore; rateable value, £22,594: the ulation in 1881 was 4,343.

OAKFIELD is a hamlet and small village near Ryde, which

T. JOHN'S, part of this parish, is a suburb of Ryde, ch see.

EA VIEW is a pretty village and sea-bathing place, ated at the north-east of the island, with the most uisite rural scenery, besides beautiful views across the nnel of Spithead to Portsmouth directly opposite, with Sussex coast in the distance: it is 3 miles east from le and a mile north from St. Helen's church: the shore lmost unrivalled for its beauty, and its fine smooth sands der it especially adapted for sea-bathing: there is a pension pier, erected in 1880-1, 1,000 feet in length; this just (1889) been extended by the erection of a pier d 50 feet long. The proprietary chapel, erected in 1850 he subscriptions of the residents who visit here in the mer, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting ave of 4 bays, and north aisle and north porch: the services conducted by the Vicar of St. Helen's: there are 300 sit- s. There are two Wesleyan chapels. There is a comfort- inn and several furnished houses, and in the parish are Grove, the seat of William Anthony Glynn esq. D.L., J.P.; ield, of Mrs. Conder; Sea View House, Henry Ford lay esq. and Fairy Hill, the residence of Rev. William ry Richards M.A. The principal landowners are William ony Glynn esq. John Henry Glynn Oglander esq. J.P. Mrs. Conder.

PRING VALE is another hamlet, situated between Sea View Ryde, 2 miles from the latter. The houses in this ge are erected along the seashore, overlooking the nnel, Ryde pier, Southampton Water, and the Hants Sussex coasts: to the east are the wooded heights at back of Sea View; adjacent is St. Clare, the beautiful llated mansion of Augustus George Vernon-Harcourt esq. and Westridge, the property of Richard Phipps esq.: bathing machines are provided.

SAINT LAWRENCE is a parish and village on the sea coast, 9 miles south-south-east from Newport and 2 west from Ventnor, in the East Medina liberty and rural deanery, archdeacoury of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The old Church of St. Lawrence, built in the reign of Richard I. and enlarged in 1849, is one of the smallest in England, its dimensions being 25 feet in length, 11 feet in width, and 11 feet 4½ inches in height; it is now used as a mortuary chapel. The present church of St. Lawrence was opened August 6th, 1878, and was built by subscription, at a cost of £4,000 and will seat about 300 persons; it is a fine stone building in the Decorated style, by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and north porch, and western turret containing 2 bells. In the chancel is a brass to the Rev. Clifford Malden M.A. late rector of the parish, who died in 1886. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a rectory, yearly value £110, in the gift of the Hon. Evelyn Cornwallis Anderson Pelham D.L, J.P. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Robert William Odell M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge; the rectory house was built at a cost of £1,500; there are 17 acres of glebe. The view from the old churchyard is singularly beautiful and picturesque: the slope of the hill on which the church stands is so great that a road has been cut like a groove; on the opposite side a cliff, some hundred feet high and nearly perpendicular, towers overhead; yet, from the richness of the soil that clings to the rocks, they are clothed with clusters of flowers and shrubs, flourishing in the crevices. The Royal National Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, was first originated by Dr. Arthur Hill Hassall and the late Right Hon. Sir Lawrence Peel in 1869: the patients are placed in a series of ten houses or villas, well sheltered from unfavourable winds, and have large sitting and se ate sleeping rooms, which are all inhabited; each hous ives accommodation to at least six patients, and the expe of building most of them has been defrayed by the e al charitable persons whose names they bear: the si and grounds comprise twenty-two acres, and command a ely view both of land and sea: the hospitals are half fo men and half for women; the original scheme was to ere gle houses only, but for the practical working of the insti ion, it was considered necessary to have two others as sub iary hospitals—one for men, the other for women, wh were either waiting their turn for entrance into the h pital proper, or in whose cases a longer residence was des ble: there is also a handsome chapel named St. Luke the services in which are open to the public, and a librar the hospital contains nearly 140 beds, and the average n ber of patients are about 650 per year: the mode of adm sion is by letters of recommendation, which can be obtaine from the governors; each patient is expected to pay ten sh gs a week; there are usually about 100 applicants wa g to enter. The Hon. Evelyn Cornwallis Anderson Pelha J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. T soil is chalky marl, rich in fossils; subsoil, good freest building. The land is principally in pasture but the sm cereals are also grown. The area is 327 acres, the g part of which is a slip of land forming a part of the ro tract called the Undercliff; rateable value, £1,59 population in 1881 was 249, including 126 in the Consu Hospital.

NDOWN is a sea-bathing place and ecclesiastical h, formed in 1847 out of the parish of Brading (9 miles h-east from Newport and 6 south from Ryde), in the h-east Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle Vight and diocese of Winchester, and is beautifully ted at the head of a fine open bay on the south of the d, between Dunnose and Culver Cliff, commanding nsive views of the sea, the cliffs, the Bay of Sandown some picturesque inland scenery. The salt water at part of the island is strong and pure, and the sands, h gradually shelve to the sea, being smooth, firm and from pebbles, the bathing, for which there is an ample ly of bathing machines, is extremely pleasant. Here is r, 360 feet long, opened in May; 1878, which it is pro- l to extend considerably. A sea wall has now (1889] built and a new promenade constructed on the east of the pier, the total length of which is 850 feet on the nd 680 on the west side of the pier. The houses stand y on a gently rising ground, far above the level of the nd the atmosphere at this delightful place is particularly l and salubrious. The Isle of Wight railway has a n here, and junction of the line opened Feb. 1875, this place to Newport. The parish adopted the Local rnment Act, 1858, August 28, 1860, and is governed by al Board of Health of 15 members. Christ Church, arish church, erected in 1845, is a spacious building of , in the Early English and Geometrical Decorated , consisting of chancel and nave, under a single open red roof, with continuous aisles to both : north tran- l vestry and a tower on the south side, with octagonal h spire, the lower stage of the tower forming the nce; the east window and four others are stained, one a memorial to Lieut. Boxer R.N., one of the officers erished in the ill-fated "Captain ;" another, at the end of the south aisle, was erected to the Rev. W. as, founder of the church, and vicar from 1847 to in the north aisle is a tablet inscribed to Major H. h, of the 39th regiment, d. 1867, and Elizabeth his the octagonal font has a marble basin, panelled and rted on shafts of porphyry, and is a memorial to eth Havard Wragge, presented in 1879 by her parents ; estern doorway, an elegant work in the Early English was erected in memory of Sir Henry Oglander, of ell, bart. who died in 1876 ; the church was enlarged 3 and 1874 ; there are sittings for 800 persons. The er dates from the year 1848. The living is a vicarage, early value £359, including 18 acres of glebe, with nce, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and since 1881 by the Rev. Wm. Townsend Storrs B.D. ar and surrogate. The Church of St. John, Lower wn, erected in 1880-1, and consecrated October 13, is a spacious and lofty edifice of stone, in the Early h style, from designs by Mr. C. Luck, of London, nsists of shallow chancel and clerestoried nave of five oth under a single open-timbered roof, aisles, vestry, porch, and over the second bay from the east end an octagonal bell-cote, with tall shingled spirelet : the al feature of this church is its unusual height, the e from the floor to the interior ridge of the roof being o feet; at the west end of the nave is a tablet of er and marble to the Rev. Gilbert S. Karney M.A., f Sandown, 1871-81 : the organ cost £600, and there ings for 600 persons. The register dates from the 882. The living is a vicarage, income (derived from nts and offertory) uncertain, in the gift of the Church age Society, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Ludovic s Andre Mouton, of Wadham College, Oxford. The an Chapel, Pell street, erected in 1865, is a building e, the style being Early English of a Continental type: ists of a chancel and nave, with small transepts, and st front is flanked by two open turrets and lighted by window with plate tracery : there are 300 sittings. ongregational Chapel, Leed street, founded in 1866, and rebuilt in 1873, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, with a low square tower rising into an octagonal arcaded turret with spire : the front gable displays a good geometric window, with entrance porch. There are 400 seats. The Primitive Methodist Chapel, Fort street, erected in 1866, is a building of stone, in a plain Early English style, and will seat 120 persons. The Baptist Chapel, Pell street, was erected in 1885, and will hold 200 persons. The Bible Christian Chapel, in York road, was founded in 1828, and the present building erected in 1882, will seat 400 persons. The Town hall, built in 1869, and situated in Grafton street, is a plain brick building and consists of public hall with gallery, and will seat 520 persons, with dressing room and necessary offices. New local board offices were added in 1888. The Oddfellows have a hall here. The existing barracks are only a portion of those originally erected, and are now used as a military hospital and as quarters for the Isle of Wight Militia Staff. There are three good hotels, viz., the Sandown hotel, the Royal Pier hotel and the King's Head ; there are also numerous furnished villas and lodging houses, and several handsome shops. The Capital and Counties Bank has a branch here. The population in 1871 was 3,466, and in 1881 3,859, including 28 in the military hospital and battery. Rateable value £20,147.

[ALFLEET is a parish, situated about 4 miles east n Yarmouth and 6 west from Newport, in the West lina liberty and rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle Wight and diocese of Winchester. The church (not icated) is an ancient stone structure, chiefly in the Early glish style with traces of Norman, having chancel, nave, th aisle, with north and south porches (the former con- ning some curious stone carving), and low, square em- tled western tower and spire containing 2 bells, which been considered of Saxon architecture, but the decorated a, with ornamental work running round it, prove it to Norman, and which style may be traced in several parts the structure. There are 350 sittings. The register es from the year 1604. The living is a discharged rage, gross yearly value £197, with residence and 5 s of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and held e 1881 by the Rev. John Thomas M.A. of Jesus College, ord. Here are places of worship for Wesleyans, Primi- Methodists and Baptists. This parish contains three iors, viz. Shalfleet, Ningwood, a mile and a half west, Wellow, 2 miles south-west. Sir John Stephen Barring- Simeon bart.is the lord of the manor of Shalfleet and Lord Heytesbury lord of the manor of Wellow, and Miss Rose Penethorne, part owner, of Ningwood. The principal land- owners are Lord Heytesbury, Sir J. S. Barrington Simeon bart. and W. G. Ward esq. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 6,310 acres of stiff clay, sand and woodland and 361 of water and foreshore; rateable value, £6,041; the population in 1881 was 1,050, including part of Newtown, Calbourne. WELLOW is 2 miles south- west, and Ningwood 1 mile west. NEWBRIDGE and HULVER- STONE are hamlets. Here is a Baptist chapel.

ANKLIN is a rapidly rising watering-place, parish railway station 8 miles south-east from Newport, 9 from Ryde and 4 north-east from Ventnor, on the , in the South-east Medina liberty and rural deanery, deaconery of the Isle of Wight, diocese of Winchester. all portion of the town is situated under high cliffs, he more fashionable part is on elevated ground, having htful views of the sea, and very romantic inland ry. This place has rapidly improved and increased, n 1863 was placed under the Local Government Act of and is governed by a board of 9 members: it is dantly supplied with excellent water from works entnor road, of which the Shanklin Local Board he proprietors; and is also lighted with gas by a any whose works are situated at Landguard road. Ryde and Ventnor railway has a station here. A pier course of construction; about half is completed up to but its length will be 1,200 feet, with landing stage eam boats at low water; it is not open yet for traffic. hurch of St. John the Baptist is a cruciform building one and wood in the Perpendicular style; it was ughly restored and two transepts added, in 1859, at ost of the patron and incumbent. it consists of chancel, transepts, south aisle, east porch, and central spire ining 1 bell: the original part was built in the reign of Stephen, when his brother, Henry de Blois, was p of Winchester: it contains a piscina, also a very is chest, carved with the name of Thomas Silksted, prior of Winchester; there are also memorials to the es of Hill and Popham: a handsome stained window and tablet are in the north transept, to the memory of the r incumbent, the Rev. G. W. Southouse, presented by habitants. There are 250 sittings. The register dates the year 1724. The living is a donative, gross yearly £345 in the gift of Francis White Popham esq. and ince 1881 by the Rev. William Barry Cole B.A. of College, Cambridge. St. Saviour's-on-the-Cliff is an iastical parish, formed in 1869. The church is a build- stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, and south aisles of four bays, and a handsome tower at est end of the north aisle, surmounted by a spire, and was d at a cost of upwards of £10,000: the tower contains l of 8 bells, dedicated on the 27th of July, 1887; st window of the chancel is filled with finely stained Adjoining the church are parochial buildings. are 750 sittings. The register dates from the year 1869. The living is a vicarage, of the gross yearly value of £314, including endowment of £20, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Shanklin, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Chas. Isherwood Burland M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. The ecclesiastical parish of St. Paul's Gatten was formed out of the parish of Brading in 1876. The church of St. Paul, in Station road, is a stone building, in the Early English style, built by subscription but not completed: it has chancel, nave and aisles of three bays; the fnuds to enable the church to be built were chiefly collected through the exertions of the Rev. J. W Grane, who was to have been the first incumbent, but who died suddenly before the consecration: there is a fine organ. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, with residence, and held since 1877 by the Rev.William Pettitt M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge: the income is principally derived from pew rents, the en- dowment fund at present being only £12 a year with a good parsonage house. There is a small Catholic iron church dedicated to the "Sacred Heart of Jesus," erected in 1888. in Atherley road. There are 100 sittings. The Congrega- tional body have a handsome church in High street, erected in 1883, with schools and class-rooms: the church consists of a nave and north aisle, tower and spire, 75 feet high, con- taining an illuminated clock; the walls externally are faced with local stone, and internally with plaster, relieved by Bath stone dressings: the total cost, with lecture hall and school in Palmerston road, amounted to about £4,500: the architect was Mr. John Sulman A.R.I.B.A. of London. Here are also Wesleyan Methodist (in Station road, erected in 1883): and Bible Christian chapels: the old Bible Christian chapel was the first built in the town, but has been super- seded by a new one in Sibdown road, which will seat 400 persons, it is built of local stone, and was opened in May 1885. There is also an iron Mission room in Landguard road with seats for 100 persons. A cemetery of 4 acres, situated at Ellyard, was formed in 1878 at a cost of £2,700; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members: there is no mortuary chapel, but when necessary the service is con- ducted under a small archway. The Literary and Scientific Institute, Prospect road, erected 1879, at a cost of £3,000, which was raised by public subscription, is a brick building; it has a well-provided reading-room, and the large hall is licensed for dramatic and musical performances, it will seat about 500 persons. A Conservative club in Palmerston road, erected at a cost of £1,000, contains billiard, reading rooms and library for members only. The town contains several good hotels, two excellent libraries, many private villas, and lodging houses. A weekly paper is also published here. Shanklin Chine is a deep chasm in one of the lofty cliffs which bound the bay on which the parish is situated; it commences about half a mile from the shore, and gradually increases in breadth and depth until it reaches the sea, where its width is about 180 feet, and its depth 270: a pathway has been cut along the side of this chasm or chine, through which flows a rivulet. The manor is vested in the family of Popham, who are also the sole landowners. The chief crops are oats and barley. The soil is various; subsoil green sand. The area is 675 acres of land and extensive foreshore: rateable value, £16,599; the population in 1881 was 4,295.

WELL is a parish 5 miles south-west-by-south wport, in West Medina liberty and rural deanery, conry of the Isle of Wight, diocese of Winchester. rch of St. Peter is a building of flint and stone, and is very picturesquely situated on a height, and consists of chancel with two chantry chapels of equal length with the chancel, nave with aisles, north and south porches, and a remarkably-shaped western embattled tower with low spire containing 3 bells; it is entirely of late Decorated work, c. 1350, except an Early English south door from an earlier chapelry and some Perpendicular windows; there is a stone mediæval pulpit, a fine fresco of St. Christopher, c. 1400, an hour-glass stand to the pulpit, numerous fine monuments of the 17th century with effigies, and the original opening for the cannon which used to be kept in the present vestry. There are 300 sittings. The register dates from 1680. The living is a vicarage together with the rectory of Motteston, joint yearly value about £350, at present in the gift of T. C. Baring esq. M.P. until the advowson is legally transferred to trustees for Hertford College, Oxford, and has been held since 1887 by the Rev. George Edward Jeans M.A. fellow of Hertford College, Oxford. There is also a sinecure rectory of Shorwell in the gift of and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Walsh, of Grimblethorpe Hall, South Lincolnshire, yearly value £460. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Bull and Bennett's charity of £83 yearly, derived from £2,790 Consols, is for clothing and coals. Northcourt, the seat of Lady Mary Gordon, is a spacious mansion, erected in the reign of James I.; the grounds are beautifully laid out, and contain some fine timber; there are numerous rust in various parts of the grounds, and an alpine brid the Newport road. Lady Mary Gordon (who is lad manor) and Charles Seely esq. J.P. are chief land The soil is sandy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 3,611 acres of land a water and foreshore; rateable value, £4,830; and th lation in 1881 was 646.

VENTNOR is a rising bathing town and parish, and a terminus of the Isle of Wight railway, in the Undercliff district, on the back of the island, 12 miles south-west from Ryde and 10 south from Newport, and has increased since 1830 from a mere hamlet to a considerable town, provided with hotels, lodging houses, reading rooms and all the necessary appendages of a watering place, and its rapid rise is to be ascribed to its fine situation and salubrious air: the town is situated on a succession of terraces sloping from the north to the sea, at varying altitudes up to 300 feet above the level of the sea, sheltered by the down of St. Boniface, which is of the height of about 900 feet, by which it is protected from the north winds, while its southern aspect gives throughout the year a genial temperature: it is considered the most favourable place in England for consumptive invalids, as it is visited with less rain than any other place in Great Britain and enjoys a more equable temperature throughout the year, careful observations having shown that the average temperature of the Undercliff is 7 degrees cooler in summer and 7 degrees warmer in winter than any other place in England. Commissioners were appointed by an act obtained in 1844, under whose jurisdiction the town was drained, and many other improvements carried out: it is now governed under the Local Goverment Act, 1858, which was adopted in 1866: the board consists of 18 members: in 1866 a company was incorporated by Act of Parliament to supply the town with gas and water: the water is derived from springs rising about 300 feet above the sea level, and is collected in large underground reservoirs, the quality being excellent: the railway was opened to Ventnor in the autumn of 1866: the pier, completed in 1872, sustained considerable damage in 1882; the Pier Company have lately sold their rights to the town, and the pier has been lengthened and repaired by the authorities. Ventnor was ecclesiastically and civilly a to Newchurch, but by the Newchurch Parish Act was made a distinct parish, and is in the rural d East Medina, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight an of Winchester. The parish church of St. Cathe building of stone in the Early Pointed style: it wa in 1837, at the sole expense of the late John Hambr of Steephill Castle: it has a small chancel, nave, an embattled tower surmounted by pinnacles and a ste cost was £4,655: it will seat about 850 pers register dates from the year 1837: the living is a yearly net value £372 and residence, in the gift of Albert Hambrough esq. and held by the Rev. Walker Willan M.A. of Christ's College, Cambrid district church of Holy Trinity was erected by th daughters of the late Bishop Percy, and was conse August, 1862: it is a building of stone in the Earl style, and consists of a chancel, nave of 3 bays a with north and south transepts thrown out from th porch in north transept and tower at west end aisle with a clock: it will seat 560 people. The reg from the year 1862: the living is a vicarage, ye £60 and pew rents, in the gift of Mrs. Thompso her decease will be in the gift of the patron of St. Ventnor: the present incumbent is the Rev. Arth wood Clayton M.A. of Jesus College, Cambrid iron church of St. Margaret has been removed into and reconsecrated by the name of St. Alban. Th chapel, dedicated to Our Lady and St. Wilfrid, wa public subscription in 1871, the principal benefac R. Swift esq. M.P.: here is also a Benedictine prio is a Congregational chapel in the High street, a Gothic structure, rebuilt in 1853 and enlarged in 18 are sittings for 650 persons: the Wesleyan chap was erected in 1860 and holds 550 persons; there is a small chapel at Upper Ventnor with 100 sittings, the Baptist chapel in Pier street, erected in 1875, has sittings; the Primitive Methodist chapel in Albert , will hold 120 persons: Bible Christian chapel in ria street, erected in 1878, and has about 300 sittings: rethren have also a place of meeting in Tulse hill, about 50 sittings: there is also a small Mission hall in atherine's street. A cemetery of 5 acres, situated on ewport road, was formed in 1869 at a cost of £2,500: are 2 chapels and 1 mortuary: it is under the control Burial Board of 9 members. The Literary and tific Institution, situated in High street, was erected 47, and comprises a large hall and several smaller ; the library contains over 3,000 volumes and there well appointed reading room, a geological, natural y and archæological museum in connection, contain- pecimens of great local interest; in the great hall a ibrary and reading room was established in 1887, pally through the munificence of the late Charles esq. of Brooke, and contains about 840 volumes. Albert hall, in Victoria street, erected in 1887, old 200 persons, and is principally used for the rance of temperance and kindred societies, but is for engagement for any public purpose. The Fire le station is in Market street, and has two manual es for 24 and 15 men respectively; the brigade at it consists of 1 captain and 23 men. The Police n, West street, was erected in 1860. The County and Castle club was established in 1873, with the object of providing residents and visitors with a social and non-political club, and also to afford one or more days' racing each year, consisting of either steeple chases and flat or hurdle races; the races are usually held in April. The new Assembly Rooms in Albert street were built in 1877 under a limited company, and are capable of seating 800 persons; they are used for lectures and entertainments, and have a license for dramatic performances. The London City Mission Seaside Home was erected in 1877, at the sole cost of the late Captain Mark Huish, and presented to the society by his widow: the object is to enable each of the missionaries and their wives, by turns, to spend a fortnight here during the year, and is supported by donations and subscriptions. About a mile on the road to St. Lawrence is Steephill Castle, the seat of Henry Sewell esq. completed in 1835: it is a noble stone building, of an oblong form, with a fine square tower on the north side; several of the rooms are of handsome dimensions and it has all the advantages of a regularly built mansion, with the picturesque exterior of the castellated style: the site of the castle was the favourite marine retreat of the late Earl Dysart: in front of the castle, near the cliff, is a cave; a small flagstaff marks the spot. The soil is chiefly chalk; subsoil, limestone, on a gault base. The area is 5,081 acres; rateable value, £34,909; the population in 1881 was 5,739

IPPINGHAM is a parish and station on the New- and Ryde Railway, and is in the East Medina liberty, h-east Medina rural deanery, Winchester diocese and leaconry of the Isle of Wight [distant about 1½ miles East Cowes and 3½ miles north-by-east from Newport; ded by the Motherbank on the north-east, and on the by the river Medina]. East Cowes and Barton are in ivil parish of Whippingham, but separate parishes for siastical purposes only. The church of St. Mildred, ially dedicated in the 12th century, was rebuilt in the 1861 and 1862, in the Transition style from Early sh; it is a massive building of stone, consisting of el, nave, south porch, aisles of 3 bays, transepts and al tower, with pinnacles, and surmounted by a lantern : there is a western turret with one bell, the chancel gs to Her Majesty the Queen, and was built at her sole n 1855; it contains a very fine memorial to the Prince rt and memorials to the Prince Leopold and Princess executed at the expense of Her Majesty; there is a fine organ: all the windows are stained: a piece of isly carved stone from the original structure has been into the west wall of the south porch: there are 350 gs: the register dates from the year 1728: the is a rectory, gross yearly value £760, with residence 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and since 1857 by the Rev. George Prothero, M.A. of nose College, Oxford, sub-dean and canon of West- er, rural dean of north-east Medina, chaplain in ry to Her Majesty and chaplain at Osborne. In 1668, Mann left a yearly rent-charge out of Lazenby Grange, hire, for apprenticing poor children of the parish, preference for those of East Cowes. In 1856 Beatrice en left by will £1,000 in £3 per Cent. now £2¾ Consols, cing £27 10s. yearly, for distribution in Whippingham, Cowes and Barton among the poor: there are also 8 ouses erected and endowed by Her Majesty the Queen.

Osborne House, the beautiful marine residence of Her Majesty, built by the Queen and Prince Albert in 1845-48, is in this parish; the house is a noble mansion, in the Palladian style, with a flag tower 100 feet high and a clock tower 90 feet in height, situated on an eminence commanding very extensive and beautiful views, with a lawn sloping to the sea. On the north-east front of the house is a series of magnificent terraces in the Italian style with 3 ornamental fountains and exotic plants; on the north lawn is a gigantic vase of Swedish granite, over 20 feet high, from the Exhibition of 1851: there is a paved esplanade by the sea, two thirds of a mile in length. H. M. the Queen is lady of the manor. The principal landowners are Her Majesty, R. S. Holford esq. of Weston Birt, Gloucestershire, Miss Jolliffe, of Padmore, Cornwallis Wykeham Martin esq. of Leeds Castle, Kent, J. Batten, of Fairlee House and Lord Gort, of East Cowes Castle. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. There are 4,631 acres of land, and 394 water and foreshore; rateable value, including East Cowes, £19,043; the population, including 2,543 in the town of East Cowes and 1,334 in Barton, in 1881 was 4,528.

Barton is a small village 3 miles south: was formerly an ecclesiastical district of Whippingham parish, but now, by Lord Blandford's Act, a separate parish for ecclesiastical purposes. For description and names of residents, see Newport, of which town it is a suburb.

TWELL is a parish 4 miles west from Ventnor outh-by-east from Newport, in the East Medina liberty ural deanery, Newport county court district, and aconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The church is formed from two ancient chapels, dedicated respectively to the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. Rhadagund, and is a stone building in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle of four bays, south porch, and low square embattled tower at the west end of the south aisle containing 3 bells, and contains nine fine stained windows: it has been re-seated and greatly improved, and the churchyard has been enlarged: the church is said to have been built and endowed by De Estur, Lord of Gatcombe. There are 130 sittings. The register dates from 1678, but there are churchwardens' accounts from the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £186, in the gift of and held since 1867 by the Rev Robert Bennett Oliver M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Charities of £4 yearly are for bread. There is a Preventive Station in this parish. The first mention of Whitwell is found in the roll of landowners under the Countess Isabella de Fortibus, where De Estur, one of the lords of Gatcombe, is said to hold the manor of Whitwell in demesne. The principal landowners are William Spindler esq. Edward Granville Ward esq. and the Hon. Evelyn Cornwallis Anderson Pelham, who is lord of the manor. The soil is a strong loam; subsoil, chalk and some good freestone for building. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,907 acres of land; rateable value, £4,607: population in 1881 was 706.

WOOTTON is a parish situated about 4 miles west from Ryde and 4 north-east from Newport, in the North-east Medina rural deanery, archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. It has the Motherbank on the north and an inlet of the sea on the east; the latter is crossed by a causeway on the high road from Ryde to Newport. There is a station on the Ryde, Newport and Cowes railway, about a mile from the village. The church of St. Edmund is an old Gothic stone building, with a Norman doorway; it consists of chancel and nave without aisles, and contains marble tablets to the White and Shute families: this ancient and interesting church has been restored and repaired at a cost of about £500, from plans prepared by Mr. J. Middleton; a new roof has been put on, the nave reseated; the pulpit has been placed in the recess of an old semi-Norman arch, and the chancel fitted with stalls. An oak lectern has been presented to the church; still more recently a western bell turret of handsome proportions has been added and sunday school rooms erected, 1888. There are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1756. The living is a rectory, yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of Francis White Popham esq. and held since 1883 by the Rev. William Hobday Coleman B.A., LL.D. Trinity College, Dublin, St. Mary hall, Oxford, and Cuddesdon Theological College. The village is remarkably clean and neat, the houses rising on each side of Fishbourne Creek. On the one side the banks of the river are irregular and clothed from the very water's edge with flourishing oak woods. This forest scene is contrasted on the other side by the grounds of Fern H. Frederick Brodie, esq. whose mansion stands at the [illegible] of a wide-spreading park, sloping to the creek with fringed with a variety of trees and plantations of hardy growth. RMOUTH (or SOUTH YARMOUTH), formerly a market railway town, is the smallest parish in the island, e West Medina liberty and rural deanery, archdeaconry he Isle of Wight, diocese of Winchester, and the first within the Needles passage: it is on the sea coast, at nouth of the river Yar, over which a bridge has been ructed, uniting this with the neighbouring parish of nwater, directly opposite Lymington, distant 4 miles by am ferry across the sea, 12½ south-west from Cowes, 10½ west from Newport. The railway between Yar- h, Newport and Freshwater was opened in July, 1888. pier, opened in 1876, was constructed by the Corpora- ; its length is 700 feet and it has a 100 head frontage hree separate landing stages; the cost of erection was t £4,000. The imports are coal and timber. The is well built, and was a corporate town, but by the icipal Corporation Act it ceased to exist in March, 1881. town is lighted with gas supplied by James Blake esq. supplied with water from wells in the town. The gh was disfranchised by the Reform Act, having pre- ly sent two members to Parliament from the reign of beth. The church of St. James, a building of stone in erpendicular style, consists of a chancel and nave, , north and south porches and tower, and having be- much dilapidated, was repaired (the tower being l above 30 feet by the liberality of Daniel Alexander esq. ssenter): the repairs of the church, amounting to y £1,000, were paid for by public subscription: in a chapel is a splendid monument to Sir Robertus es Miles, consisting of a colossal statue, of exquisite manship, in beautiful Carrara marble; in 1873 the el and other parts of the church were restored, the window filled with stained glass by the late rector (Rev. ackburn) in memory of his son: a stained window d in the south aisle by J. Gassiot esq. in memory of ral Love: the reredos, with the decoration of the n wall of the chancel, was erected as a memorial of Blake, by James Blake and members of his family; ern, in bronze, and costly stones, was presented by the ving children of S. Fisher esq., of Westminster, and for the same by S. Fisher esq.: the stone pulpit and by the late rector, Rev. C. T. Fisher M.A.: a vestry uilt at the cost of the Misses Leigh: the old com- on chalices which were formerly in the possession of eigh family for over two hundred years, are now in the y. There are 300 sittings. The register dates from ear 1630. The living is a rectory, gross value, , in the gift of the Fisher family, and held since 1888 e Rev. George Quirk M.A. The Nonconformist chapels the number of sittings are as follows:—Wesleyans, Bible Christians, seats for 120; Baptists, seats for 100; outh Brethren, 50. At the west end of the town is a fort or castle, erected in the time of Henry VIII. on the site of the former church, which had been demolished by the French a short time before: this castle, in 1855, underwent extensive repairs, but it is now dismantled. Thomas, Lord Holmes, governor of the island in the eighteenth century, bequeathed £30 yearly to this parish, to be distributed on the 22nd of June in the following manner, viz. £10 to the rector, £10 for apprenticing a poor boy out of the parish and £10 to be distributed among the widows and poor of the parish; other charities produce £12 yearly. Lord Heytesbury is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Lord Heytesbury, Miss Leigh and Lionel Clarke esq. The soil is light loam and sand; subsoil, chalk. The area is 58 acres of land and 66 foreshore and water; rateable value, £2,536; the population in 1881 was 787.

YAVERLAND is a parish situated about 8 miles east-south-east from Newport, 5 south from Ryde, and a mile south from Brading, overlooking Sandown bay in the East Medina liberty, rural deanery and archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. John the Baptist, situated on the side of a hill, half-a-mile from the coast is an ancient edifice of Norman date, but altered in the 13th & 15th centuries, and built of stone said to have come from Brittany: it consists of chancel, with organ chamber & vestries on the north side, nave of two bays, north aisle, south porch, and a western turret containing one bell: the chancel is separated from the nave by a fine arch of late Norman date, a portion of which has been cut away on the north side for the construction of a rood loft, the entrance and steps to which remain: the south doorway, also late Norman, is round-headed with a square entrance; and the tympanum is filled with diaper work; the font is a hexagon: there is a marble tablet inscribed to Caroline F. Bacon, of Donnington Castle, d. 1831, a mural brass to Elizabeth d. 1875, wife of the Rev. William Molland Lee M.A. rector (1869-88) and to John E. Lee, Lieut. R.N. and 55th (Border) regiment, who died at Aden in 1876: there are also inscribed slabs to Robert Sherson esq. d. 1842, John Sherson esq. d. 1855 and to the White family of Yaverland, 1839-42: the church is now (1889) being thoroughly restored and enlarged at a cost of £1,900, and an organ erected at an additional cost of £330: the work has included the construction of an organ chamber and two vestries, and the addition of a south porch and a north aisle, which is separated from the nave by an arcade of two arches, supported in the centre on a single column with plainly moulded cap: the walls have been carefully repaired, the roof completely renewed in oak, and the interior reseated with oak benches: the tracery of the later windows, which was much mutilated has been reproduced, and a stained window has been placed in the north aisle by Miss De ett: During the progress of the work a 13th century ar was discovered built into the wall on the south side; ap- parently formed the entrance to a small chantry pel, and retained one of the corbels from which it sprun it is now made to open into a small recess projecting s tly outwards and lighted by an early English window pre usly blocked: a hagioscope, some pieces of stone work bel ging apparently to an early font or stoup, and an urn, 18 ches in diameter, were met with and also the mulitated rved head of a monk, which has been placed over the sout oor- way: the Norman south doorway is said to have ori ally belonged to a monastic cell which once existed at W ver- ton, in the valley to the north, and dedicated to St. ian. The register dates from the year 1633. The livi is a rectory, net yearly value £158, with residence, in t gift of Sir G. E. W. Græme Hammond-Græme bart. of rton Lodge, Yarmouth, and held since 1888 by the Rev. mes Nelson Palmer M.A. of St. John's College, Oxfor who resides at Bembridge. The Manor House, a statel nan- sion of stone, two storeys in height, with clustered ric chimney stacks, consists of a central block of two able with advanced gabled wings: the house is well-lighte with stone-mullioned windows, and faces southwards o a spacious terrace court enclosed by a stone fence, fron hic a wide flight of steps leads down into the road; on eith si the house is a line of lime trees. Sir Graham Eden lian Græme Hamond-Græme bart. is lord of the manor a so landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay, cha an sandstone. The chief crops are wheat and barley Th area is 817 acres of land and 79 of water and fore re rateable value £1,188; the population in 1881 wa 153 including 84 in the forts and battery.
